The greatest extension work of the University is not all carried on by the alumnus, nor by the field agents soliciting directly for the institution, but by the hundreds of students who are taking up such work as book salesmanship during their summer vacations. They have the advantages of travelling and meeting others who are taking up such work. In fact, the appearance of such well-trained salesmen is for many a great place to sell. They have the bread-and-butter of the student does for himself when pursuing such work, by studying people of all classes, learning the fundamental principles which influence others to think as he thinks, or in other words, becoming a real leader of men. Experience in salesmanship has many college, and will in time send the university that they may also develop sons and daughters to this spirit.

What the students want to know

Why do excuses have to be made? Does it mean that the student has to hand in a list of both good and poor students when they are supposed to hand in a list for summer vacations. They have the same standards used in the case of both good and poor students? Does it mean that the student must present an excuse when they are supposed to hand in a list of both good and poor students?

STUDENT TRADE
There are 2500 students in the University of Iowa, one-third of whom are girls. It takes the kindly patience and willing service of every Iowa administrator to adapt his service to the demands of this ever-changing, heterogeneous body of students. Their personal likes are studied as well as their actual needs. In order that each one may be satisfied, and that they do enter this great body of people in a remarkable degree. The student, as a rule, does not appreciate just what it really means to be here on the alert, ever ready to extend little favors to our individual students. Yet our advertisers co-operate with every student activity, not for their personal satisfaction alone, but in order that they may be able to know just what the student wants and what students want.

Moreover, it is only through the assistance of those who advertise in the Daily Iowan, that it can exist. It is not your turn, then, to do all that you can to cooperate with these advertisers, and to aid them, so they all you, by turning to them for whatever you wish to buy.

What Will You Do This Summer?

Would you like to travel? Would you like to know human nature thoroughly?

Nine months of the year at S. U. I. studying books will develop splendidly your theoretical side. Three months of the year traveling, meeting people, will develop your practical side. Besides it will make you money.

Mr. Nelson, Mr. Schilling, and Mr. Storlenga as expert trainers, of University Book Salesmen are working at Iowa City to give this practical training to many students during the I.H.U. summer.
