THE LISTENING POST

Only when sentiment is applied appropri-ately does it become beautiful. If a day is one of the few days in the year when sentiment is sym-phonied with the beautiful.

The moon rose on a deep crimson citrus over the stage when we were something to make it blush.

Whenever a woman be a fair co-er or not, tails of the others she has been found the moon thing to make it scatter a grain of salt.

The dean of know should alarm themselves if their institution is not the same. The American Legion was present, paddling a young man up the Iowa river in a cloister a few evenings ago.

A recent editorial on "dandies and their punch" reminds us of a time when we large green women from a front yard and then took them around to a meeting and told them to her for twenty cents.

There were the days when twenty cents in two steps. For instance, a small boy might buy two ice cream cones, a large sack of candy, and a ticket to a meeting for that amount of "spoonfuls."" The Post takes credit for many things, but the fact is that it has never pleased its readers with stuff such as a job. It believes they are capable of peace.

One of the causes of the high cost of clothing is the high cost of the galvanic appliance. This is true, and the Post says, "There are some who are making use of their skirts and their shirts of silk, make them pretty sights; in the advertisements of Vanity Fair. Question arises as to their success. This is not the cause of their high scores. But there is no question of the result. Any woman in those lines is assured of selling a garage as "unsil." It has so much difficulty in getting up from any common citizen for a suit of cheap clothes. M. V. M.

THE MAN ON THE PARTY

It is a peculiar circumstance that in the present capitalistic society we do not say the stress on party affiliations that they use a few years ago. For instance, a man was either a republican, a democrat, a social- ist or a prohibitionist. Witness the change. Ask a man what party he belongs to nowadays. He will say, "I've quit this party business. I vote for the man. I don't care what party he belongs to.

Perhaps this is true of college men of the old school. College men have an interest in that the party should have a broader scope than in life and its problems. Narvaez has said of politics: "Politics is not appealing to the majority of college men.

The reason men are favoring the man rather than the party is because the parties have failed to make good. They have not been in their promises. Their platforms are meaningless, they are not a party on pages of their party and it is a process they have been in power for a cycle or two all the troubles of the party are laid at a door. The time is ripe to prove it. The people have lost faith in both, and now would put their trust in men with records of good public service. This attitude of Mr. Hoover's has been known as his party' platform, and that no notice is all about Hoover and the conservative party. He did not favor many of their per- formances. It is a campaign that would be a republican candidate only on the condition that they put forth a sound constructive platform. It was obvious that Mr. Hoover would have to run on either the republican or democratic platform. It is remarkable that there was considerable discussion as to which party would be taken by Hoover and that for any combination for a new platform from the same party and would be made to a republican candidate only

Woman Student WINS HEART OF MAN WHILE AT FEMININE MEETING

Women's self-government ideal

The Women's Council of the University sends its representative, Madeleine Turner '28, to the convention of Women's Student Governing Associations at Ann Arbor, Mich., but her voice can tell. The following account of the council's representative appeared in Tuesday in the Michigan Daily.

"Leaps out, the W. S. G. A. convention, and a fair delegate from the University of Iowa, combined to bring romance into the social life of a Michigan junior engineer. To make a short story shorter, she came, she saw, and she conquered.

"And now she has returned to her university wearing a diamond on the third finger left, while he remains here to recover from the shock. Perhaps engineers are particular or, maybe she overpowered him; but, at any rate, the very fact that she was a delegate to the Women's Self-Government Association convention should have forewarned him.

"They say that love of first sight is often most lasting, distance lends enchantment, etc. Let the time honored sayings console the poor Junior engineer in his hour of need, and may all others who fear that they are susceptible to the wiles of women be of the W. S. G. A."

The Michigan engineer chances to be a Harry Ward of New City, and that's Miss Turner's home town also. New figure is out for yourself.
