NEBRASKA DEFEATS IOWA BY DECISIVE SCORE-47 to 0

HAWKEYES FAIL TO HALT HUSKER BACKS IN ONE-SIDED GAME

Iowa Line Is Unable to Resist Sweeping Nebraska Offense Which Scores Often

SCHELLENBERG IS INDIVIDUAL STAR

Hawkeyes Come Back Fighting in Third Quarter and Battle Opponents Scoreless

LINCOLN, Nebraska, October 13, (Special to The Daily Iowan): Exhibiting a powerful offense which the inexperienced Hawkeye line could not stop with any degree of regularity, Nebraska's highly touted Cornhuskers produced everything that was claimed for them, and swamped their Iowa opponents by the lopsided score of 47 to 0. Not a time in the game was Nebraska in any danger of losing, and Coach Stewart's athletes, although not demonstrating anything particularly strong in defensive work, gave such an exhibition of interference, line-plunging and speed when in possession of the ball, as to conclusively stamp them the most formidable eleven in the Missouri Valley.

The entire Husker backfield was in the limelight, but specially prominent was the work of Schellenberg, the versatile Nebraska half-back, who repeatedly circled the Iowa ends for long gains, scored three touchdowns, and was generally relied upon to make the required ground in the pinches.

Only once during the contest did Iowa appear in danger of scoring, and then Nebraska was so far in the lead as to rob such an event of all its seriousness. With the second quarter barely begun, Iowa kicked off to Nebraska's 10 yard line. Schellenberg returned 40 yards. Here Iowa held and the Huskers lost the ball on downs. Von Lackum got away with a forward pass for forty yards, placing the ball on Nebraska's 25 yard line. Davis and Jenkins completed another pass for a short gain. But here, on the Husker 15 yard line, the Hawkeyes were stopped and never again threatened to score.

The second quarter showed Iowa at its best in the game, both offensively and defensively, as their opponents could score but one touchdown during this period, while the Hawkeyes saw their only opportunity at this time.

Given fifteen minutes rest between halves, and stimulated by words of their coach, the Hawkeyes came back in the second part of the game, and beyond any doubt, conclusively demonstrated that "Iowa Fights." Although they never approached the Husker goal when in possession of the ball, for the entire third quarter Nebraska was held scoreless, and it began to look as though the Old Gold would fight an even game in the last half. However, with the opening of the fourth quarter, Stewart sent several of his veterans back into the fray, and with a sweeping offense of mixed runs and forward passes, coupled with a 48 yard skirt by Kellogg, Nebraska brought its total up to 47 points.

The final minutes of play saw the Hawkeyes backed up on their own five yard line. Von Lackum drop-

WELLER GIVES LECTURE ON ART

Shows Views of French Cathedrals Before the War and After German Bombardment.

"The story of the French cathedral," said Prof. C. H. Weller in his art lecture yesterday morning, "is so wrapped up with the history of the country that the two cannot be separated. The epoch of cathedral building dates from the twelfth century to the seventeenth."

Professor Weller showed many unusual and unique views of the exterior and interior of St. Denis, Notre Dame, Chartres, Rheims, Amiens, and others. As a whole Rheims is considered the most symmetrical and perfect. Amiens is famed for its great delicacy and beauty.

Three pictures taken in 1915 brought out the horrors of the present situation. The bare ribs of one cathedral with the wood work burned away and the roof fallen in, stood out ghastly and dark. Rheims was shown with great shell holes in the stained glass rose window, and with bags of sand piled against the pillars in a vain attempt to protect the forlorn remains. A fitting close in the series was the picture of the cross, two fragmentary arms hanging by the hands from the cross-piece, and the body of the Saviour in ruins at the base.

JESSUP ON SPEAKING TRIP

ped back to punt, but the kick was blocked, and the Husker captain fell on the oval for the final touchdown.

One of the novel features of the game was the introduction of three girl yell-leaders, who could get noise from men who were tongue-tied. This was an entirely new innovation in football history, and the crowd followed the leaders with enthusiasm.

The details of the game indicate throughout that Iowa put up a stiff fight, particularly in the second and third quarters, but the Old Gold line simply could not resist the bewildering Cornhuskers' offense, which gained at will. Coach Jones sent in numerous substitutes for the line positions in the hope of stiffening the resistance, but the speedy Nebraska backs could not be halted.

The Cornhusker band furnished the entertainment between halves, parading up the field with a huge goat labelled "Iowa." A crowd of three thousand people witnessed the contest which was played under almost ideal weather conditions.

MEET THE TEAM

The team will be in on the Rock Island at 10:10 this morning.

The student of the University have the opportunity of showing our team the ayesterday's defeat has not dampened our confidence in them.

At least some of the fraternities of the University will send every man down to the station for this occasion, and it is rumored that the same will be done by one or two of the sororities. Power to the man or woman who will display her loyalty by bringing this thing about.

The band will be there.

The movement was begun by the athletic association of the college of dentistry. It's an all-University enterprise though and everybody should get behind it.

Show your spirit! Back the team and the coach!

STAR INVITES THAYER TO MEET NORTHCLIFFE

Frank Thayer, who came here recently from the University of Kansas to take charge of the work in journalism, has been invited by Irving R. Kirkwood, publisher of the Kansas City Star, to be his guest at a conference and luncheon in Kansas City October 25 to meet Lord Northcliffe, English newspaperman and special British representative to this country.

Hamilton Fife, the war correspondent, and Lieut. Col. Campbell Stuart of the English army will also be present at the luncheon which is to take place at the Hotel Muehlebach.

DRAFTED SOLDIERS REPORT TO DEAN

Council National Defense Request 2nd Draft Men Register for Their Branch of Service.

Drafted soldiers will probably receive positions in the national arm according to their ability and vocation, according to a letter from the Council of National Defense to Dean W. G. Raymond of the college of engineering.

The Council of Defense has requested that all students in the second draft, enrolled in the college of engineering shall register at the Dean's office, stating their year of college and their particular branch of engineering.

An effort has been made to exempt all engineers from the draft until they have completed their college course. Such a plan as is now in vogue with medical students is under consideration.

UNION MEETING FOR PROHIBITION

Catholics and Protestants Unite For Prohibitory Amendment.

A union meeting of all the churches of Iowa City, both Catholic and Protestant, will be held at 7:30 this evening, at the Methodist church. The occasion is the election Monday, and the meeting is being held to help adopt the prohibitory amendment.

Dr. Edwin D. Starbuck will preside at the meeting. The program includes music by the Epworth league orchestra and speeches by Henry Walker, a lawyer of Iowa City; J. L. Recorders, president of the Commercial club; the Rev. Irving E. Wade of the Christian church; and Prof. Bohumil Shimek, of the department of Botany of the University and one of the speakers of the Council of National Defense. The Rev. Wm. P. Shanahan of St. Patrick's church, who was to have been on the program, has been called out of town.

SAVE A DOLLAR A WEEK FOR A BOND

Fifteen Cents a Day Saved Will Make Uncle Sam Your Debtor and You a Patriot.

Save fifteen cents a day and own a liberty bond. One dollar a week for forty nine weeks will buy one. You will be helping your country, cultivating habits of thrift, and making a tilt-edge investment.

Dr. N. R. Whitney, financial expert on the political economy department is authority for the above statement. "Almost every student in the University could save $1 a week and buy a $50 liberty bond on the installment plan. That doesn't mean any sacrifice," he declared. "It would mean that the student would attend two movies a week instead of four and reduce the number of cigarettes and sodas consumed."

The bonds will probably increase in value after the war, Dr. Whitney says. The $50 bond will be worth more than $50, so the owner will have a profit in addition to his 4 per cent interest.

Larger bonds can be taken by those who can afford it on this same plan. On a $100 bond two dollars is paid down and two dollars a week in weekly payments for forty nine weeks makes it yours. The interest is deducted so that the payment is for forty-nine weeks rather than fifty.

Women are still signing up for Y. W. C. A. membership, but nobody knows how many there are at present. The "Y" which is now at Close hall, is no longer a true barometer of the campaign. The membership is steadily approaching the 600 mark.

EDITORS OF 1919 HAWKEYE SELECT STAFF MEMBERS

Walkerbarth and Rigler Named as Trustees Under New University Control.

"HAWKEYE INC." A NEW COMPANY

Seven Directors to Newly Organized Company Incorporated Under Laws of Iowa.

Comparatively brilliant prospects for the publication of this year's Hawkeye were held at the close of the meeting of the trustees of "The Hawkeye, Inc." In order to meet the present situation which puts the Hawkeye under University supervision, two men were selected on the board of trustees to act with Frederic G. Cox and J. Mel Hickerson, the men elected by the sophomore class a year ago. The men chosen are Carl A. Walkerbarth and Harold Rigler.

The members of the Hawkeye staff have been selected with few exceptions. They include:

- Associate Editors
- College of liberal arts—(not selected).
- Football, basketball, baseball—Homer S. Brown.
- Track and minor athletics—Herbert Pillars.
- Women's athletics—Edythe Saylor.
- Women's forensics—Louise Doreweller.
- Men's forensics—Albert Wilcox.
- Dramatic—Harry Reams.
- Clubs—Clifton Cooper.
- Society and music—Harold Thomas.
- Military—Edward Rate.
- Alumni and faculty—Gretchen Kane.
- Fraternities—Harold Thompson.
- Sororities—Julia Bryant.
- Christian activities—Violet Blakeley.

Art work—Dept. of Graphic and plastic arts.

Features and occasions—Delbert Halverson, Roy Mayne, Ruth Jones.

Women at Iowa—Lillian Prentiss.

The Hawkeye will be managed this year by Frederic G. Cox as managing editor and J. M. Hickerson as editor-in-chief. John W. Edge, who was elected member of the board with these men, has been called to colors in the new army. His duties as business manager will be handled by Cox and Hickerson jointly, the former looking after the office business and the latter managing the advertising.

The manager of this year's Hawkeye will place a "Hawkeye box" in the south end of the natural science building at an early date. Every student is urged by University to contribute anything that he feels will be of any value, or to offer any suggestions that he will believe to be helpful, the managers declare.

The persons named on the editorial staff were chosen entirely on merit, and the appointments were approved by the board of trustees. The first meeting of the staff will be held some evening this week, and it is planned to push the work as rapidly as possible, there being several reasons why it is advisable to have the last photograph taken and the copy all compiled at a date somewhat earlier than has formerly been the custom.

EDUCATION'S STATUS.

It is gratifying to the undergraduate to view the ascendancy which education has gained over its chief competitors, money and ancestry in the determining of social position in America. We say it is gratifying for the undergraduate to witness this because he, as an embryo person of letters, has a vital interest in the status of the great society into which he is about to enter as a full-fledged member.

Every nation, little or small, monarchy or republic, is an hierarchy. In the monarchy openly the social order pyramids from the royal family and the titled class. Less conspicuously in the republic there is an economic order based upon money or learning. This nation is an example of the republic in which the criterion of social rank until a few years ago has been based on the dollar.

There was a time, and it's within the memory of many of the University's faculty members, when intellectual forces were subordinate to financial forces in the aspirations of the great citizenry of the country. Parents pinned their faith in the "school of experience" rather than in the "world of books" as a training place for their children. Influential men who had been successful without a higher education loomed up to the masses as a stigma on the "theoretical training" in colleges and universities. The college man in the minds of the people was the "rah rah" type of individual. The printing office, the bank, the store, and the shop were all considered better places for young folk than college lecture halls.

But the incessant bobbing up of the college man at the head of the current in all the great streams of our national life is throwing off the shackles of these unfortunate prejudices which obtained in the past. The world loves a leader. And the college graduate is becoming the captain in almost every kind of industry. We have only to look to "Who's Who," in which ninety per cent of the men listed are products of higher education institutions to see the truth of this statement. Instinctively the great mass of people admire and imitate the with much money.

Read the comment of the late Professor Munsterberg in "The Americans" on this subject:

"Distrust of college training has vanished," he says, "and people realize that the intellectual discipline which the college man has had until his twenty-second year in the artificial and ideal world is after all the best training for the great duties of public life, and that academic training, less by its subject matter than by its methods, is the best possible preparation for practical activity.

"The leading positions in the disposal of the nation are almost entirely in the hands of men of academic training, and the mistrust of the college theorizing spirit has given place to a situation in which university presidents and professors have much to say on all practical questions of public life, and the college graduates are the real supporters of every movement toward reform and civilization."

Who will say that the election of one of the foremost exponents in the world of letters as president of the United States does not have special significance to the college man or woman?

PEARCE ON SOILS

How many of us realize the relations between research and civilization? We are so accustomed to our surroundings as not to appreciate how each item represents a discovery. We need to look at the foundations of our progress once in awhile.

The University of Iowa is the center for the research of the state. Here the future tools of civilization are being forged. What is a mere laboratory experiment today will be in practical use everywhere within ten years. The Sigma Xi society is a foster-mother of progress, aiming not only to encourage research at Iowa but to spread ideas growing out of researches. The public lectures of Sigma Xi are instruments of progress.

One research has been carried forward quietly in our midst, although of the utmost practical value to the state of Iowa. Dr. James N. Pearce, associate professor of physical chemistry, has been studying how the soils of Iowa have arisen, and how their fertility is determined by their histories during the ages. As patriotic Americans, we are interested in food production these days, so we are ready for the message he can give us. Although taking an active part in the chemical societies of state and nation, Dr. Pearce has reserved this message for us of the University.

Professor Pearce will lecture as retiring president of Sigma Xi

Wednesday evening Oct. 17 on "The Soils of Iowa, their Formation and their Properties." The address will be illustrated, and will be given in liberal arts assembly at eight. It is hoped that a subject of such fundamental value to the prosperity of our state will bring out a large audience.

What Others Think

The Daily Iowan will gladly print any communications from students or faculty members. The writer must sign the article to show his good faith in sending it, but no name will be printed if the sender so designates.

IS HE KIDDING?

The best thing about The Daily Iowan in its editorials. Yesterday's subject was an unusual one for a college paper, and the comments were as good as the subject was unusual. The Iowan is to be congratulated for setting forth convictions in strong and forceful expression which leaves no doubt that its policy is for that which is right. The editorials invariably reflect depth of thought, soundness of logic, and breadth of vision.

The recent editorial on liberty bonds was well worthy of reprint in exchanges, and the articles more intimately relating to our campus life have been just as successful. Personally, I turn to the editorials before I read the details of the first-page stories. I believe this to be true of many other readers, faculty and students alike. It is because I have heard favorable expression from professors who have endorsed your editorials, and because I have heard time and again from students, the question "What is the editorial today?" that I take the opportunity through this column to say: All praise to the editorials of The Daily Iowan.
