Chinese Bullets With Drivers Clear
the Road in Terror as Alumnus Engineer Attains Speed of 200 Miles Per Hour in Speed-Making Run.

Roy Allan White, better known at Cresco, Iowa, as the young man who graduated in 1909 from the engineering college and who has been employed in railroad work in China, was mentioned in the issue of the Pekin Daily News of Jan. 31, as one of the holders of a new automobile record for China.

While a companion by the name of Weismandt started out in an automobile to seek in vain to cross the distance from Pekin to the hot springs of Tsangboh, about nineteen miles an hour. The trip had to be made over very poor roads, since only a few miles of the distance had been macadamized. It was the first time that an automobile had penetrated that part of the country.

The Pekin News states that the roads had a few rain in them but that the driver had no trouble in getting over them. It also mentions that in some of the exceptionally wet places he used the high way speed of 40 miles an hour, or slightly over.

The appearance of this "mechanical competitor of the Chinese bullets" was quite terrifying to all animals and persons concerned, there being a long series of accidents such as runaways and the lapping of carts.

The trip, which was considered an epoch-making occurrence by the Chinese newspapers, consisted of running about sixty miles between 9 in the morning and 4:10 in the afternoon, meeting not about two hours which were spent in sight-seeing at the baths.

CIVILIAN ARMY MANEUVERS
WITHOUT MAJOR ROCKWOOD

Major Paul Rockwood has been ruined by the red cross. The Weather

Carelessly and carelessly the
