"I'm very proud, I didn't mean to stop on your foot."

"Oh. I walk on air. I walk on air."

Cutting to the Garden Theater for the next few days beginning Saturday, is the interesting sensation photo drama called "The Libertines" with John Mason and Alma Hashim in the regular roles. Both stars gain new prestige, for their excellent portrayals of the characterization figures. The story unfolded by the latest photographer can readily be termed a veritable revolution of facts of what is transpiring in our home life today. It may not be in your home, but it may be in the home two miles distant from you. To say the least the scene is an impressive scene, and the audience were delighted with the production. The Libertines is a powerful, dramatic, well-acted production in which human emotions and adventure blend into story.

"There were ninety and thirty that morning."

In the shelter of the cell; and one was out on the hills away Par off from the Gate of Gold."

The Man Drink; The Girl Loved.

It's the theme of the touching photo drama to be seen at The Empire today and tomorrow.

She believed in tomorrow, and to tomorrow's challenges, to the gifts and the joy which come from living and doing.

She took him as a drab-colored youth, beneath whose skin, she saw a soul struggling through all her problems, and lifted him to his real place in prosperity.

Then when the test of manhood came, and he drove a runaway horse through a blazing forest, saving the town from destruction, her old-fashioned faith was repaid by his strong arm and loyal love.

This Vinagrate Feature carries the whole high-grade story, and makes high personal to the people who made this play for so many seasons.

"The Ninety and Nine" was a novel, heart-stirring and a thrilling day.

TOilet PLAYWRIGHT TO LECTURE HERE
 LEADER IN DRAMATIC WORLD
 WILL DISCUSS LATEST TRENDS

Granville Barker, playwright and producer, will lecture in the natural science auditorium Saturday evening at 8:15 on "New Ideas in the Theater." Mr. Barker comes to Iowa City under the auspices of the Drama League, in his second American lecture tour.

Mr. Barker is probably the foremost exponent of dramatic progress in the English-speaking world and one of the leaders in the international movement for more artistic drama. As a successor of Gordon Craig of Florence, Italy, and of Max Reinhardt of the Berlin Gymnasium, he has demonstrated the new art in his own theaters in London and New York. As a consummate actor, playwright and producer, and as a fascinating public speaker, Mr. Barker can give us first-hand information and interpretation of this new art. Granville Barker has now given up producing plays. He wishes to slty his new book and other courses will be offered to the students in the home economics department of the University.

SUNDAY DINNER OF PHARMACISTS

(Continued from page one) The mattresses that could not be gotten through the windows were charred and burned by the falling furniture.

The Neighbors Help

Meanwhile Mrs. O. A. Carpenter, a neighbor, had taken a few of the boys in the time at home of misses Myer and Merrick and allowed them to warm their hands and dry their frozen glasses. Her husband, who is a local architect, allowed goods that were saved to be stored in a small vacant room over the Golden Eagle.

The house is owned by the Congregational church and was insured for $6,000. The furnishings in the house were insured for $600 by the Firemen.

Among the members of the University staff who will have charges are: Professors Lorin Barker, E. P. Faris, C. H. Iliff, C. H. Penny, E. H. Weller, G. G. Benjamtn, and R. M. Stewart.

Information may be obtained by addressing the registrar, Iowa City, Iowa. Address: 1010 S. Linn St., Atchison.
