THE TELIENIZING POST

Personals with the slightest sense of humor can find much mirth in glancing through style books of a few years ago. In looking through one with a young woman recently, she nearly had convictions when the picture of a woman appeared, whose roles were not covered by great roles of hair.

The "Bowling 300" howled about everything at its pop meeting Wednesday night. Pat Wrick, wreath and ladyfash, "let out" his howl over the claim that the bowling 300 had been defrauded.

The identity of the Engineers' Interfraternity in the misleading women's contest consists mainly of a mystery, but will be kept by "Bela" the beautiful Bellacopier, at the polls.

Constitution prevailed on the campus for a while on Wednesday when it was reported that 153 women of the University had voted for themselves in the "Big Beat Ladies'" contest. The report was untrue, of course. Only 18 boys entered their names.

General Pershing announced that he will seek the republican nomination for president. One of those showers of events is going to ebb from the military department after the base conventions.

If Florence Sargent is really seeking pretty, reputable for his Broadway, beautiful Mollie from the college women of the state, the women are a bit late. They should have been here during the winds of March.

Whenever a political leader foresees newspapers which are anxious to win his heart by his silence in their favor. His heart was his by his silence in their favor. His heart was his by his silence in their favor. He has been waiting for his heart.
