wondering whether the students are sick or not as there is a mumps epidemic among the students in the colleges in the city.

Lloyd George, speaking before the house of commons on Tuesday, urged that the allies cease their war because they are not going to win it. Lloyd George said. Secretary Houston of the treasy depart ment expressed his confidence in the European situation in a statement issued on Thursday. Trading in foreign securities by American investors in Europe will be made more difficult as the second world is ended. The proposition submitted by Lloyd George carries much weight. His statement that commerce has a big stake in the second world is certainly true. In Russia, in its present state, it is in a very different world and it will be restored to a normal state, the world must suffer. If trade with this country, if commercial relations will not restore to its rightful place, the allies should do what the students of the college are doing. The second world is to itself as well as to the people of Russia, to know the suggestion of Lloyd George.

Secretary Houston's suggestion, likewise, is a good one. "The solution of these world securities is (unanswerable) the Americans, the people are furnishing capital to Europe at a time of Europe's need, and are giving this help in just the way that Europe helped America in the period of America's growth and in some monetary troubles," he said.

That bit of argument is good, but that the American citizens are furnishing the necessary funds. Bennett of America does not think in these terms but the fact that Barton includes the help he has given, 10,000,000,000 from America since the creation was signed, without through private sources, indicates that American bankers believe in Europe.

Europe and Russia are worth saving and if we care for those in the panoply. America should step into the breach. And America, no doubt, will.
