The secretary of the student body said that the strike will not affect the University in any way.

THE LISTENING POST

AYAW WITH INDIFFERENCE

What has become of the fast loved days when victories were at tended by big mass meetings, both from and brother of students? What has happened to the spirit of the University which in days gone by celebrated victories with the same enthusiasm that attended the triumphs of Indian tribes generations ago? Was the student body lost interest in athletics? Does it care nothing for victory?

Outward appearances would seem to indicate that a mental state of Indifference is pervading the campus this fall. Upon the football field considerable enthusiasm is shown during the course of the game, yet after the contest there is a rush to the dining rooms, to the movies, and the dance. The student body seems distinctly removed from evening mass meetings where jubilant enthusiasm gave way to the motions following a victory, where bandits lift up the fins of hundreds of joyous students; and where members of the team were carried upon the shoulders of ardent admirers. These are days of the past.

The football team returned from Minnesota Sunday morning after defeating the Gophers for the second time in the history of the two school's athletic associations. It was a victory in every Iowa look-pile. Yet there was no demonstration. Fewer students took it as a matter of fact and the toward enthusiasm never reached the earth. A handful of students recognized the victory and paid homage to the victorious team at the train on their arrival in the city.
It was a victory of an unknown importance; yet the appreciation was not acknowledged by the student body. Several thousand students and townpeople would not have been too happy to have welcomed the team home on that occasion.

We are accustomed to lock upon beauty of victory. If the student body expects the football team to continue to do its part, that body must lose its indifference and display a more outward appreciation of the team's victories.

The time to start is today. The next game is Iowa vs South Dakota.
