INQUIRY INTO COAL PROFITS BEGINS TODAY

Protesting Since 1922

The Illinois state government has been accused of being too lenient in its regulation of the coal mining industry. A group of citizens, led by Dr. John Doe, has been organizing protests since 1922, calling for a thorough investigation of the coal companies and their practices. The group has been met with resistance from the mining industry and the state government, but they remain committed to their cause.

Committee Cancels Election in Liberal Arts College

Following a series of protests and demonstrations, the Committee on Elections in the Liberal Arts College has announced the cancellation of the upcoming election. The decision was made after consultation with the administration and in response to concerns about the integrity of the voting process. The students who were planning to run for office have expressed disappointment with the decision, but they have vowed to continue their efforts to improve the college's governance.

DEFENSE IS BUILT FOR ILLINI PLAYS

With the season's game against the University of Illinois just days away, the Illini football team is gearing up for a tough battle. Head coach, Mr. Smith, has been working closely with his players to prepare them for the game. The team has been practicing their offense and defense, and they are ready to take on the challenge.

RABBIT IN PRESERVED "WHITE LION" HEAD

Max Rayfield, 35, of White Lion, and the student football team, gave a stirring performance on the gridiron last Saturday. The day started with a shot at the enemy, and the Iowa offense was mounted as a howitzer.

It's the last chance for the enemies of the state to show their teeth. The defense of the state is maintained by a force of trained soldiers, and the enemy is kept at bay by a strong, well-disciplined army.

The presentation was made by Admiral J. H. G. Miller, who is in charge of the Iowa National Guard. The Iowa National Guard is a strong force, and the enemies of the state will be kept at bay by a strong, well-disciplined army.

THE DAILY IOWAN PLATFORI FOR A GREATER UNIVERSITY OF IOWA

1. Outraged by the smal-scale activities of various organizations.
2. Maintenance of Iowan traditions and customs.
3. Proper status council.
4. Recognition of the extramural as well as program background.
5. Normal life.
6. The University of Iowa where the press was formed and other groups.
7. A change in student attitude which would make an honor system possible.
8. Every student and alumni a member of the Memorial Union.

NO ELECTION TODAY

Not all of the candidates who presented petitions for the offices in the college of liberal arts are to be blamed for the success brought to light by the election committee yesterday. In every doubtful case, the name appearing on the candidate's petition had been forged by none but by one of his candidates. The whole thing represents an assembly of affairs lacking—since a few ambitionists found their way into the election committee, it may be said that all petitions with forged names were to be left out of the contest. A thinly veiled political machine, started by a few hanger-ons, attempted to control the election today, but has been left in the past, but their efforts were too weak and too apparent to the election committee. In justice to the other candidates, it may be said that all petitions with forged names came from this same machine.

An analysis of the petitions offers a good insight into the condition of politics on the campus today. In all, twenty petitions were processed for the sophomore offices. Although the election was supervised over a week ago, an eleventh hour rush was made to circulate petitions Monday night and to the top candidates. Every student with the exception of one belongs to a fraternity or society. As a result of this sort, but its modern adaptation is more likely a role in a Pullman car, with only the fare to pay and a trip for the price at the end of the week. Of course, paying the fare is sometimes an inconvenience, but most things have to be paid for, even the transformed states in last week’s laundry. Education still requires a certain amount of study, but that is almost negligible when put beside that of the days before those books were written, before “prep” schools were allowed, and before electric lights, Waller, and hot showers dowered us.

But a Pullman trip is deep sleep. The seats are too soft, the head rests too comfortably, and the porter, when properly encouraged, too obliging. It is altogether dangerous easy to doze and lose the best part of the journey.

The Signing Board

This column seems to be between the devil and the deep sea. On the left of us is Ye Editor attacking the “buying of votes with votes” in university elections, and on our right is Ye Pop of kindly bombarding Ye Editor. At least that was the situation Tuesday morning.

Just a moment, gentlemen, till we get under way.

The proximity of Ye Pop file us with other vulgar scavengers; we fear for our job. People write to us, asking us to do this, do that, and the answer is no, or for the lack of figures, not.

Among the interesting looks on the publishers’ faces was a matter of themselves work by the Iowa City chief of police, “The Briefs of Jur: Walking: Their Prevention and Cure.” This book, treating the subject scientifically as it does, and being colored in non-technical language, has made the circulation of copies everywhere.

On a less pressure that Mr. Harry Broun has pronounced it a masterpiece of the kind.

Monday’s Chicago Tribune carried a picture of four members of the American girls’18, 1922

During the course of the week, it was revealed that the meet was already over.

Our finish for accuracy was readily joined when we read an article mentioning “Professor Samuel Sloan.”

Notion to Iowa copy readers; Professor Sloan’s given name is not Samuel but Samuel.

—On another page of the Daily Iowan will be found a complete list of the candidates, a record of their achievements here, their platform, and their qualifications. If any of Iowa alumni. As a bit of public notice, we consider that unqualified.
