ONE OF THOSE BED ROOM PLAYS IN ONE ACT

The Cast

The Column: A description of whom is unnecessary and so we introduce...—

The Landlady: About thirty-five, with wonderful service to bring home

Time: About three hours and twenty minutes too late to make an eye stitch.

The curtain part revealing a small despondent bed-room. Books are scattered over the floor, and the bed

The Column: A silhouette of a glance is suggested by a few in the furniture above his head

The Column is repeated knocking on the door before the Column sits.)

The Column: Come in! (door opens)

Landlady: Oh! I beg your pardon. I didn't seem to awaken you. I thought you were in school and wanted to break up your noon a bit.

The Column: You thought...you thought I had gone to class?

Landlady: That's it. I wanted to seize the opportunity to break up your noon a bit.

The Column: It hasn't been...up for several weeks has it?

Landlady: No. Not for a long time.

The Column: Well you might just as well let it go for the rest of the time. I'm wearing tuxes for Christmas and I can't have fullез. Life turns over tech is the landlady makes to move to...Is that all?

Landlady: Why no. I beg your pardon. I was about to say that I like to have it. I would be sorry if you would care to sell your alarm clock?

The Column. (Alarmed at the thought of being led into an argument. It is a patent.)Landlady. (Sniffing.) What do you mean? (tactfully)

Landlady: You now that you've...I've asked you if you would you would...I'm thinking of being led into an argument. It is a patent.

The Column: Why are you perfectly welcome to use it if it is frozen. The Landlady. (Looking at him.) Please!...Thank you.

The Column: Just a minute. I have a question I would like to ask you if you don't mind.

Landlady: Yes. You may ask me anything.

The Column: Well. Did you ever do any writing?

Landlady: (Suddenly interested.) Writing? Writing? What do you mean?

The Column: Oh! I mean "literature" and all the rest of it.

Landlady: (Flattered.) What in the world ever caused you to ask that?

The Column: Well I just thought...What do you mean?

Landlady: (In a burst of confidence.) Yes! I write occasional articles in the news. Confidently I have two novels, six plays, sixteen poems, and about twenty-five questions on the road at the present time.

The Column: Yes. I noticed that you always get a lot of mail every day.

Landlady: (After glancing at him for a minute.) Yes but just the same I'm sure a certain number of those envelopes look a copy of my stuff before sending back to me.

The Column. Probably. Just like that.

Landlady: Now that I've told you what you think about it?

CHILDREN WANT TOYS OR DOLLS

T. M. C. A. RAISES $200 FOR THE PERKINS' HOSPITAL GIFT FUND

If the letter to Santa Claus has any effect on local merchants, there will be a great demand for leguminous walks to Iowa City this winter. Practically all of the boys at the Perkins' hospital want watches; many have shoes with holes and some specify watch bands. Most of them want money for taxi rides and make it most popular.

Girls like dolls, and the crippled girls seem to be in no exception. All of the variations of dolls requested would make even the well-known saint unable to find enough to scratch his head in wonder. They took requests, many and various toy dolls. The following is a fair sample of the type of the gifts they have.

Dear Santa:—I want a very big sleeping doll and a set of dishes with a little table, and a little cup and saucer to keep my dishes in. French.

One little girl has four years old with both hips in casts and yesterday that his only wish was for a toy automobile. Another wanted a new necklace with purple ermine in it, and a third wanted a new suit of future clothes.

All of them were happy. The ones who were going home for the winter were especially cheerful, but even the thought of Christmas at home could not make them forget the solicitation which will be put on at the hospital.

The T. M. C. A. has almost completed its campaign for funds. About two hundred dollars has already been raised by the committee. Last year the whole amount raised was $160.

The college of applied science has received about forty dollars for the fund, according to Dean William M. Gage. Professor Helen Child has not yet turned the money over to the committee.

The Quadrangle and several fraternities are conducting a "Help Brother" campaign. Fraternities which have given the following contributions are: Kappa Beta Phi ($10), Delta Upsilon ($2), Sigma Sigma ($1), Theta Xi ($10), Delta Kappa Gamma ($10), Gamma Delta ($1), Sigma Eta Psi ($8), Phi Eta Sigma ($9). Several other fraternities have taken up collections but had not as yet turned them in. Kappa Alpha Psi has been collected from the boxes which were placed in banks and cigar stores. Individual contributions are also welcome.

MATHENATIC SOCIETY TO MEET IN CHICAGO

BOTANY DEPARTMENT WILL ATTEND ANNUAL A. S. S. MEETING

The entire society of botany will attend the annual meeting of the American Association for the Advancement of Science at Chicago, December 23 to 25. According to Prof. Robert W. Hinley, head of the department of botany, this association is composed of members of all the departments of science in the United States and Canada. Twenty-eight societies met at this time.

Professor Hinley and Professor Arnold Hall will both speak at the meeting about the proper conditions under which plants grow.

The following are the papers: "Scheele's Fungi and Iowa Plants," "Notes on the Practice of Botany," and "The Distribution of Photosynthesis.

Other papers will be given by the following: "Relation of the Algae and the Iowa Fungi," "Notes on the Practice of Botany," and "The Distribution of Photosynthesis."
