HAWKEYES DOWN MICHIGAN BY 20-18 SCORE

IOWA ENTRIES BREAK TWO RECORDS AT ILLINOIS

MILE RELAY TEAM SETS NEW MARK

Captain Eric Wilson, in Spectacular Finish, Lowers 300-yard Dash Time

By Francis J. Weber.
(By special wire to Daily Iowan)

Urbana, Ill., March 3.—The Iowa mile relay team and Capt. Eric Wilson of the Iowa team ran true to form here today and copied first places in their events, besides lowering their former carnival records. Wilson won his heat in :31 4-5, cutting two-fifths of a second off the old record, and the relay team took :01 2-5 seconds off its former record and turned in the time of 3:26.

Wilson, who had just run two heats of the 300-yard dash, ran last on the relay team which had little difficulty in winning over a fast field. Morrow, starting for Iowa, in the outside lane, got away to a bad start but was catching up to the Chicago man, who was in the lead, when he passed the baton to Noll, who caught up with and passed the Chicago runner. Brookins, starting in the lead, was never headed and Wilson finished the race fifteen yards ahead of the Chicago runner.

Wilson ran a pretty race in the 300-yard dash, passing all his opponents in the last turn and sprinting home a twenty-yard winner. Charlie Brookins, who last year won the seventy-five yard dash, finished second in this event, and Crawford was third in the high hurdles. The four-mile relay team finished last, and in the medley race Iowa finished fourth.

Eight carnival records were broken here today. Besides the records which the two Iowa men lowered, Michigan broke records in the 100-yard dash, shot put and broad jump, while three college records were broken. The seventy-five yard dash and hurdle records were both tied.

Cedar Rapids high school, although they got away to a bad start, finished second in the high school mile relay. Cuhel, the anchor man, made up most of the ground which had been lost.

Wisconsin Beats Minnesota; Use Two Entire Fives

(By United Press)

Madison, Wis., Mar. 3.—Wisconsin defeated Minnesota here tonight 36 to 10. The Minnesota quintet didn't seem to be functioning for they couldn't handle the ball with speed or accuracy on the few occasions they secured it.

After winning the game in the first half 22 to 6, Coach Meanwell sent in an entire new five against the Gophers.

Babson Tactics Fall Short When Dartmouth Man Is Compared With Iowa Man, Says Former Hanoverian

By Malcolm B. Ronald

Photographs taken "a la Babson" of the Dartmouth man and the Iowa man fail to show many of the differences between the two. There are also some similarities which are not made visible by statistical photography.

Most of the differences in the men are the result of the differences in the nature of the institutions which the men attend. On the whole, there seems to be more difference between Dartmouth college and the University of Iowa than there is between the students.

The writer has attended Dartmouth for a year and a half, and the University of Iowa only since the beginning of this semester, so the differences which are noticeable to me may be only the most superficial. The most striking difference to me was in the attitude toward freshmen.

10 Rules for Freshmen

At Dartmouth the freshman is put to work beating rugs as soon as he arrives. After the year is officially started he dons a pea green peanut hat which gives the most striking countenance an altogether vapid appearance. Ten rules are laid down which he must obey. He must not cut across the campus. He must not smoke on the streets or in any public place. He must not swear. He must not wear sweaters, or any type of sport clothes. Nor is he allowed to attend dances in or around Hanover.

If any freshman considers these rules lightly he soon learns his mistake. An organization known as The Green Key which is composed of fifty men with strong arms takes up his case. The freshman is told to assume the angle and learns that pa's razor strap was a feeble form of discipline compared with a paddle. He also learns that the ten rules are to be obeyed.

There is no personal abuse. The cases of refractory freshmen are taken up at the regular meeting of the Green Key and th punishment given in an official fashion. The theory involved is that the boy who comes to Dartmouth with a record as an athlete and big man at Exeter needs to learn that he is just as insignificant a factor in the college life as some country boy from an obscure high school. The plan works well because while it may cause some humiliation to the Exeter man, the boy from the backwoods feels quite flattered to find himself the object of so much attention.

Fresh Revolt

The extent to which these rules would be enforced was tested last March 28 when the freshman class in a body engineered a revolt. On that morning promptly at quarter of eight the freshmen rushed forth from every dormitory, clad in bright colored sweaters with cigarettes in their mouths and rushed across the campus to chapel. The sophomores all came out after chapel they met the entire sophomore class, and a pitched battle took place. Sweaters were torn from the freshmen, they were beaten and knocked down and dragged through mud puddles. All of this was not done without some casualties.

BOWMAN, FORMER PRESIDENT, LAUDS DEVELOPMENT OF MEDICAL COLLEGE

"The University of Iowa has accomplished a wonderful feat in building up an educational institution that is known throughout the country, one of the most remarkable features being development of one of the finest medical colleges of the world in such a small town," said President John G. Bowman of the University of Pittsburgh, and former president of the University of Iowa, who made a hurried visit to Iowa City yesterday from Chicago where he was attending a medical conference.

"It is my earnest hope that the student body of the university will perpetuate this progressive spirit," President Bowman continued. "If every student of the university would put some one thing across in as big a way the fame of the University of Iowa would soon outshine any other institution. One can not expect a medical student to become a great engineer or any individual to win renown in a number of fields but it is possible for every individual to do one thing better than it has ever done before. I sincerely hope that every student will accept this responsibility, realize that he is playing a great game, carrying the ball, and that it is up to him not to fumble but to get the ball over the goal. Too many seek only to get by the requirements and are satisfied with mediocrity.

"Iowa has held a warm place in my heart and always will. It was here that I attended school, and it is this institution that I have idealized. Of course I am very fond of my present connections, the comparison may be best expressed by the story of an Old Scotchman who was about to die. When asked where he wished to be buried he replied, 'Place me between Lizzie and Annie and a wee bit toward Annie.'

"My one regret in my hurried visit is that I have been unable to meet all of my old friends, and spend all the time I wish with them. This, however seems to be impossible."

Surgeon Saves Life of Boy by Sewing Up Wound in Heart

A recent issue of the Atlanta Journal, of Atlanta, Georgia, tells of a remarkable operation performed Monday February 12, at the Grady hospital of that city by Dr. W. R. Smith. The operation, which was performed on a young negro boy, Glenn Fremann, consisted of lifting the boy's heart from its normal position and sewing up a knife wound made in the vital organ.

The patient who was stabbed by an angered negro, was rushed to the Grady hospital, where he was immediately placed upon the operating table. Making a triangular incision over his fifth rib, Dr. Smith removed three inches of the rib, made an inch and a half incision in the pericardium, the fibrous sack that surrounds the heart up through the incision in the pericardium, sewed up the wound in the right ventricle and then replaced the heart in its normal position.

The wound in the ventricle was so large that five stitches were needed to close the gap. Following each stitch the heart had to be replaced in its sack so that it might resume its normal function, keeping up the constant though depleted blood flow through the body. The morning following the operation Dr. Smith reported the negro in excellent condition, and stated that he would suffer few ill effects from his close skirmish with death.

UNIVERSITY HIGH WINS IN DISTRICT TOURNAMENT

Muscataine, Ia., March 3.—University High, Iowa City, romped away with the district tournament here by defeating the local high school five by the score of 29 to 20 and beating the Iowa City high team 25 to 20 in the finals. Both Iowa City teams fought an uphill battle, showing unexpected strength in their early games but each giving evidence of their fatigued condition when they clashed in the finals. It was a close game all the way with University high under the leadership of Capt. Gordon Phillips showing a superior brand of teamwork.

MALLORY, ALPS CLIMBER, WILL GIVE LECTURE

English Scientist Comes March 12 To Speak On Effort Made To Scale Everest

The events of the daring attempt of the Royal Geographic Society of England to reach the summit of Mount Everest in India, the world's highest point, will be fully described by George Leigh Mallory one of the leaders of the expedition on March 12 when he comes here on the University lecture course.

Mr. Mallory, who is an English university man of scientific attainments, has been renowned, for some years of a mountain climber, having scaled some of the loftiest peaks in the Alps. Because of his knowledge of high altitudes, he was selected for the expedition which was sent out to India in last May by the Royal Geographic Society and the Alpine Club of England with the object of reaching the summit of Mt. Everest.

At the request of the Royal Geographic Society, Mr. Mallory has consented to visit America for a brief tour, during which he will deliver his graphic lecture entitled "Climbing Mount Everest."

This lecture will be one of the most interesting of the present season and will be something different since Mr. Mallory is a man notable in the scientific field. The story of how this party of heroic men—all experienced mountain climbers and equipped with every appliance that science could devise—succeeded in reaching the unprecedented altitude of 27,235 feet above sea level, forms the substance of Mr. Mallory's lecture which will be illustrated with a series of stereopticon views made from actual photographs obtained while the ascent was in progress.

Mr. Mallory, who was among those who reached the highest altitudes, not only gives a full account of the famous climb, but also tells of the remarkable experiences of the expedition while in Tibet, the start having been made from Phari-Dzong in that country. Buddhist hermits and nuns were found to be living on the mountainside in solitary retirement, most of whom had never seen white men before. The explorers were shown many prehistoric relics, including the "Forbidden Temple" containing a colossal figure of Buddha fifty feet high covered with precious stones.

Since last October Mr. Mallory has delivered his lecture to immense audiences in England. Because of the profound interest of the subject and the wide publicity that the work

BARRIERS WIN ELEVENTH GAME IN LAST MINUTE

Funk's Free Throws, Janse's Long Basket Tighten Hold on First Place

(By United Press)

By Special Wire to The Daily Iowan
Ann Arbor, Mich., March 3.—The University of Iowa basketball team fought its way to a 20 to 18 victory over the Michigan basketball quintet here tonight, and practically assured itself of a clean slate for the season. It was the most thrilling game ever seen in Waterman gymnasium, and at no time was the outcome anything but dubious. Michigan lead at half time 10 to 9, following three baskets in a row by Haggerty, and got away to a four point lead with the second half barely started, but continued fouling by the Wolverines gave Funk an opportunity to bring his team to an equal basis. It was the ability of this man to cage free throws that beat Michigan. Ely, Wolverine center, made but two out of eight attempts while Funk made ten points for the Hawkeyes in fourteen trials. Michigan outplayed their rivals almost from the outset gaining a fusillade of shots at the basket, eight of which were successful while Iowa could loop but five. Too many fouls and too much Funk at the foul line were too much for the Wolverines. With the score tied at 18 all, and but one minute to play, Janse dropped in a long one that won the game. Paper of Michigan was poised for a clear shot under the basket at the final gun was fired.

ORIENTAL DECORATIONS FEATURE PAN-HEL PARTY

Amid oriental decorations which gave quite a contrast to the March rain and wind outside members of the men's Pan-Hellenic enjoyed their formal dance at the men's gymnasium last night. Th gayly colored streamers which harmonized well with the delicate party gowns converted the athletic floor into a great Arabian tent. The Arabian costumes of the orchestra blended into the artificial surroundings. Booths resembling doorways to desert tents and decorated with the colors of the various fraternities surrounded the floor.

The fraternities which are members of the Pan-Hellenic council are: Beta Theta Pi, Alpha Tau Omega, Delta Tau Delta, Kappa Sigma, Phi Delta Theta, Phi Kappa Psi, Sigma Alpha Epsilon, Sigma Chi and Sigma Nu.

About two hundred couples participated in the affair.

HOSPITAL QUARANTINE WILL BE REMOVED

The quarantine which was placed on the University Hospital for flu last Monday will be removed Monday morning and patients will again be received. Although quite a few of the nurses have been having the disease, there is a general improvement.

The influenza epidemic seems to be dying out, says Dr. William J. McDonald, student health director, but there are several new cases of scarlet fever.

Ames sent here for doctors and nurses to care for the large number of patients there. Nurses and doctors could not be spared from here. However, six senior medics were sent to help them.

NOVELISTS SON IN BAD

David Sinclair, son of the novelist, Upton Sinclair, is the center of a "free speech" storm at the University of Wisconsin. Young Sinclair and a fellow student, J. H. Brooks, put a "sting" in an unauthorized publication, aimed at the faculty. They are threatened with suspension.

ANNA CASE FAILS TO FIND IOWA AUDIENCE 'CORN FED,' SAYS IT'S INSPIRING

"That's what I want to tell you!" Miss Case exclaimed when asked what she thought of the large audience of university people who heard her in her most delightful concert last Friday night in the men's gymnasium. "They were so inspiring. When I went through the door, indicating the entrance to the platform I wondered where the voice was to come from, for I was very tired, but when I caught my first glimpse of those people smiling to greet me, it was so refreshing."

Some one of the little group of admirers whose privilege it was to meet the artist ventured the suggestion that Iowa audiences had been accused of being more or less "corn fed." "Oh no!" she expostulated, "not a bit cornfed. I like to sing before Iowa audiences. Tonight I felt that I was appearing before musicians. They seemed very appreciative. It was a pleasure to sing for them."

She was much amused when told that opinion expressed by many of the men and women in her audience was quite as unanimous and emphatic that she was "easy to look at" as that she had a beautiful voice. "I wish all the boys outside could have come in," she smiled, "I heard a small voice from one of the open windows call out, 'Hello Anna', and felt that out there in the dark he had the advantage of me."

She praised Iowa audiences further, simply and sincerely, commenting on their good attention and intelligent reception of good music. Quickly she sketched the audience to which she had once sung, in which every one coughed, rustled their programs, shifted their positions noisily, and whispered to each other. Children romped up and down the aisle, and there were many disturbing factors to make it difficult for her to sing best to please them.

"But Iowa audiences aren't a bit like that. I have sung in Des Moines six times, and always enjoy being there and look forward to returning."

Miss Case sang here for the first time last Friday. She was assured of the pleasure she brought her hearers and the very favorable impression she made upon them. "I'm very glad if I did," she said gratefully, "I surely liked them. Sort of a mutual admiration society then, isn't it? I hope they liked me enough so that they will invite me to sing for them again sometime."

TO IMPORT CAMEL FOR MECCA PARADE

Will Use New Form of Coue's Auto Suggestion As Feature

A real camel will be imported as a feature of the engineer's parade on the 17th of March. It is expected to arrive in Iowa City next Saturday, and will be only one of the many novelties introduced in the Mecca celebration.

Over sixty stunts or floats will make up the parade, each section of students in the college contributing its share. The features planned will vary from those put on by two or three men, to some requiring the largest size delivery trucks. The exact nature of most of the stunts is not known, but the engineers promise the razz to all of the other colleges. Some attention will be paid to such affairs as the Law Jubilee, the All-udent Celebration, the April Follies, and the Mart. There will also be take-offs on college "stuff", and national and inter-national celebrities. A new form of auto-suggestion a la Doctor Coue will be one of the specialties.

Mystery surrounds one big feature of the parade, which is said to be the establishing of a new tradition by the Senior Engineers, a tradition which they promise will completely overwhelm those of other senior colleges.

Colonel Morton C. Mumma will act as marshall of the parade and the Engineer's band will furnish the music.

HOLM IS CARDINAL SHORTSTOP HOPE

Former Iowa Three-Sport
Star May Play With Hornsbys' Team

Roscoe "Waddie" Holm is showing up well at the spring training camp of the St. Louis Cardinals. The St. Louis Globe-Democrat gave the former Iowa freshman athlete the head line on a recent issue of the sport sheet. Matin Haley, sports critic, hails Holm as the best looking prospect at the Cardinal camp, and the probable shortstop on the some St. Louis team with Roger Hornsby, home run champion, Bill Doak, and other diamond celebrities of the Mound City.

The Globe-Democrat correspondent is very much impressed with "Waddies" physical makeup, the way he handles the ball, and his throw to the bases after fielding hard hit balls. He also compares Holm with Milton Stock, famous third baseman for the Cardinals for the past several years.

Holm attended the University of Iowa last year, during his stay he made a reputation for himself as an athlete, winning three numerals in three major sports—football, basketball, and baseball. He was declared ineligible to participate in conference athletics because of professional competition.

BABSON TACTICS FAIL IN COMPARISON OF IOWA AND DARTMOUTH MAN

ualities among the sophomore class but the sophomores clearly had the best of things when Palaeopitus which is the governing student body finally stopped the riot. There were twenty-two students confined to the hospital, and hundreds of black eyes and bruised faces as a result of the conflict, and it was definitely proved that freshman rules can be enforced.

Diverse Types at Dartmouth

At Iowa the attitude is one of fear that the freshmen's feelings may be hurt. This condition of affairs is a result of the conditions in the institution. Freshmen coming here are not of such widely divergent types, and there is not the necessity of a process for leveling, that there is at a place like Dartmouth where the students are drawn from many types of prep schools and all sections of the country.

Another difference which may seem trivial but is not, is the fact that Iowa is co-educational and Dartmouth is not. Hanover, where the college is located, is in the backwoods of New Hampshire. Outside of those connected with the college in some capacity and the students there are about 300 people in the town. A student goes to Hanover and he will in most cases go for a month without even talking to a woman of any age. There are about a dozen girls in the town whom a student would consider worthy of his attention and they are the property of football managers, class presidents, and other celebrities.

After four years of that a man is apt to be rather boorish when in the company of women. Whereas at Iowa if a man does not get his fill of social polish it is his own fault.

As the college was founded in 1769 it has a wealth of traditions behind it which are absent at Iowa, but the average undergraduate does not spend his time ruminating upon traditions, so the difference is unimportant.

The chief difference in the men is derived from Dartmouth's isolated location. The college lives within itself and there is no dating to interfere, friendships are made and cemented to a degree which is not possible in most places.

All students live either in a dormitory or in a fraternity house. The majority live in "dorms". The democracy of Dartmouth has been carefully guarded and the growth of fraternities was met by a rule prohibiting more than fifteen men to reside in a fraternity house. They are also prevented from eating at the houses by a college rule. These provisions have met the problem of preventing the development of fraternities into cliques which prevent a man from knowing anyone but his own brothers.

Day Starts at 7:45

The day starts at 7:45 a. m. when the chapel bells begin to ring and the students turn out for a short service. The attendance to the service is kept up by a rule requiring a given number of attendances each semester. After chapel the Dartmouth man eats breakfast if he hasn't an eight o'clock class. If he has then he has to start his day earlier. The morning is occupied with classes and studying, and on some days there will probably be an afternoon class. There is nothing to do except go to Hanover's one movie house, "The Nugget" so nearly everyone is engaged in some extra curriculum activity.

In the evening numerous crowds gather in rooms for "bull sessions." The conversation in these sessions is a variety of subjects, ranging from the nature of God to athletics, and finally winds up with a series of reminders, such as: "Do you remember that night in the Brunswick when you had that smooth woman—" That night is then discussed, until it is exhausted and another night is taken up.

Weed-end Trips Are "Perades"

Whenever a student can raise the necessary money which is probably one a month for the average, a week end trip is taken to Boston, Smith college, or New York. These trips are the high lights in the college year and are designated as perades.

Last fall in his opening address President Hopkins started a controversy which has spread to educational centers over the entire country when he made a plea for an "Aristocracy of Brains". He said too many men are coming to college, and that it would be necessary to cut down the number and include only those who were of such a calibre that they would benefit from a college education. He brought out the idea that a college education is a privilege not a right.

Whatever the ideals of those in charge may be, it seems to me that Dartmouth is no nearer to being an aristocracy of brains than the University of Iowa, is today.

Every year there are between two and three thousand applicants for admission to Dartmouth, but only five hundred, can be allowed to enter, as the number of students in the college is limited to two thousand. An elaborate selective process has been devised to decide whom to exclude, and whom to admit.

Plan Not Feasible Here

At Iowa no one can be excluded because the university is supported by taxes and must educate anyone who can pass the entrance requirements. However, those in charge are striving to make the education that a man obtains at Iowa a good education. The fact that they are responsible to people does not prevent them from demanding a high grade of work from the student. They have done that and the result is that the standard of scholarship is as high here as it is at Dartmouth. There a man must be of a certain degree of intelligence to get in. Here he must have that same degree of intelligence to stay in. The large number of those who departed recently is adequate proof of that fact.

Considered from the point of view of general intelligence and personality, the same result is obtained. There are a few more men in proportion to the number in the school at Dartmouth who are interested in literary pursuits and there are a large number of excellent bridge players.

But the average Dartmouth man is no more fitted to be a member in an aristocracy of brains than an Iowa man. The boy who comes from among the tall timbers of Vermont or New Hampshire, is just as much a yokel, and just as much unsophisticated, as any boy who ever came out of the tall corn of the Hawkeye state. The Easterner has another count against him in that he is infinitely more provincial than the Westerner.

The 3A Graflex

Autographic

This camera is autographic, uses roll film and makes pictures of postcard size—3 1/4x5 1/2 inches—often called "standard" size. The autographic inscription—date and title or similar information written on the film at the time—becomes a permanent part of the negative. Such a record is invaluable for identifying the scene, long after the exposure is made.

Amateurs everywhere favor the postcard size picture. It is large enough to show considerable detail in the contact print and its proportions are such that both upright and horizontal subjects fit the image area without waste space. When an upright subject is to be photographed lengthwise of the film, the camera is focused in normal position, then held on its side when making the exposure. Sockets are provided so that a tripod may be employed when making either vertical or horizontal time exposures.

Kodak Film, in 6 or 10-exposure rolls is used. Four extra rolls can be stored in the ends of the camera, giving it a total capacity of 50 exposures, conveniently carried.

Twenty-four instantaneous speeds, ranging from 1-10 to 1-1,000 of a second, a slow automatic exposure of about 1-5 of a second, and time exposures of any duration are available with the focal plane shutter.

Bellows capacity is 10 inches and the front is rigidly built to accommodate f. 4.5 lenses of 7 1/2-inch focal length. This fits the 3A Graflex for all-around amateur use.

IOWA MAT MEN BOW IN DEFEAT FOR FIRST TIME

Pfeffer, Gugisberg And James Win Bouts; All Matches Close

After having an eight point lead at the end of the first two bouts, the Iowa wrestling team was nosed out in a Western Intercollegiate meet here yesterday afternoon 16 to 11 at the new armory by the Illini. This was the Hawkeyes first defeat of the season having previously won from Minnesota, Northwestern, and Wisconsin.

Pfeffer, Hawks star bantamweight, won his match from Murry with a half nelson and a half front crotch after six minutes and 13 seconds of wrestling. By winning this match Pfeffer kept his slate clean with four straight wins.

Inability of McMillen of Illinois to agree with the Iowa timekeeper lost the 145 pound bout for Iowa between Jacobsen and Doak, after the Iowa man had completely outclassed his opponent through the match. In speaking of this bout C. W. Mayer, of Ames referee said, "I never saw a tougher match".

Iowa took the light heavyweight bout, when James won from Laase of Illinois on a decision in the after time period. This bout went 11 minutes before either man hit the mat, then James tore into Laase and would have won by a fall had the whistle not come to Laase's rescue.

McMillen won from Heldt, Iowa captain and heavyweight on a decision, having 9 minutes and 15 seconds. Although Heldt showed up well the Illini man proved his Waterloo, until yesterday's bout neither man was defeated. McMillen outweighed the Iowa man by fifteen pounds.

Gugisberg won his match on a decision by having 5 minutes and 9 seconds advantage. This bout was slow because every time Gugisberg had Mack, the Illini man in a tight position he would wiggle off the mat.

Voltmer, who substituted for Thom displayed little ability losing to Player of Illini by the fall route, with a head scissor in 10 minutes fat. Player secured this fall two seconds before the whistle blew, giving the Illini two extra points. This bout tied the meet 8 to 8.

With score tied and the last bout of the meet Lane of Iowa lost to Gooch by a fall in 3 minutes and 21 seconds of wrestling. This bout decided the meet giving Illinois the advantage 16 to 11.

TO CONTINUE HAWKEYE CAMPAIGN NEXT WEEK

Day by day and one by one in the halls of the various colleges slowly drift in the subscriptions for the Hawkeye, the forgetmenot of the class of 1924. To accommodate these late subscribers the tables in the various colleges will be maintained Monday and Tuesday. The exact number of copies which will be printed must be ordered Thursday, March 8. In order to discourage the anticipation of sales when the book is delivered no extra copies will be ordered. The oversubscription of last year has worked a hardship on this year's staff. For the benefit of future issues the conservative policy is being followed by the 1924 staff.

Some of the groups have failed as yet to remit for their pictures. Unless the contract price is paid Monday, March 5, the contract will be cancelled and the group pictures will not appear in the 1924 Hawkeye.

Faculty Prepares To Oust "Dumbbells" From Institution

The Daily Maroon, Chicago, March 3.—To make the University of Chicago the most "high brow" institution in the United States the faculty has just adopted a drastic program which is soon to be submitted to the board of trustees for a vote.

Drastic entrance requirements, expulsion of the frivolous and unfit, curtailment of enrollment, and the gradual dropping of athletics and social life are cardinal points in the program.

The plan, which is the answer of this university to the widespread agitation against the horde of "educated simpletons" now being turned out by American universities, probably will be effective next fall.

A storm of undergraduate and alumni protest against this destruction of the university's social life and athletics is expected, but the faculty is said to be firm, holding that graduate instruction and research constitute the major purpose.

Walter Kennedy, president of the under-graduate council, asserted the destruction of athletics and social life would injure the university's prestige. But the faculty has already instituted limitation measures.

One Hundred Men Meet At Michigan For Medical Confab

The Michigan Daily, Ann Arbor, March 3.—One hundred men representing more than fifty colleges and universities convened here today for a two day convention of the Association of American Medical Colleges. Cardinal points in the round table discussions were to include problems of attendance, requirements for graduation and requisites necessary for admission to the colleges of medicine.

An amendment to the present rules which require two years of preliminary college work, before admission to medical colleges will be strongly urged by some of the schools represented. This amendment will require three years of college work as a prerequisite for admission. The question of the requirement of an A. B. degree is an essential for entrance will be also discussed.

BUDGET CAMPAIGN STARTS MONDAY AMONG PROFS

At least $3000 of the community budget is to be raised among the university professors during the campaign starting Monday noon, at the Commercial Club weekly luncheon. Prof. Thomas A. Knott is the chairman of the committee in charge of the community budget and Prof. B. P. Flemming is directing the campaign in the university.

A budget of $9,950 is needed this year to provide for the carrying on of the work of the Boy Scouts, Girl Scouts and Social Service League. It is receiving the support of the Commercial Club, The Woman's Club and other Iowa City organizations.

Over sixty professors will see the remaining 300 of the faculty. Those at the head of special divisions in the university are Dean Wilbur J. Teeters, Henry L. Reitz, Edwin H. Lauer, president of the Social Service League, and Dr. Samuel T. Orton chairman of the Executive committee of the Boy Scouts.

One of the most interesting things in the collection is a tiny thatched house which is a perfect reproduction of a native dwelling in the Philippine islands. The house itself is made of nipa, woven so perfectly that it makes a design in the walls. The roof is of thatch. In connection with the house it is interesting to notice the native arm-chairs which are in common use and, though made of bamboo, are not unlike our modern campchairs.

Union Director Detailed For Service With Organized Reserve

Colonel Morton C. Mumma, director of the Iowa Memorial union campaign who had been detailed to service with the regular army upon the expiration of his directorship at the end of April, will remain at the University, according to information received here today. Instead of serving with the regular army Colonel Mumma will be detailed for a year with the organized reserve and be stationed at Iowa City.

This means that when Colonel Mumma's three months leave as union director end he will return to the military department of the University as acting head. At the end of his year in the organized reserve it is likely he will be regularly assigned to the university for another period of years.

While attached to the organized reserves Colonel Mumma will be in the Iowa brigade of General George W. Ball, Iowa City attorney.

WASTING SYMPATHY

Within the very broad limits the sum total of happiness in the life of any individual may be said to equal that of any other individual regardless of education or social status. This at first may seem a repudiation of all higher values but nevertheless it has its foundation in the mental makeup of nearly every human being whether he be rich or poor, ignorant or wise, of high or low caste. We only waste our sympathy when we pity the poor or the mentally unfit; and if we are among those who consider happiness the greatest thing in life our hopes to increase it by dint of toil or training, go for naught.

Mental life is built up on a remarkable system of compensations. Just as the body adjusts itself to varying conditions and to enforced states so that the mind adapts itself to every situation. All life consists of checks and balances—the greater the pain the greater the ensuing pleasure, the two states being remarkably similar in nature. The millionaire soon tires of his money, the statesman of his glory, and the ruler of his powers. The poor or lowly person thinks that to possess these connotes Elysium and very likely would until Nature had begun her inexorable task of adjustment and compensation.

We pity the weak and the insane when in reality most of them are happier than we. Even those afflicted with the deepest kind of melancholy receive immeasurable satisfaction from such a state and therefore happy in spite of external appearances. Likewise many people derive pleasure from pain, and pain from pleasure. Happiness usually alternates with sorrow, the two traveling in a cycle. This fact, which has now been given a definite psychological basis, was recognized ages ago.

The best test of any theory is to apply it to one's own existence. When this is done it will usually be found that the happiest moments one has experienced are not those in which he has spent the most money or was clothed in the greatest glory. Nor will he agree that coming to the University has materially increased the amount of happiness in his every-day life. We might go a step further by asking if those students who spend the most money always have the best time. On first thought, the answer would probably be in the affirmative but were individual cases to be investigated it would be found that such is rarely the case.

Nature is as just as it is unrelenting.

THE SIX BLIND MEN OF EDUCATION

As the blind men of Indostan disagreed in their idea of an elephant even so today's critics of education fail to agree on whether college doors should be opened wide to everybody or should be equipped with night locks to permit only those who have business there to enter.

Eventually those advocating the closed door must win. Attendance at universities is increasing at a much more rapid rate today than are the means for accommodating the influx. The most disquieting point of this is that the number of graduates is not keeping pace with the number of those entering. Figures of our own University catalogue show that the proportion of freshmen to seniors has reached an alarming figure—almost three to one. Excepting those who enter professional courses, it remains that the lower classes are cluttered with men and women who have either no ability or else no intention of finishing their college course. To exclude these from college sounds at the outset like an undemocratic principle but it is just as democratic to deprive them of this privilege to enable the ninety to forge ahead as it is to give the ten a college education at the expense of the highest intellectual attainment of the ninety.

The Californian professor was right who said that the place for a great many now in college is at the end of a pick-axe or a frying pan. Get these in their proper grooves and fewer men will be leaving college and those who do will be better fitted to meet the problems of the world.

CONTEMPORARY OPINION
(New York Times)

ECONOMIC CAMOUFLAGE

Few words which have obtained great vogue are more often used hypocritically than the adjective "economic." Those who advocate letting down the immigration bars advance unnamed "economic" needs of the country to support their contention. Thus they cloak their own desire for cheap labor. The unions which advocate tightening the immigration restrictions do so in the name of "economic" justice. This is merely a high-sounding label for their own interests. Friends of Germany marshal "economic reasons" to show why France is ruining herself, whereas they are in fact concerned over the hardship to Germany and would gladly see France in perdition. Many of those international bankers who advocated complete cancellation of the Allied debts did so on "economic" grounds, and thus concealed their conviction that cancellation would increase the value of foreign securities in which they were interested.

There is nothing new in this use of an innocent label to camouflage an idea. Thus do words grow and change their character, and frequently fall into disrepute. This is particularly true when wolf ideas are clothed in sheep phrases. The word "economic" originally referred to the management of a household or an estate. Later it referred to the management of the financial affairs of a state. Still later it referred to the science of economics, and as the science of economics sought to explain the world in terms of economic laws it took on an aspect of infallibility. From "economic laws" it was only a step to "economic necessity," and as both these terms sounded learned and dispassionate their use to clothe materialistic selfishness was soon found to be profitable.

It is time, however, that the adjective "economic" be unmasked. In its present use it nearly always is synonymous with selfishness. The sooner the public realizes this the sooner it will be possible to restore the word to its honest meaning or else to discredit it, as was done with "propaganda" and other similar overworked words.

"DEAR BRUTUS" HAS IMPOSSIBLE THEME

Characters in Philo-Octave Play Given Second Chance at Life

What would you do if you had a second life chance? Would you change the whole course of your life? On that interesting but impossible question Sir James M. Barrie has based his play "Dear Brutus" which is to be the Octave Thanet-Philomathean production on March 7 and 8. The great playwright does not attempt to deal with a psychological or moral problem nor does he try in the least to solve it. He merely presents a charmingly whimsical and imaginative story of what might be.

Barrie takes a group of common everyday people gathered at a house party on Midsummer's Eve. It is their host, Lob, a pucklike character, who acts as destiny and directs their paths through the wood wherein they get their second chance in life. Thereupon the audience sees the snobbish Lady Caroline married to a butler. We can watch a shiftless unhappy dabbler in paints change into a successful artist and a devoted father. There is a vampire, an erring husband and a deserted wife all of whose positions are reversed in the magical wood. The vampire as a deserted wife sees her own husband being won away from her by the formerly deserted one.

Above all the play is Barresque. It is filled with the charm of all his plays, a charm which Maude Adams brought out in "The Little Minister" "What Every Woman Knows" and most typically in "Peter Pan". The play has the atmosphere of "Midsummer Night's Dream".

For use in mysterious forest scene Prof. Edward C. Mabie of the speech department has ordered from Chicago a 6000 watt dimmer, all the lights will be worked out in a color scheme of greens and blues.

Issue First Call For Sophomore's For April Oratorical

The Sophomore Oratorical Contest for the George W. Egan prize of $20 for first place is beginning to call attention among the oratorically inclined sophomores. The event is to be held on April 19. Each year, Mr. Egan, an Iowa alumnus, awards this $20 prize to the sophomore who writes and delivers the prize deserving oration. All sophomores, both men and women, literary or non-literary society members are eligible, the only qualification being good standing in the University. The orations are to be original and limited to 1000 words in length. They may be written on any subject which the author believes suitable for an oration.

Last year, the George W. Egan prize of $20 was captured by Robert E. Bichard of Davenport, with his oration on "Problems of Child Labor". Second place went to Charles E. Cornwell of Independence for his oration on "World Politics". Not only does the winner receive the $20 prize, but in the case of a literary society member, a substantial number of points are won for his society in the Delta Sigma Rho intersociety cup race.

Preparation on certain orations has already begun. The entrants in the contest must file their name and a copy of their speech with Herbert C. Wiler, instructor in the department of speech, 201D natural science building, on or before March 26.

The contest itself will be held on April 19. There will be no preliminary.

CONFIDENCE

Confidence in one's ability to meet the demands of life is a requirement for success, but over-confidence implies a lack of knowledge of the difficulties, causes neglect of necessary precautions.

A bank account at the First National is a sound precaution, and enables its owner to proceed with confidence, and secure in the knowledge that he has strong backing in his financial affairs. Our service is for students, faculty and townspeople alike.

MEMORIAL UNION CAMPAIGN WILL START MARCH 10

Fitzgerald, Secretary of Y. M. C. A., Aided By 24 Students In Charge

During the Memorial Union campaign which will be conducted among the students between March 10 and 25 under the direction of R. F. Fitzgerald, Y. M. C. A. general secretary, pledges will be asked for on the basis of $100, based on the expectation of the students becoming an alumnus. In asking for pledges it is expected that students will subscribe to the point of making a sacrifice. Students who pledge to the Union are expected to make a small payment each season while in school in order to keep up interest in the project. Students who are able are asked to make full payment at the time they sign the card.

The amount still due on a student pledge at the time the student leaves the University, either by graduation or withdrawal, will become payable in five equal installments, or if the student prefers, it may be paid in equal semi-annual installments. The small payments which are to be made while the subscribers are yet in the University will become due on May 1 and November 1.

At the time that Mr. Fitzgerald with the assistance of the Union Council, which is made up of twenty-four students, is conducting the campaign among the students, Col. Munna, campaign director will take personal charge of the campaign among the members of the faculty.

The Memorial Union campaign among the alumni in and out of the state will be conducted between March 29 and April 3. During the campaign 116 division commanders in the state and 44 out of the state will be in charge of the plans in the different divisions which will facilitate the coming Union drive.

The division commanders will appoint company commanders for the smaller towns and cities within each territory. In each organization lieutenants will be selected to call upon the alumni to secure their pledges.

The total amount of money which has been pledged to the Union is $491,412 of which $266,178 was pledged by students. Iowa City people and faculty have pledged $88,700 and the alumni other than the faculty have pledged $136,634, the average student pledge amount to $67 and about 50 percent of the student body has pledged. During the home coming drive that was conducted last fall $53,000 was pledged by students alone. The enthusiasm which the students showed in the last drive inicates that they are beginning to become interested in the Union and it is no longer a thing that will be realized several years from now. During the recent drive many subscribers increased their last year's pledge and new students showed a remarkable interest in the Union. Many freshmen and sophomores were members of the active canvassing force
