CIVIL WAR CAVALRY
PATTERN OF EUROPEANS
"European cavalry is peculiarly adapted to conditions in Iowa, and a half of the battle has been made to pattern after that of our civil war, and conditions never will be better." This is one of the Senator Nordmeyer's arguments in his last weekly discussion before the legislature. He pic expressed his opinion that the value of cavalry in its present condition will be less than those used in the Confederate States of America. His statement was one of the old Capitol.

The Founding of the State University

By Dr. C. Ray Fowler

The General Assembly of Iowa in the session of 1854-55, after several suspenseful weeks, had finally decided upon the establishment of a State University, and provided a board of trustees consisting of fifteen members appointed by the state legislature. The University of Iowa was thus created, in July of the following year (1857), at the instance of the General Assembly, which had been in session for the purpose of establishing a State University in Iowa.

A single line in the minutes of the board meeting at this time seems to have been inserted: "To be known as the Iowa University of the State of Iowa." Thus began the story of the University of Iowa.

The University of Iowa was established in 1857, and its first president was elected to draft rules for its government. The first president was John W. Merriam, a lawyer and scholar, who had been a member of the Iowa legislature and had been appointed by Governor Black to be the first president of the University.

The University's first building was completed in 1859, and it was dedicated on April 27, 1860. The building was a small, two-story structure, located on the corner of Washington and Cedar Streets in Iowa City. It was later demolished to make way for the new University of Iowa Library, which was completed in 1873.

Since its founding, the University of Iowa has grown from a small, two-story building with a capacity of 200 students to a world-renowned university with a student body of over 30,000. It has provided a world-class education to generations of students, and has played a significant role in the economic and cultural development of the state of Iowa.

The University of Iowa is the result of the vision and determination of its founders, who recognized the importance of higher education in the development of a democratic society. It is a testament to the enduring spirit of innovation and scholarship that has defined the University of Iowa since its inception.
WHAT MEN LIVE BY

The moral problem for college communism is accounted for, when one considers that few students pay two-thirds of what they get. Whether our institutions are supported from taxation or endowments, a large part of their income is derived from the annual labor of society; there is no other a fraction of the running expenses and of the interest on that labor. Even, if a student pays all charges, he is in part a parasite on the public. The working people in the best respect support us; the men who are often so eager for education, and who can not go on. Some of them would feel rich if they had the leisure of knowledge, which we throw to the floor and tread upon in our spirit of thrift.

To take our education of their hands and use it to devise ways by which we can continue to live on them, seems discrediting even in a pagan conscience. It ought to be impossible in ease of social responsibility treated under Christian influence.

Professors R. M. Stewart, Ernest Hare, and Mr. P. C. Parker, superintendents of the grades in the high school, will address the annual assembly on the N. E. A. will take place.

Professor Burtwell will speak twice Monday, February 26, when the University will hold its first annual Foundation Day exercises, commemorating the seventieth anniversary of its birth. These exercises will be taken from the rooms of the State Historical society and from the wall behind the platform in the library arts assembly room, where they have been hanging for many years, and will be hung about the auditorium in the natural science building. Other decorative schemes are also being considered by Prof. Benjamin H. Shambaugh, chairman of the committee in charge, but absence of President Jessup, who has been in the Middle West during the last week, has delayed perfecting some of the plans for the exercises.

Harding to Speak

It is definitely known that Governor W. L. Harding will be in the city on the morrow of Foundation Day and he will give one of the principal addresses on the program at 10 o'clock that morning. President W. A. Jessup will also speak and it is probable that others will give shorter talks. It had been president amiss, it would be also inadvisable to give the exercise, but he will not be present. There will be members of the band and the Glee club as a part of the program.

February 21 is the actual date of the anniversary of the founding of the University, but since the day falls on Sunday this year the exercises will be held on Monday. At 10 o'clock all classes in the University will be dismissed, for the rest of the morning and the greater part of the afternoon. The exercises will be opened for the program in the natural sciences auditorium.

W. A. J., President

Twelve presidents have served the University during its history, including several who had the office of acting president for a few months. Dean N. Carrier held the office of acting president longer than any others in this capacity, and becomes

STUDENT TRADE
There are 3000 students in the University of Iowa, one-third of which are girls. It takes the kindly patience and willing service of every Iowa advocate to adapt himself to the demands of this ever changing, heterogeneous body of students.
Their personal desires are studied as well as their actual needs, in order that each one may be satisфed. And they do satisfy this great body of people in a remarkable degree.
The student, as a rule, does not appreciate just what it really means to be ever on the alert, ever ready to extend little services to suit individual families. Yet our advertisers cooperate with every student activity, not for their personal satisfaction alone, but in order that they may be able to know just what the student needs and student desires are.

Moreover, it is only through the assistance of those who advocate in the Daily Iowa, that it can exist. Is it not your turn, then, to do all that you can to cooperate with these advocates, and to aid them, as they aid you, by turning to them for what ever you wish to buy.

Would you like to travel? Would you like to know human nature thoroughly?
Nine months of the year at S. U. I. studying books will develop splendidly your theoretical side. Three months of the year traveling, meeting people, will develop your practical side. Besides it'll make you money.
