Editors Declare They Have Tried to Special Plans Made for Delivery Have Gone to Pt. Robinson, of Hawkseys to Men Who

The original date, May 27, set for the delivery of the 1918 Hawkseys is not far away, according to the manager of the store.

The plan was made to include in the hands of the binders and that they would be sent in Iowa City in three different shipments, arriving on the 11th, 14th and 17th.

ing goes to be a very high standard and pointed to a well balanced and artistic publication.

The aim of the staff this year, as in the past, has been to surpass the standards imposed by the best of previous books not only in quality of design but also in the representation of the ever-changing interests and activities of the university.

Special plans have been taken in the selection of bindings and in the art work embodied throughout the various sections. The attempt has been made to give the book dignity and character and without making it heavy.

The "need sense" is especially large this year and has been given a separate place in the book intended for capturing it throughout the book, as illustrated. This is an especially excellent portion of the "feature section" which claims no one.

Governor W. L. Harding brought the bands to a rousing close with a short, clever talk in which he praised W. A. Jennings highly and declared that when first he knew President Jouett he had wondered how on earth he had managed to secure such an excellent wind.

"But when I got to be Governor of the state, I found that President Jouett was the best 'boiler' in the world and that he showed what he was doing after," he said.

MANNSCHEIEN AFTERNOON PARADE

At about 3 o'clock delegates from other colleges and universities, faculty and students of the University, attended all colleges, and members of the board of education formed a color line and, headed by the University band, marched down to the armory for the most important session of the entire inaugural program. The pupil delegates took part in the parade were stoved by thousands who lined the streets on both sides of the avenue.

President D. D. Hayne, a state board of education, presided over the procession, and Flag

The daily Iowa, State University of Iowa.

President William Lowe Bryan of the University of Indiana, who gave an address earlier in the program, emphasized the service of the university.

"The chief function of the university is to supplement common sense by the revelation of forces which are invisible to common sense," he began. Then he showed how common sense must be working the past year in cooperation with applied science if the problems of our day are to be solved.

Dr. John Simpson, a member of the faculty of the University, said the Iowa field, where the University is spending now, is far from a bankable note, and that the Iowa field is spending now is far from a bankable note.

The Iowa field, where the University is spending now, is far from a bankable note. That spirit has been crowded out, and is not a fair spirit of cooperation.
