Cela Made in Askings for Building for Women's Home Would be Only Big Changes.

Appropriations totaling $1,315,000 for the University were voted by the Board of Regents.

Added to the $1,460,000 of appropriations for the present session, those for previous sessions, will bring the total of $2,335,000 for the biennium beginning July 1, 1917, and ending June 30, 1919.

The appropriations were divided as follows:

Report on each bill:

Extension work, study, and special, $128,498

New buildings, $790,000

Wm. build Ings, $180,000

Lawn. $130,000

Engineering college, $450,000

The money for the child welfare research and laboratory, the student's hospital, new armory, and the redrawing of the old capitol of the University practically uncontrolled.

Neither President Jessup nor the state board of education asked for appropriations, though they recognized their merits and gave them formal approval when they were presented.

Women's Home Children.

Women of the state demanded the establishment of a children's home for the care of the abandoned and helpless. The idea was placed in the hands of a committee and a children's home was the result. (Continued on page 3)

The report of the resolution passed by the executive committee of the law school earlier February whereby any student in that college who is found to enter any obligations of military service will be excused from further drill and will receive full credit for his work completed.

WHENEVER, the National War Department on Saturday, April 21, annulled the Commandant of the University's Old Regiment that fourteen members of the group would be established by May 1, 1917, for the purpose of giving a three month course in military instruction, consisting of 900 men in order to fit them for both the rank and file and officers. Training should more to be found for the new class of the Company A, with a large number of the members of the Women's Profession in the group. CHILD WELFARE
(The Des Moines Register)
The state university is unique in its attitude in announcing that its child welfare service will be devoted primarily for the benefit of the normal child.

We have many special means of caring for the defective child, ranging from out-door foster homes to separate classes in one public school and the mental institution, and we give the children at Iowa City a chance to be well-cared for.

No work has been done for the normal child, in a corrective or introspective sense, of regular school work. Many children of normal talents and sound physique suffer injury through the conditions in which they are raised, when the right care cannot keep them in health.

The bureau of child welfare will do most of its work for those who do not need to attend school.

We sometimes speak of the value of the school in determining character, but the fact is, as Dean Halsey says, that the really formative years are the first five in a child's life. Habits of conduct and even habits of speech are formed before the sixth year.

The bureau of child welfare is a natural outgrowth of the present bureau of industry and training and is the first of its kind in the United States.

UNIVERSITY GIVEN
LIBERAL TREATMENT
BY THE LAWMAKERS

The bill was passed by the Senate on the 22nd, in a form called the Perkins bill, and passed both houses without a dissension vote. The strategy was provided for to meet the possible zeal of the work in causing others for the reserves company. It was defeated in the House through a misunderstanding, but on reconsideration the following day passed by an overwhelming majority.

The state college at Ames received a larger appropriation. Credit for the granting of the appropriation for the founding of the Old Capitol was in a large measure to desiderate O. A. Huntington of Iowa City. He introduced the bill in the senate, and with the competent assistance of Representative C. A. Botzard, fashioned it through. The sentimental interest of the legislators in preserving the oldest building called a landmark is making the measure popular.

The legislature responded appropriately to the needs of the University as they were presented by President Jepson and the members of the board that practically all the appropriations asked for were granted.

But the legislature responded appropriately to the needs of the University as they were presented by President Jepson and the members of the board that practically all the appropriations asked for were granted. This hour, however, will put the land to taxes immediately and for some to provide for future wants before prices go higher. Other adaptions for special purposes were granted. The increase of $115,000 annually asked for annual support was cut only $14,000, this being in the main for the college of liberal arts, law, medicine, and planet. Increase of $15,000 for libraries, $10,000 for education, $24,000 for the graduate college, $5,000 for the arts, $4,000 for summer session, $1,000 for buildings and supplies, $5,000 for equipment and supplies, $4,000 for repair and remodeling, $11,100 for library support, and $75,000 for the school of commerce were all granted.
