GRASSFIELD SAYS
MICHIGAN’S UNION IS REAL SUCCESS

"Is the Michigan Union all that the glowing reports claim it to be?" This was the question asked of Ralph G. Grassfield, director of the Iowa Men’s Union, who returned recently from Ann Arbor, Mich., where he spent several days studying Michigan’s union.

"Without any doubt — Yes!" Mr. Grassfield said.

"The Michigan Union is now the central meeting place for the men of the University of Michigan. It is typically and thoroughly a high class men’s club. It has all the recreational facilities to attract and to hold the men of the University. Besides the usual features, the building contains small halls and offices for the use of various campus societies, free of charge, and the skilled quarters, composed of attractive rooms for lodging purposes.

"More than $1,000,000 has been expended in the building up to the present time and as yet it is complete. With the exception of the main dining Room, none of the rooms have been fully decorated and the reading room and the swimming pool are not yet complete. The Union management is seeking funds, now $60,000 necessary to complete and equipe these rooms.

"The Union is in operation and meeting the demands of the students as anticipated. Indications are, however, that before long the magnificent building will become too small, despite the fact that a great many students and even members of the faculty of Michigan branded the Union project as "handmaiden" and scoffed at the idea of such a large structure.

"Every man student in the University is a member of the union. The board of regents paid the $10 membership fee in the Union as a part of their sponsorship. The money is collected by the University and turned over to the union management to be used for the operation of the building.

"No concessions within the Union are given. The ballroom, the barber shop, dining rooms, are under union management. The Union has yielded a small profit, which, with the annual membership dues, results in the expense of operation last year.

"The Union is under the direction of a Board of Governors, composed of alumni, faculty members and students; and also a Board of Directors, composed of students, faculty members and the faculty. The students dominate in the government, for the institution belongs to them.

"Nationally, the women of the University of Michigan feel that the men have the best social and recreational facilities. At the present time a strong movement is under way for a Union building for the women of the University.

"The Union is open for use for all, which in the morning will bring 'chickens' at any time. Breakfast is served in the 'bar' room or cafeteria, and in the main dining room. Lunch and evening dinner are served there."
