MEDICAL CHALLENGE DENTS

Frederick Medlin Challenge Dents

The freshman in the college of medicines issues a challenge to the students in the college of arts. The students want to take place at a date which is to be worked out by a committee of the two colleges.

"We feel that we have material of scientific merit and in a true contest, of the student college," said P. J. Carlson, president of the freshman medical society.

"This success will be tested by some sort of a contest between the two colleges and our results will be ready in the challenge within a few days."

The players connected with the University are: Francis Soppell Al Iowa City, Clyde Smith Al Iowa City, Miss Bertha Linder Sr, instructor of public speaking at the University High School; Miss Florence Clark 72 instructor of English at the Iowa City high school; William E. Hart 73, lawyer; Prof. Edward H. Lauren, of the department of fine arts; Miss Helene Hattner and Ray B. Roberts, of the department of public speaking.

"Milestones" is a play which has held its own popularity since its first production, in London in 1912. It is the story of the customs and differences of three generations, the first act taking place in 1885, and the last act in 1912. Miss Flinton, playing Mrs. Rhead, and Miss Latchem, playing Mrs. Rhead, and Miss Latchem, playing

Working Together

There is only one way by which greater improvement and progress can be accomplished, and that is through co-operation — working together. The greatest good for all usually means the greatest good for each individual, and support to community betterment plans is always desirable if not actually essential.

We are working constantly for a bigger, better, and happier community. Let us all work together. The facilities of this bank are always at the service of the people of Iowa City and Johnson County.

TALK OF WAR AND SCHOOL AND GOLF WITH A SURGEON AND A SIN GER CHEERS A RAINY DAY

A brief hour in conversation with two of the great names in athletics, William James Mayo and Lewis Graveur, does much to relieve the dreariness of a dark and rainy April day.
Both were genuinely glad to en-grave in a little chance to have just completed a review of earlier times for his subjects and the others in the midst of some personal correspondence, and we were soon discussing the war. "The fundamental cause of the war was England's interference to Parthia's inventions in dye," Dr. Mayo, quietly dressed, with calculating eyes and slightly grazed dark, looked out at the drizzling rain doubiously when.
