MENGE'S PLEASURES LARGE AUDIENCE

Violinist Declares That Stage Life in Homemade and Given

Said Meneg in the English violinist who appeared in a concert at the natural science auditorium last night, played an unnumbered and crowd of more than 100 persons.

Miss Menges is said to rank with Kreisler and Heifetz. W. H. Mees, professor of music, said that he appreciated Miss Menges' connexions more than did Kreisler. "My preconceived idea of Kreisler may have been too high and, unless Miss Menges is very young, I was more impressed by her than I had expected to be," he said.

The presentation of her name is ostensibly English, besides Menges states. The "g" is kept.

Reading and anomalies are Miss Menges' favorite directions. It knew her to be a tunnel, six rail, and different a kind of work takes the place of glasses with Menges.

Giving concerts is a monotonous lit, contrary to the idea of many persons. Miss Menges says she is a very different sort of man. The program Miss Menges gave was as follows: Concerto in G minor,

Max Bruch; Scherzo Dances in G minor, De Bussy-Kreisler; Minuet in G, Paderewski-Kreisler; Romance.

Lublinsky, Ted; Beethoven-Lublinsky.

As a solo artist, Miss Menges played Barlow's Gavotte.

While the Ames students are all optimistic enough, there are not many who are predicting either a win or a defeat for the finale. But they are looking forward to real treat when the Cyclones and the Hawkeyes lock horns at Iowa City.

In spite of the side victory over the Kansas Aggies, the Ames men are looking forward to having their team swept away by overconfidence.

The win is attributed to the wonder of the victors than to the brilliant work of the winners.

All the Cyclones are hoping for is a good football day and a dry field allow their plans to materialize.

They have proved that they have demonstrated in the past these games that all they need a dry

IOWA NEWSPAPER MEN ASSEMBLE TODAY
The Republican, Springfield, Mass., one of the widely quoted newspaper writers of the century, will discuss the evolution of the editorial page in advertising, at 3 o'clock.
About fifty prominent newspaper men of Iowa are expected to attend the meeting. Others have sent word that labor shortage prevents their attendance. William R. Mershon, assistant professor of journalism, will preside at the meeting.

Country newspaper reporters will be discussed by Lloyd McCracken of the Mt. Vernon Record, and a round table discussion will be led by Grant L. Carwell of the Horn Butts Publisher of Denison.

Fred Mann of Devil's Lake, Wis., will tell some of his experiences in advertising. He is said to be an immensely busy in a town of 6,000 and he gives advertising full credit for his success.
