YALE EXPLAINS INVITATION TO IOWA

All Yale is said to have repudied the announcement that an invitation had been sent to Iowa to come to the Bowl for another game next fall. An official statement which appeared is the editorial editor of the United Press, in the exclusive of the University of Iowa, Lowell, Harvard, and Princeton and Yale, and the Westchester intersectional games, there much light on the situation which Yale is in. The report was in the paid by the Board of Athletics with Yale at the close of the football season. Within his Big Three presidents' agreement does not permit Yale, Harvard, or Princeton to take "long or expensive trips" it does not forbid other teams to take long and expensive trips to play them. In other words, if Iowa is to schedule a game with the Bulldogs next year, it must be played in the Yale Bowl and not on Iowa Field as many Hoyas fans had wished.

The movement as it appeared in the Yale Press follows:

"The announcement today of Yale's invitation to Iowa to play here again next fall is not of avail to us in any event." It is stated that Yale's invitation is in no way binding if the game is not played.

The Harvard-Princeton-Yale presidents' agreement, as presented today, rules out a trip by the Bulldogs.

"It was not the purpose of the agreement to prevent any conference college from playing interstate football. It was only to prevent the cost of interstate football from being borne by the students."

"The change of heart is mainly due to the fact that Yale has not been able to find a suitably located stadium.

"In any event, it is desirable that the question of interstate football be decided by the conference itself and not by the presidents of the three universities."
