Campus agitation of the honor system is in order. The Iowa Women for Full of Student Sentiment has closed the Iowa Women for Full of Student Sentiment.

The honor system is not new. Many institutions have adopted the policy of the professor being absent from the classroom during examinations and of placing the students on their honor of personal honesty and in order to report on the dishonesty of others. In some colleges it is reported that some institutions have adopted this plan.

Do the students of Iowa want the honor system in place for the two years and pharmacy two years.

Should there be a poll of student sentiment in regard to the honor system in place for the two years and pharmacy two years.

Hawkeyes to Play Purdue Here Friday in Return Game

Two Big Ten Games Remain On Schedule—Also To Play At Ames

Undaunted by the disastrous out- come of the Indiana trip, the Iowa basketball squad has arrived home to begin preparations for the re- maining lap of the season. Two Big Ten conference games remain on the Hawkeye schedule and a return contest with Ames, the latter billed to be played at Ames. Purdue comes to Iowa City Friday for a return game and it is with the idea of re- turning revenge, that Coach Ankeny will strive to win this contest.

Religion from Mothers; Politics from Fathers
By F. E. Horack

It has often been said that we borrow our religion from our mothers and our politics from our fathers. It is perhaps true that most people have accepted the conclusions of their ancestors in both religion and politics. But from time to time the bases of these conclusions must be re-examined, and it is often found that the conclusions made by the fathers and grandfathers are not applicable nor valid under the circumstances in which we now live.

Therefore it has been said for a woman that she was a democrat before she was born, and a republican after she was born. Both have traditions. Both believe war is a disease. Both believe war causes wars, organizations interested, enlisted in their support. But these interests are in the main the interest of getting or keeping the influence, the votes of the voters and politicians, points of political principles, and points of political practice, have all but been thrown away, but have been stripped away by the process of events, fulfilling some principles, blotting out others. All have been lost, last minute or the idea of it.

"Parties go on contending because their members have formed habits of joint action, and have contracted habits and prejudices. It has been said that the party is the most intense and most active kind of association, and that the leaders influence the habits and plans of attack on these prejudices. The American party has new vote, because they have no bill the right of free assembly, and to the public.

When James Bryce wrote his American commonwealth in 1884 he had the party, and the party leader, and the party influence., and he finally came to the conclusion that: "Neither party has, at a party, anything definite to say about the issues; neither party has any clear-cut principles, any distinctive principles. Both have traditions. Both believe war is a disease. Both believe war causes wars, organizations interested, enlisted in their support. But these interests are in the main the interest of getting or keeping the influence, the votes of the voters and politicians, points of political principles, and points of political practice, have all but been thrown away, but have been stripped away by the process of events, fulfilling some principles, blotting out others. All have been lost, last minute or the idea of it."
