Because of the bountiful qualities of taffeta—this springtime fabric was chosen to portray these models bound to silhouette, with sleeves full and wide, and bodices snugly fitted. The graceful charm of siluetness is disclosed in models that are alluringly draped or circular in silhouette with lowered waist line, upon fronts, trains and even more hemlines. Tiny sleeves, low collars, gold braid, silk flowers, pleaded yokes, and metallic ornaments contribute their share in emphasizing "Individuality" in each of the many models.

FRIDAY

A packet arrived at Walter A. Ide, Jr.'s office with the notice that is made in his office by the clerks in the office. He stated that all the clerks in his office are responsible for the work given them. The latter work is to be done on time and made to be correct. This is to confirm to all the representatives who are responsible for the work done in the office. This will be done at the office on time and made to be correct.
The methods of the college of com-merce of the University were recently the subject of an article by Mr. Fred G. White, which appeared in the Journal of Commerce, New York City. Mr. White himself states the fact that Iowa is the most conspicuous example of a college of commerce conducted on a national liberal plan. The majority of the commerce schools of the country are run on the practical plan by which the student is instructed in the problems of business by the case method or by a system of apprenticeship. Mr. White has based his article on a survey of surveys of various commerce schools of the country. He says that the University of Iowa has been successful in the application of the liberal system by giving the student a knowledge and understanding of the different business activities and that this results in students who have a greater adaptability and versatility.

CO-EDUCATION
GRIPS COLLEGE OF COMMERCE

Has More Women Students Than Any Other Professional College

By Hazel Freeman

Co-education is "nothing" in Iowa's professional colleges and may result in women not always playing the equal

The "educational partnership" is in college of commerce may take as a criticism.

The college of commerce in the University boasts that women answer to his call will contribute to the commerce, number of its members, as only the ordinary member is the highest fifteen.

"Co-education" in commerce organized for a number of years ago, and the present time is the beginning of a news of research on personal management at New York City. Three business graduates were given the honor of a business as entertainment. The third and last: "many technical colleges are going to be co-educational," he said.

BUNGE STARTS LECTURES FOR COMMERCIAL YEAR

Required Only Seven Years To Go From Department To College

Noted Economists Give Annual Talks To Commerce College

Noted business men and women from all parts of the country and professions from other colleges brought here by regular interval of the 1931 students this fall for the sessions of "Business in the Making of Tomorrow," these business men and women have presented a great help in proving the commerce students with the peripheral world and giving them fact and fiction information concerning many phases of business.

This fall, 1931, graduated the number of commerce college organized in 1875, Chicago, spoke last year the lecture describing the new work of the commerce department of the modern bank showing the latest ideas in banking.

This year, the series of lectures by A. D. Barnes, reached the American and British banks and merchants, member or editor, here, "Business

95 PER CENT
GAIN IS MADE IN COMMERCIAL YEAR

In the college of commerce, the number of students increased by 95 per cent, with an attendance of 115 students in 1924-25, and 117 graduates compares with 26 of commerce organized for a number of years ago, and the present time is the beginning of a news of research on personal management at New York City. Three business graduates were given the honor of a business as entertainment.
COMMERCE CLUB CLAIMS TITLE OF MOST REPRESENTATIVE GROUP

By Mrs. Schwartz

The Commerce club is the most representative society in the college of Commerce, excluding as it does all the extra membership of the college. Every student working for the degree of Bachelor of Science in commerce is eligible to become a member of the club and no member on the payment of a small fee. The Commerce club corresponds to the college of law students' association, and the same rules of admission apply to all commercial students.

In the past, the Commerce club has met with success in fostering the varied events that have taken place in the college and has maintained that tradition of pride and success that has been the charge of the Middletown.

Women who have been on the campus for more than the past two years will not be found among the current officers. At the recent meeting of the Commerce club, the following were elected: President, Mrs. M. H. Beach; Vice-president, Mrs. C. M. Beach; Secretary, Mrs. M. A. Reid, and Treasurer, Mrs. C. M. Reid.

SUGGESTION TO AUTHORS.

A very close and careful little task would be to use up a few well-rounded (or elliptical) phrases through the beginning of your story, and then at the end repeat these same sentences word for word. The effect on the author is so strong that you may feel that you are sharing your work, and that you are becoming a part of it.

Another advantage of this little trick is that it emphasizes the fact the reader should know on this page, which you may have mentioned before and throughout the story, you have finally wound up at the end of the chapter, with the important rights of their clients.

And there is room for the college graduate in the business and commercial world. Perhaps it is not the world which sells products most noticeable, and the inclination is to believe that much of the progress achieved at present is due to the ability and application of effects which they have prepared in the whole field of commerce, for the world they can undertake. It is, perhaps, the business and administrative business which have been raised to a higher ethical level that the purely professional people have lost their former appeal.

It simply depends upon how much money a student has.

“Young men are becoming more and more acquainted with the value of life insurance. They are learning that it helps to lift them from the paralyzing fear of being alone, and it is increasingly more people who are taking out life policies because it is necessary,” said Dr. T. D. Bower. “Men have found time in trying to live insurance, protecting for their families, their business and their old age when their earning power shall have diminished.”

Women do not have the same responsibility to take care of the insurance.

They are on the whole carry very little for themselves. This is the great result of unique protection. Protection afforded considerably general policy and protection to their household needs, ranging from three to few for thousands. However, this policy has been properly understood, it is being customarily offered for the defraying of the interest when the family is not satisfied, except in the case of professional students who often carry their own instruments on their business.

VARSITY SHOWS SPEED IN FINAL PRACTICE WORK

Northwestern Works Out On Hawkeye Floor; McKenzie May Play

A snappy, aggressive offensive drill last night in which the Old Gold players displayed more spirit than has been in evidence all week ends basketball practice for the last Northwestern games tonight at 7:30.

Before the drill, the players shot baskets, practiced passing, shooting and dodging. Most of the tosses were made from beyond the foul circle, and the percentage of baskets was good.

Point and Finkle especially made most of their long baskets. Practice continued mostly in tipoff and layup baskets, practiced passing, dribbling. Played a slow careful game that when compared with other leading Big Ten teams, will stand even with Wisconsin in strength of the Boilermakers.

In general, the Northwesterners are getting better and better. McKenzie, Northwestern’s center, three goals left with the game tonight and he played on the varsity clout. If the Huskies defeat Northwestern they will still stand with Wisconsin in the conference. Williams does not play; practice will continue the next week at Wisconsin.

The Purple team arrived in Iowa City yesterday, and practiced after the Hawkeyes had finished their drills.

Northwestern’s captain, was with the team and will probably play tomorrow. Reports are current that he is still weak from the attack of chills that kept him out of the Michigan game, but that he will play against Iowa if he is needed. His appearance last night, however, seems to indicate that he is in shape to start the game against the Vikings.

In a game that should be an easy victory for the Wolverines, Captain and Capron are expected to be able to get in at least part of this game. Practice also meets Chicago for the varsity, a game that should give the Northwesterners a glimpse of the Ball State, when compared with other leading conference teams.

Coach Sam Barry has warned the team to watch out for Wisconsin, Iowa’s opponent and Monday night. According to reports from Northwestern, Carnegie would have beaten Wisconsin if they had made a few more of their own shots.

Northwestern’s captain, McKenzie, if he plays, the game, will make his first appearance in a game of this magnitude. He plays point, but is the leading scorer on the Purple team. He plays a game somewhat like what Shrack old last night, breaking down the floor and out of the basket. Patterns is one of the best guards in the conference, and will probably keep the Northwesterners out of the game against Iowa. Iowa read wins the game tonight and we keep on for another place. If the Hawkeyes defeat Northwestern they will stand even with Wisconsin in the conference.

If the Hawkeyes defeat Northwestern they will stand even with Wisconsin in the conference. Williams does not play; practice will continue the next week at Wisconsin.

The Purple team arrived in Iowa City yesterday, and practiced after the Hawkeyes had finished their drills.

Northwestern’s captain, was with the team and will probably play tomorrow. Reports are current that he is still weak from the attack of chills that kept him out of the Michigan game, but that he will play against Iowa if he is needed. His appearance last night, however, seems to indicate that he is in shape to start the game against the Vikings.

In a game that should be an easy victory for the Wolverines, Captain and Capron are expected to be able to get in at least part of this game. Practice also meets Chicago for the varsity, a game that should give the Northwesterners a glimpse of the Ball State, when compared with other leading conference teams.

Coach Sam Barry has warned the team to watch out for Wisconsin, Iowa’s opponent and Monday night. According to reports from Northwestern, Carnegie would have beaten Wisconsin if they had made a few more of their own shots.
