Bennett, the giant Hawk center, gave the Wolverines considerable trouble until he was banished from the game on four personal fouls. Regert of Iowa and Garner, Michigan center, also were put out of the contest on personals.

"The Cherry Orchard," Anton Chekhov's play of Russian life, will be presented by the University theater tonight at 8 o'clock in the natural science auditorium, opening a three night performance.

The play, dealing with the decay of the Russian aristocracy and the uprising of the peasants, is considered the finest of Chekhov's dramatic writings. It was first performed in the Moscow Art theater, Jan. 17, 1904, and has had only a few American performances. Its first production in America was that of the Moscow Art theater players in 1922. "The Cherry Orchard" has since been a favorite of Eva Le Gallienne in the Civic Repertory theater.

Get Food Salvaged
From Burned Cafe

Even a fire may bring good to someone.

Those who received food salvaged from the Hawk's Nest, which burned Sunday at 2:50 a.m., have a warm feeling for its donors.

Cabbages, lettuce, meat, and a large quantity of other perishables were found unharmed in the cellar when workmen started a clean-up raid. Added to these were trays of candy, jars of olives, and soda fountain bottled goods. All of this was turned over to the Red Cross and was distributed to needy families by Mrs. Martin Pederson, Red Cross secretary, yesterday.

Reviews School's Activities

Iowa students have had more interest in their work, although they still have their recreation. A new record for summer session enrollment, the fact that more library books were in use and less class cuts registered during the last semester, and that fewer students left the university than at any other similar time in its history attest to that, as revealed by President Walter A. Jessup, who last night offered birthday greetings to the university as the central address of National Iowa Night.

President Jessup congratulated the members of the board of education, the staff, and the students, especially in reference to their attitude in a time of depression, in reviewing the achievements of the university and its graduates for the last year.

Walker Presides
Presiding over the dinner and representing the alumni, who were enabled to join with the central celebration through radio broadcasts, was Henry G. Walker, president of the Alumni association. Representing the students was John W. Henderson, J4 of Des Moines. For the Iowa state board of education, President George T. Baker introduced its members. Guest artists who contributed to the program were Prof. Philip G. Clapp, head of the music department; Prof. Frank E. Kendrick, of that department; F. Walter Huffman, and Louis H. Diercks of the music department, and the Madrigal club. The university orchestra ensemble played for the dinner music.

President, Mrs. Jessup
In the receiving line were President and Mrs. Jessup, Mr. and Mrs. Walker, and Prof. Frederic G. Higbee, executive secretary of the Alumni association, with members of the board of education and their wives including Mrs. Pauline L. Devitt, Mrs. Anna B. Lawther, Harry M. Nease, W. R. Boyd, and W. R. Noth.

C. of C. Meets
Prospects for Banking Head

Interviewing of prospects for the job of president of the new bank being organized in Iowa City occupied the attention of the Chamber of Commerce bank committee yesterday.

Following a meeting at the Jefferson hotel last night, the committee said that they hoped to be able to make a definite announcement within a few days as to who will occupy the president's chair when the bank is opened. At least two out of town bankers, coming from open and solvent institutions, were in town yesterday and talked with committee members.

The new president, under the rules laid down by the committee, must put $25,000 into stock of the new bank. With the $25,000 to be received from the prospective president, the committee will be within $23,000 of its goal. The plan is to open the bank with a capital of $100,000 and a surplus of $25,000. It was originally projected to have a surplus of $50,000 but the committee has since decided that expediency of action warrants the reduction to $25,000.

So far there has been no active solicitation, the subscriptions coming in voluntarily from business men and townspeople.

PLAUDITS AND BULLETS FOR THEM

Here is a company of the now famous Chinese 19th army on the march near Shanghai, led by the workmanlike machine gun squad. These troops startled the Japanese and won the plaudits of the military world by their unexpected and tenacious defense of Woosung fort. An explanation of the reversal of the usual Chinese fighting form may be found in the report from Shanghai that former German officers are directing the Chinese troops. The defenses resemble the famous "Hindenburg line."

Investigates Scene
of Fire

Belief that the fire which early Sunday morning gutted the Hawk's Nest cafe was started by a lighted cigarette was expressed last night by F. J. Carlson, deputy state fire marshal, who came to Iowa City from Des Moines yesterday to conduct an investigation.

According to Mr. Carlson, the most heat was directly over the lockers used by the student employees of the cafe. The fact that lighted cigarettes had been found there previously indicated a probability of that being the cause of the blaze.

Praises Fire Department
Mr. Carlson also gave as his opinion that the work of the local fire department despite the limited man power and equipment, had by its efficiency in stopping the fire's headway, prevented a greater catastrophe.

The building housing the cafe will be put into repair as soon as insurance has been adjusted, Emma Harvat, co-owner with May Stach said last night. Miss Harvat said the insurance carried, $12,500, was sufficient to cover the damage.

Will Reopen Cafe
Merl Sellhauer, owner of the Hawk's Nest, said last night that insurance of the cafe was $23,500. He will reopen the cafe after the building has been repaired if a satisfactory insurance adjustment is made. Total damage to building and cafe was estimated at between $25,000 and $30,000 by Fire Chief Herman Amish.

The fire was first discovered at 2:50 a.m., by John Gruelich, 322 S. Johnson street. He was passing the building when a grating in the sidewalk in front of the cafe blew out. Several of the fire fighters were ill Monday morning from the effects of smoke and gas they had inhaled. This was the second blaze of major damage in Iowa City within a month, fire having destroyed the Garden theater on the night of Jan. 25.

Hunger on Way Home

CHICAGO, Feb. 15 (AP)—Richard Connors, 50, came to Chicago several weeks ago from his home in Dubuque, Ia., to find a job.

Work was not to be had, so yesterday he started back to Iowa. In suburban Blue Island he collapsed from hunger and exposure. He was taken to the Oak Forest infirmary. He was found in bed there today—dead.

Drs. Hansmann, Cooper,
Dean Teeters
Take Stand

DAVENPORT, Feb. 15 (AP)—The testimony of five doctors of medicine, a lawyer, a pathologist, and depositions of three other persons were heard today in the $500,000 libel suit brought by Norman Baker of Muscatine against the American Medical association.

Dr. Wilbur J. Teeters, dean of the pharmacy college at the University of Iowa and Dr. Paul Nicholas Leech, director of the chemical laboratories of the American Medical association at Chicago testified concerning an analysis made of a fluid which the defense claims was used by Norman Baker in treating cancer.

Analyze "Cure"
They declared that a portion of the fluid received from Edward Burke, a defense attorney, who had received it indirectly from the Baker institute, was composed of equal parts of carbolic acid, glycerine and alcohol with a trace of oil of peppermint.

Attorney Burke took the stand and testified to having received the sample from Dr. C. E. Tran of Kam-sack, Sask., Canada, who previously testified to having received it from Mrs. Ida McLellan.

Fail to Bar Reports
Efforts of counsel for Baker to bar the reports of the two physicians failed when Judge Gunner H. Nordbye overruled objections. Both doctors testified further that they found no other substances, organic or mineral, in exhaustive tests. Baker's attorneys did not cross-examine the witnesses.

Dr. G. H. Hansmann, pathologist at the University of Iowa, and Dr. C. N. Cooper of the surgery department of the same institution, who made a post mortem examination of the body of Ed Durst, Muscatine painter who died Dec. 28, 1923, declared enough disease in the form of cancer existed to have been the primary cause of Durst's death.

Testifies No Cure
The widow of Durst testified last week that Baker had told her that if her husband died, death would be due to tuberculosis, because his cancer had been cured at the institute.

The deposition of Mrs. Frank Raap, Jr., of Canton, Ill., which was read, declared that her father, Richard Atkins, coal miner of St. David, Ill., died at the Baker institute Jan. 19, 1930, after having been treated since the preceding October.

She added that, although he had been able to perform light work previous to going to the institute, he failed rapidly from then on. She also declared that unsanitary conditions existed at the institute.

at Local Theater

Dog days are here! Not in the ordinary sense, of course, but when canines go to the movies for the price of an adult admission, then the dogs are having their day.

Rex, Great Dane university mascot, did just that and enjoyed it too! He attended the midnight show at a local theater, Saturday, with a group of friends who split the cost of his ticket. Once inside he immediately hopped into the two closest seats and made himself as comfortable as possible.

He watched the picture with increasing interest for some minutes and became so worked up at the acting of a dog on the screen that he barked several times to express his approval.

Unemployment
Measure

WASHINGTON, Feb. 15 (AP)—Closely guarded from amendment or obstruction, the Hoover-sponsored banking legislation to fortify the federal reserve system with treasury gold and loosen the banks' rediscounting provisions sped through the house today in just three hours.

In the senate wing, meanwhile, before crowded galleries, the Democratic substitute, relief bill designed to eliminate the cry of "dole" was brushed aside and the way cleared for a clear cut vote, probably tomorrow, on the LaFollette-Costigan direct unemployment aid measure.

Only 15 votes were cast in the house against the banking measure. It would release $750,000,000 of treasury gold into credit channels, and under the guidance of Senator Glass of Virginia, a former Democratic secretary of the treasury, quick enactment in that branch is sure as soon as the unemployment matter is out of the way.

Cardozo Gets
Holmes' PostNew York Jurist Will Join Highest Court of United States

WASHINGTON, Feb. 15 (AP)—The supreme court seat vacated by the venerable Oliver Wendell Holmes was given today to Benjamin Nathan Cardozo, chief judge of the New York court of appeals.

Hailed in the senate by leaders of all groups as a liberal worthy of carrying on the traditions of Holmes, he was assured of confirmation by a university of endorsement.

In his 20 years on the New York state court benches, Judge Cardozo has claimed national attention by his decisions.

President Hoover chose the 62 year old New York jurist, who is a Democrat and a Jew, after weeks of canvassing the nation for a man of the Holmes legal and political philosophy. He reached his decision today after a round of conferences with senate leaders and advisers.

In selecting Cardozo, President Hoover disregarded sectional and political lines. New York already had two of its citizens on the supreme court—Chief Justice Hughes and Justice Stone.

U. S., Britain Renew
Protests Against
Japan's Action

BULLETIN

TOKYO, Feb. 16 (AP) (Tuesday)—The foreign office today instructed Consul General Mural at Shanghai to say, in reply to American and British protests against Japan's landing troops in the international settlement, that Great Britain and the United States also landed troops there and are maintaining them, so there is no reason why Japan should not do likewise.

(By the Associated Press)

While additional troops poured into Shanghai from Japan, the Japanese high command today withheld its expected big push, apparently for the purpose of massing enough men and munitions to overwhelm the Chinese once the action is started.

War materials and additional troops were landed on the Shanghai docks as the United States and Britain presented renewed protests against the use of the international settlement as a base for Japanese military operations.

Two additional divisions of Chinese troops arrived at the front, swelling the Chinese strength to 50,000 men. Latest official estimates were that the Japanese totaled 25,000. The international settlement, which adjoins what probably will be one of the hottest spots when the battle develops, and the nearby French concession are protected by 10,000 men.

The Japanese consul general at Shanghai apologized to the American consul general for an attack by a Japanese mob last week on American vice Consul Arthur Ringwalt of Omaha, Neb., and Mrs. L. Young of Los Angeles, Cal.

May Add More Troops
The war minister at Tokyo announced it might be necessary to send still more reinforcements to Shanghai. The Japanese foreign minister called in the American, British and French ambassadors and explained to them again the Japanese policy in regard to China.

In Mukden, Manchuria, where the Sino-Japanese conflict started, Chinese leaders assembled to proclaim a separate government for the province. It was reported that Mr. Henry Pu-Yi, former "boy emperor" of China, would be selected as the first president.

English Discuss Situation
In London there was a heated discussion in the house of commons on the Sino-Japanese conflict, and subsequently an important cabinet conference "on the foreign situation" was held at the nursing home where Prime Minister MacDonald is convalescing from an operation on his eye.

In response to a request from China's delegate to the Geneva disarmament conference, Pope Plus, it was revealed in Vatican City, is saying: special prayers for peace in the far east.

Geneva dispatches indicated that the meeting of the League of Nations assembly, requested by China for consideration of the Shanghai conflict, would not be held before the end of the month.

When PIGEONS Carried the NEWS

EARLY efforts to report the happenings of the world were hampered by the inadequacy of communication facilities but the development of telegraph and telephone did not solve the problem. There was no assurance that news reports, once received, would be accurate, reliable, beyond the influence of selfish interests.

THE ASSOCIATED PRESS was organized late in the 19th century and, through close adherence to the ideals of its founders, has gained world-wide recognition for fairness and impartiality. A co-operative association of member newspapers, it reports only the FACTS, without bias or favor. "AP" dispatches universally are recognized as reliable.

Here, MEN, smoke a man's smoke

A PIPEFUL of good tobacco is distinctly a man's smoke. The women (long may they wave!) have taken over most of our masculine privileges. But pipe smoking still belongs to us.

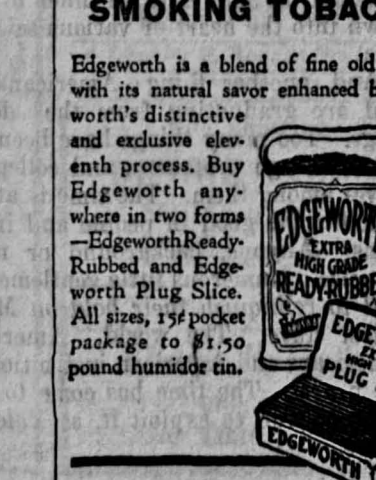

In every walk of life you'll find that the men at the top are pipe smokers. And most college men agree that the pipe offers the rarest pleasures a man could ask of his smoking.

When you smoke a pipe, be sure you choose the tobacco that will give you the greatest enjoyment. In 42 out of 54 colleges Edgeworth is the favorite. You can buy Edgeworth wherever good tobacco is sold.

Or for a special sample packet, write to Latus & Bro. Co., 105 S. 22d St., Richmond, Va. Sample is free.

EDGEWORTH SMOKING TOBACCO

Edgeworth is a blend of fine old burleys, with its natural savor enhanced by Edgeworth's distinctive and exclusive eleventh process. Buy Edgeworth anywhere in two forms—EdgeworthReady Rubbed and Edgeworth Plug Slice. All sizes, 15¢ packet package to $1.50 pound humidex tin.

The Lame Duck Should Go

SHALL THE lame duck sessions of congress be eliminated? Whether such action should be brought about through a twentieth amendment to the constitution will be voted on today in the house under an agreement of party leaders.

The issue is an old one between the senate and the house, and the vote today brings action for the first time on the 10 year old Norris resolution fixing two congressional sessions of indeterminate length to begin on Jan. 4 of each year.

Lame duck sessions have come to be regarded by political observers as the weakest and most prejudiced periods of congress. Members of the house and senate who have lost their offices in the fall elections seek to push every bit of eleventh hour legislation possible to further their own interests while they still have the opportunity.

The antiquated system of installing new office holders at Washington on March 4 arose from the fact that crude transportation and communication facilities required several months time after election to inform successful candidates and bring them to Washington.

Surely this age is enough enlightened to abandon anachronisms rather than cling to them merely because they have become deeply rooted as custom.

China's Postponement

BEFORE JAPAN pounced upon Manchuria last September, the Chinese republican government was actively engaged in negotiating with foreign powers on the extra-territoriality problem. In general, the discussions were failures as China's Foreign Minister Wang could not come to an amicable agreement with representatives of the great powers.

Finally the Chiang Kai-Shek cabinet decided that it would disregard the wishes of the powers and assume jurisdiction over foreigners in China from Jan. 1 of this year. That decision has been indefinitely revoked in the face of the Japanese invasion.

Which is excellent proof that China is still, diplomatically, not altogether a puppet in the game of nations.

Had the government stuck to its decision it would now be faced with the very grave problem of safety for nationals of other countries living in Shanghai. Her military weaknesses would have made this impossible. As matters stand, the powers are obliged to do their own protecting, can shift the responsibility for trouble to no one except the aggressor in the current squabble. The revised policy has in fact provided China with powerful moral support and may prove of considerable material assistance.

Until China can set her house in order, establish a permanent judicial system, and free herself from the chaos which confronts her, she will do well to take refuge in a revision of policy; it is only fair that the powers demand of her no other course.

Debunking Becomes Old Fashioned

UNDERGRADUATE Yale is visualized by Richard S. Childs in a recent issue of The Nation as a great group of sons and daughters of eminently successful American businessmen there to get credits, make contacts, carry off a diploma and become educated — provided it doesn't take too long.

Childs, no doubt, came upon his none too kindly viewpoint from reading the following excerpt from an editorial in The Yale Daily News: "The measure of success is not a lot of canned knowledge, but the ability to get out and do something."

Perhaps, there is something to what the author declares. Nevertheless, it remains to be pointed out that although there are numerous so-called students in Yale, at Iowa, and in all the universities, who matriculate mainly to gain the prestige that a degree insures them, there are countless other students who are there for serious study, for research, for personal contact with professors who have mastered their subjects and in answer to an inner urge to get down into the heart of various sciences and arts.

And, another thing: Americans in general are graduating from the debunking stage. Too many things have been debunked — college professors and colleges themselves among them. The time is at hand to look for the good in people and in institutions. Anyone, background or not, can criticize. Numerous little gentlemen will do well to relinquish their hold on Mencken's barrel stave. The world, America and Americans and American institutions, yearn for praise. The time has come to seek out the good and to exploit it, at Yale or elsewhere.

Dying! Help Wanted

UNLESS FINANCIAL aid is immediately forthcoming, finis will soon be spelled to the career of a notorious example of "yellow" journalism — the Police Gazette.

Begun in 1845 as the National Police Gazette, the sheet flourished as a publication devoted mainly to corruption in politics. In 1876 it was taken over by Richard K. Fox, a Belfast Irishman, and under the new owner it became a sensational mixture of sports, women, crime, and general grossness. Now creditors are howling at its doors and dissolution seems the inevitable result of its decline.

Filled with lurid accounts of every imaginable feature, the Police Gazette reached a circulation of half a million before the tabloids began crowding it out. During the eighties and nineties there were few barber shops without at least one copy of the pink publication, with its sensational pictorial news and insidious advertising. It was, however, seldom seen in the home.

Within the last decade, the weekly has supposedly taken on a "sophisticated" manner. It has not stopped the printing of most of the undesirable news and pictures of the day. It is improbable that anyone will offer financial assistance to a publication of its type. Such journalism cannot and should not flourish.

Newton Baker first came into the limelight about the time ankles were considered a treat.

Vers libre is still being written. Yes, and a considerable number of criminals are still at large.

TODAY'S TOPICS

By FRANK JAFFE

Exactly 34 years ago yesterday an explosion in Havana harbor that blew up the U. S. battleship Maine, was wrongly attributed to Spanish influence, precipitated a war and—aided strongly by the American press, accomplished little, but made a lot of enemies all around.

The watchword "Remember the Maine" may soon be changed to "Remember the Houston." Admiral Taylor's flagship of the Asiatic fleet in Shanghai harbor, or the U.S.S. Simpson at Nanking, or any other of the American battleships in oriental waters. For, although the Japs ceased their bombardment of Woosung forts the other day in a polite gesture to allow British and American warships to steam 16 miles up the river to Shanghai, they didn't say they'd remain polite and remember the boats were there when they got ready to bottle up the mouth of the river and wipe out all foreign obstructions.

Incidentally, Admiral Taylor ought to know exactly what to do in case of a similar misunderstanding to that which started the 1898 fiasco, because in that year he served as a lieutenant under Dewey on the old S. S. Olympia.

No day should pass without recording the fact that the United States and Great Britain have sent another note to the Japanese government. This time, however, catastrophe is imminent, and the note carries a much more worried expression than previous messages.

About 25,000 Japs are getting all set to have it out with twice as many Chinese. That means another three or four weeks of scrapping if the Chinese hold up their former reputations. We can't understand what's keeping them on their feet, considering all the modern equipment the Japs have been buying up for the last few years. Maybe it's the rice diet.

Despite warning from the house physician, the nation's representatives set a new indoor record in handling the Glass-Steagall bill for the expansion of credit facilities. The bill was read, discussed, and passed on to the senate all within a day. It might have passed the senate with the same rapid fire action if the latter body had not been so concerned with the LaFollette-Costigan $750,000,000 measure for direct federal aid to the jobless.

Now that the house hasn't anything to do until they convene today, members might cogitate over the Norris resolution to eliminate the "lame duck" session; the banking committee's proposal for a home loan bill; appropriation bills for the state, justice, labor, and commerce departments; and the interior department's little request for funds.

Why any stress should have been placed on the fact that Benjamin Nathan Cardozo, chief justice of the New York supreme court of appeals, is a Democrat, in announcements of his appointment by President Hoover yesterday to fill the vacancy on the U. S. supreme court bench, is hard to figure out. We had always been of the opinion that it didn't really make any difference about the party affiliations of supreme court justices.

We are indebted to Prof. A. J. Dickman of the University of Iowa Romance languages department for the following "slips":

An American magazine published the other day the following note: "The scenario of 'The Iron Mask' has inspired a French novelist named Alexandre Dumas to write a novel called 'Le Vicomte de Bragelonne.' The only reproach we have to make to the Frenchman is to have taken liberties with so living intrigue of this well-known film of Douglas Fairbanks."

Editor's note: Alexander Dumas, French novelist and dramatist, born 1802, died 1870. "Le Vicomte de Bragelonne"—1847. D—n clever, these magazine writers!

Here's the other "slip" detected by Professor Dickman in an examination paper in French literature:

"Louis XIII is a king of France who, through his wars wanted to make the world safe for absolutism, and through the establishment of the French Academy busted up a perfectly good men's club."

Editor's note: Supply your own comment. More "slips" are always welcome.

Behind the Scenes in Hollywood

By HARRISON CARROLL

AND SO THEY CALLED HIM TONY

Here's a bit of low down on how Hollywood's most famous horse got his name. Some years ago, just how many doesn't matter, Tom Mix paid an Italian $12 for a horse. The Italian's name was Tony. Tom dubbed the animal the same, and so he is known to this day.

BOULEVARD CHATTER

Brammell Fletcher is going around of late with Gwen McCormack, daughter of the Irish tenor, Gene Marey's mother gets in Monday, presumably for his wedding to Joan Bennett. Al Hill, who once served time, but who has been acting in the films recently, has written a novel called "The Banished Man." Hal Horne writes me from New York that the Three Sands hands of Abe Lyman, Claude Hopkins and Harold Stern will furnish music for New York's Motion Picture Club hall on Feb. 20. Wesley Ruggles and Howard Estabrook are writing "The Rour of the Dragons" in Wesley's hospital room.

Next week, Buster Collier and Luster Keaton embark on a sailboat to hunt wild goats on Guadalupe Island. Keaton, by the way, is looking for a yacht to purchase. But he used to be a marine engineer, boys, so don't play him for a sucker.

GRANT'S HOBBY

In Hollywood, nearly everyone, has a hobby. Lawrence Grant, for instance, makes camera studies, her welcome with film audiences is worn out.

He will soon open a week's exhibition at the Embassy club. Among his subjects will be Douglas Fairbanks, Adolphe Menjou, Sid Grauman, Joe E. Brown, Jackie Cooper, Mitzi Green, Antonio Moreno, Mitchell Lewis, Don Marquis, Lawrence Gray, George McManus, Sergei Eisenstein and others. A reception and tea will open the exhibition. Admission is by invitation only.

CASTING NEWS

An actress who has advanced steadily of late is Karen Morley. She'll play her second lead in M.G.M.'s "Night Court." Recently, she made her debut as a leading woman opposite John Barrymore in "Arsene Lupin." Not so long before that she got her first critical notice in a small part in Greta Garbo's "Inspiration."

W. S. Van Dyke directs "Night Court," which means that Bayard Veiller once more is deprived of his ambition. He did the adaptation of the Mark Hellinger-Charles Behan story, and was scheduled to direct. But when the time came, "Woody" Van Dyke was available, so the studio asked Veiller to be patient a while longer.

MEN BEHIND CAMERAS SURVIVE LONGEST

Among the less ephemeral jobs in Hollywood are those of the cameramen. George Schneiderman has been with Fox since 1917, Vic Miller is a veteran of 12 years at Paramount, while Johnny Arnold has been with Metro since the old New York days. Other old-timers include Ernie Palmer and Joe August, with 8 and 9 years, respectively, on the Fox payroll.

Dramatic Art Meet Begins on Thursday

Midwest Will Welcome Delegates for First Time

Ideas and opinions about the entire field of the drama will be pooled at the University of Iowa by 25 speakers on the program of the national conference on dramatic art.

The final plans for the affair of Thursday, Friday, and Saturday have been announced by Prof. Edward C. Mable, head of the speech and dramatic art department. The conference has never before been held in the middle west.

Authorities Appear
During the progress of the program will appear 10 visiting professors, three playwrights of national prominence, two community theater directors, and two representatives of the Chicago Art Institute.

Critics, editors, and producers also will contribute to the discussions as five main topics are presented for consideration. A round table in problems of drama study clubs, high schools, and stage design also is scheduled.

Lynn Riggs, author of "Green Grow the Lilacs"; Hatcher Hughes, who wrote "Hell Bent for Heaven"; and Alice Gerstenberg will uphold the playwright's profession. A visiting producer is Alexander Wyckoff of New York.

Other members of the personnel are: Barrett Hughes, critic; Edith Isaacs, editor of the Theater Arts Monthly; Thomas W. Stevens, director of the St. Louis Little Theater; and Gilmore Brown of the Pasadena, Cal., community theater.

Professors to Speak
Professors include: George P. Baker, Yale; Frederick H. Koch, North Carolina; S. Marion Tucker, Brooklyn Polytechnic Institute; George Hughes, Washington; John D. Mable, Pennsylvania; and Alexander Drummond, Cornell.

The chief topics are: Experimental production of new scripts; Ways in which a national Little Theater organization can serve community and university theaters; Curriculum in dramatic art; Evaluation of current trends in university and community theaters; and Summary of conference's work.

Geologist Tells of First Observations Made by Egyptians

Floods inundating the Nile valley, cutting new channels for the river and spreading deposits to increase the delta, were responsible for the earliest geologic observations.

Prof. Allen C. Tester of the geology department, declared that the phenomena enacted by the Nile river aroused the imagination of the Egyptian thinkers, causing them to formulate geologic records.

It was not until after the renaissance period, however, that geology became a science. Then the Italians proposed fundamentals which have in part served during the ensuing centuries.

Leonardo da Vinci, primarily known as an artist, also was an engineer and one of the earliest geologists to furnish reliable data from his observations, according to Professor Tester.

Former Governor Attacks Policies of Road Commission

SIBLEY, Feb. 15 (AP)—Policies of the state highway commission in using Portland cement concrete in the surfacing of the primary road system were attacked by former Gov. W. L. Harding in a speech for delivery here tonight.

Harding blamed Fred White, chief engineer for the commission, for "reckless" use of highway funds in building roads, "the most expensive known, for the purpose of getting traffic across the state."

He alleged that White has permitted only the Portland cement concrete type of highway although he cited figures from other states showing that less expensive surfacing, such as asphaltic concrete and asphaltic macadam had given satisfactory service under traffic conditions similar to those on many roads in the Iowa primary system.

Issue Seven Licenses

Licenses have been issued for seven new cars sold in Johnson county during the last week. Those purchasing new cars were: John L. Conner, Dunkel Apt., Chevrolet; Ellis J. Swartzendruber, Wellman, Chevrolet truck; Arnold J. Musack, 215 S. Dubuque, Chevrolet; C. O. Craig, Chevrolet; Carl Eckrich, Tiffin, Ford; James Stuart, North Liberty, Oldsmobile; Mrs. Mary Matthews, 823 E. Washington, Chevrolet.

Prof. Livingston to Speak
Prof. W. Ross Livingston of the history department will speak on the "Relations of the United States in the Pacific" at the Kiwanis luncheon this noon at the Jefferson hotel. United States investments and trade with the orient and their effect on past and present history will be taken up by the speaker.

Dorothy Mackaill in "Safe in Hell," at the Pastime now.

Greek Debaters to Argue Required Activity Tax Plan

Twelve fraternities will open hostilities tonight as the first round of the annual inter-fraternity debate gets under way. The question which the fraternity men will discuss this year deals with the adoption of a compulsory blanket tax to cover the expense of all university activities.

The pairings, announced by Jack Maloney, A3 of Sabula, who is in charge of the tourney this year, bring the following Greek letter teams against one another:

Kappa Sigma
Phi Kappa Psi affirmative vs. Delta Chi negative; Theta Xi vs. Beta Theta Pi negative; Sigma Phi Epsilon affirmative vs. Kappa Sigma negative; Sigma Chi affirmative vs. Phi Kappa Psi negative; Delta Upsilon affirmative vs. Phi Epsilon Pi negative; Sigma Alpha Epsilon affirmative vs. Phi Gamma Delta negative.

Representatives of the various fraternities are as follows: Sigma Alpha Epsilon—Ralph Herman, A3 of Waterloo; John Stutsman, A3 of Greeley, Colo. Phi Epsilon Pi—Alfred Albert, A1A2 of Omaha, Neb.

Date Set for Bids on Fine Arts Building

Plans for the proposed $35,000 classroom annex which is to house the school of fine arts took another step toward completion yesterday at a public hearing held in the offices of Arthur A. Smith, acting superintendent of the grounds and buildings department.

In the absence of objectors at the hearing, the plans and specifications for the building stand approved. Sealed bids from contractors will be received Feb. 23.

Besides housing the school of fine arts, the proposed building is to provide space for university band and orchestra rehearsals.

Plans for the annex call for it to be 160 feet long, 50 feet wide, and one story high. It will face Gilbert street, just south of the old isolation hospital which stands at Gilbert and Jefferson streets, and will be used in connection with the latter building.

Miller to Lecture on Transportation

Details of a national transportation policy will be discussed by Prof. Sidney L. Miller, director of the University of Iowa's bureau of business research, here Friday evening.

The lecture will be broadcast by station WSUI beginning at 7:05 p.m. Professor Miller is known as an authority on transportation.

Fire Destroys Grain Plant at Oskaloosa

OSKALOOSA, Feb. 15 (AP)—Fire today partially destroyed the N. H. Krizer seed corn drying and storage plant here together with a supply of seed corn and other grain, equipment and machinery.

The loss which was estimated at from $12,000 to $15,000, was covered in part by insurance.

Program for Washington
A special program in honor of George Washington will be broadcast over station WSUI Monday, Feb. 22, from 8:20 to 9 p.m. Beatrice Denton will play appropriate musical selections from 8:20 to 8:30 p.m., and Prof. Louis Pelzer of the history department will speak on the first president from 8:30 to 9 p.m. His topic has not been announced.

Sherlock Holmes' of Science Trail Weak Solution Elements by Means of Sector Photometer, Spectograph

By ED STEINBRENNER

A solution of a concentration of one part in 50,000 is safe from the modern Sherlock Holmes' of science in the chemistry department as long as the chemists depend on ordinary tests and means of compression. But when they get on the trail of a solution as weak as this, they discard the microscope of detective fiction fame and "get" their solution by means of the sector photometer and the spectograph.

There is a spectograph at the Bureau of Standards in Washington, D. C., and possibly two others in this country besides the one at the chemistry building. The reason is plain when it becomes known that for a mere $2,500, the house of Adam Hilger in London will be glad to build it according to your own specifications—provided that they are clear, concise, readable, and of considerable scientific accuracy.

Blue Light
A crackle breaks the silence in a laboratory room on the fourth floor of the chemistry building. It is a sudden crackle that is accompanied by a burst of blue light. This is the tungsten-steel condensed spark which operates on 15,000 volts and is used as the light source for work on the spectograph. A transformer is used to "step" the ordinary voltage up to that of the required potential.

The light passes through two solutions, one of which is standard and cuts out all the wavelengths of the light while the other, the unknown, cuts out only part of the wavelengths. The beam is divided into two parts by means of accurately located lenses. Two whirling metal wheels can be so set that they will cut out these wavelengths mentioned before and permit them to pass into the prism at the apex of the spectograph. It is the whirling sectors that permit the passage of the correct amount of light at the correct time, from which the name, sector photometer.

Tiny Quartz Bi-Prism
A tiny quartz bi-prism catches that which the sectors have sent on and the two converging rays are changed into two parallel beams which are sent on through lenses to the glass photographic plate at the end of the spectograph. One plate is used for about 15 "runs" or pictures of the absorption bands of one certain solution. For each "run" two rows of little lines appear on the plate. One of these is regular, from the standard solution, but the other, from the test solution, has weak places and strong places. The lines show up strongly at spots and then appear weak or fade out all together. A curve is drawn on the plate where the upper and lower halves of the beam from the individual "runs" appear to be of the same intensity.

Wavelengths Compared
The wavelengths for the absorption band as indicated by the peaks on this curve are compared with the known wavelengths of various suspected substances and when they are the same, the unknown has been located. The only drawback is that only organic substances can be found by this method. Carotene, source of vitamin A, was the substance of which traces were being sought, on the particular "run" referred to.

Not only can a particular substance be localized by this method, but, with one part in 50,000 available, it is possible to make a prediction as to the possible molecular configuration of that substance. This is done by noting the position of the bands as indicated on the photographs taken with those of a particular normal compound and then completing the configuration picture.

Physics Professor Uses Instrument
Members of the chemistry department are not the only ones on the campus that have used an instrument of this kind. Prof. E. P. Tyndall, of the physics department, has worked with the instrument in the Bureau of Standards and has obtained pictures similar to some of those taken by the apparatus here.

As it often happens in instruments of this kind, the smallest part of the apparatus is the most expensive unit in it. A small bi-prism at the apex of the spectograph measures three-sixteenths of an inch by one-fourth of an inch, yet it costs as much or more as the bulkier parts of the spectograph apparatus.

Knight Writes First Grade Figure Book

Prof. F. B. Knight of the college of education, is a co-author of "Number Stories, Book One," the first arithmetic reader ever written for first grade children.

The other authors are Prof. William S. Gray of the University of Chicago and J. W. Studebaker, superintendent of schools at Des Moines.

This volume aims to provide material which will give definite training in the reading of special terminology—phrases, vocabulary, number symbols and forms commonly used in first grade number work. The material is based upon a series of correlated reading and number experiences, which progressively develop essential concepts of number and space relationships. These concepts are introduced through interesting stories and are established by related work-type exercises which intersperse the several units of continuous narrative.

The stories have been edited with regard to reading difficulties so that pupils will gain increasing control of general reading habits and vocabulary as well as training in special techniques for studying arithmetic content.

Six Drastic Changes in Football Rules Made by National Grid Committee

Seek to Cut Down Rising Casualty Toll

Liberalize Substitutions; "Flying Wedge" Prohibited

NEW YORK, Feb. 15 (AP)—To safeguard school and college football from the mounting toll of casualties which reached an unprecedented number last season, the national football rules committee today announced the most drastic revisions the game has known in a quarter century.

Chief among six major changes in the playing code for 1932 are regulations which abolish the "flying wedge" formation from kickoff, and outlaw the aggressive use of hands on the defense, with severe penalty for violation.

Going further in its sweeping move to root out the sources or causes of gridiron injuries and deaths, the rules-makers decided to liberalize the substitution rules, to permit the re-entry of any withdrawn player in any subsequent period, to abolish the flying block or tackle, recently developed by many high powered offensive systems to make the ball "dead" when any part of the ball carrier's body touches the ground, except his hands or feet; and to alter the player equipment, with greater safety and protection in view.

"Great Forward Step"
The committee's decisions, jointly announced after a three day session at Hanover by Chairman Edward K. Hall and Secretary William S. Langford, were hailed as the solution to troubles besetting the sport. Hall expressed the conviction that the remedies would accomplish a "great forward step" in reducing the chances of player injuries.

E. H. Lauer, athletic director at Iowa praised the rule changes as a means of reducing the number of injuries and casualties.
These changes, he said, "look good from the sidelines," but added that, "they leave a good deal to the officials. That's what officials are for."

Based chiefly on the exhaustive investigation of newspaper reports by Fielding H. Yost, athletic director at the University of Michigan, the committee's analysis developed a maximum of 21 deaths attributable to football, as compared with approximately 50 listed in newspaper reports from all parts of the country.

The committee, although charging exaggeration, did not minimize the sport's dangerous trend nor modify its action. For example, it ruled unhesitatingly against the so-called "flying wedge" on kickoff despite evidence that not a single fatal injury resulted from such mass formations. Dick Sheridan, the Army end who died from injuries in the Yale game, was hurt in tackling the ball-carrier on kickoff.

Ran Mass Formation
Under the new kickoff rule, the ball may be put into play from its customary spot on the 40 yard line by any one of three methods—kick-off, punt, or as formerly, the placekick. On the defensive side, at least five men must remain on their own 45 yard line until the ball is kicked. This provides for more strategy on the kickoff, besides preventing a mass formation to protect the ball-carrier, who will nevertheless be given an opportunity to make a fair catch.

The new rule covering use of hands on the defense deals with what many coaches considered the most serious factor in injuries on the line.

"Players on defense are forbidden to strike an opponent on the head, neck, or face with hand, wrist, forearm or elbow," the new regulation provides, adding: "such players may hereafter use the palms of their hands on the head of an opponent to ward off or push such opponents in order to get at the ball or the player carrying it."

Fine Discernment
This apparently will call for some fine discernment by officials. The penalty for violation is disqualification of the individual and loss of half the distance to the offending team's goal line.

Abolition of the flying block or tackle, with a five yard penalty for violation, extracts something from the defensive but it appears offset by the rule making the ball "dead" at any time the carrier's body touches the ground, excepting his hands and feet.

This is aimed at dangerous "piling up" the source of numerous injuries, but it also will cut down the gaining powers of many a back who specializes in making progress under difficulties or in getting loose after a partial knockdown.

Under the new rule affecting substitutions, it will be possible for one player to enter the game four times, instead of twice. The withdrawn player can go back in any subsequent period. One of the causes for keeping a star in the game until he nears the point of exhaustion is thereby removed. However, the team making a substitution will be

Sportively Speaking

By Bill Rutledge

Several prominent football coaches, it was reported by the Associated Press, have greeted the drastic rule changes with scorn and derision. Bernie Bierman, Minnesota's new mentor, inelegantly termed them, "mostly a bunch of bunk."

Dick Hanley, Northwestern coach, declared, "On the whole, I don't think much of the changes." Frank Murray of Marquette said, "They might as well take the game and throw it in the lake."

The University of Iowa hasn't a football coach; so Director of Athletics E. H. Lauer commented, and spoke favorably of the changes—which are the most radical since the legalization of the forward pass.

Something had to be done to football, and something drastic, after the appalling list of deaths and injuries last fall. The total number of victims was given out as more than 50 last season, but Fielding H. Yost, Michigan university athletic director, made a notable probe of the matter and found that the number had been exaggerated by about 30. Even 20 fatalities are far too many. The football fathers are to be commended for their efforts to make the game safe for the players.

Gloriously enough for the United States, the third Olympic winter games came to a close yesterday. The unofficial point tabulation gave Uncle Sam's athletes first place by a margin of 26 points, marking the first time this country has topped a winter meet and also marking the end of Norway's dominance.

A let down on the part of the Hawkeye basketball team was to be expected after the magnificent defeat administered to Northwestern Saturday evening. Eric Wilson, university news editor, steps forward to point out that the triumph was, "the first Hawkeye victory over the Wildcats since 1926 and only the second conference game Northwestern has lost in two seasons."

The big basketball game for Saturday's conference card: Northwestern clashes with Purdue on the Boilermakers' premises. The title lies between those two teams, with Michigan cherishing an outside chance.

Jess Moffitt remarked after glancing over the account of the Illinois-Minnesota game, "My gosh, I never heard of an Illinois team playing like that." Another remark was heard, "Nor of a Minnesota team playing like that, Jess."

Disgraced by their miserable showing in the St. Pat's game, the University high passers will invade Mt. Vernon tonight grimly determined to wreck their opponents' title hopes.

The Blue and White cagers will be gunning for an even break with the second place team as they dropped a decision on the home floor earlier in the season.

The Maroon team will be in no gentle frame of mind when the game gets under way tonight for they have not forgotten the terrific drubbing the West Liberty team gave them Tuesday. The Mt. Vernon team must win both their remaining games to gain a tie for the loop championship and this is only a bare possibility since West Liberty would have to lose all their games.

The Blue and White hoopsters have been playing an improved brand of basketball since the first encounter with Mt. Vernon and will be in good shape for the game tonight. Wyck and Meintzer will probably start at the forwards, with Phillips at center, and Dill at one guard with either Fairchild or Rarick as his running mate.

GRINNELL, Feb. 15 (AP)—Don Rowe, star center, led Grinnell cagers to a 29 to 20 victory over the Washington University Bears tonight in a Missouri Valley conference game. In addition to scoring 10 points, all in the second half, he held Bob Mayack, Washington ace, to a pair of goals, both in the first period.

LAKE PLACID, N. Y., Feb. 15 (AP)—Billy Fiske, a little fellow with just the trace of an English accent, closed out the 1932 winter Olympics games in final triumph for the United States today by calmly driving his four man bobsled to his second consecutive Olympic championship.

Paying no attention to the storm of ill feeling and argument that has hung over the bob run down the side of M. Van Hovenberg since European members of the International Olympic bobsled committee wiped out most of its efforts, Fiske carefully nursed the lead he established in the first two heats yesterday to beat young Hank Homburger's crew by 2.02 seconds in total time for the four heats of the championship.

Only one of the five European teams in races was able to keep within hailing distance of the two United States teams. That sled was the German combination, sole survivor of the original three entries, and piloted by Capt. Hans Killian.

Killian put together four heats for a total time of 8 minutes, 4.100 seconds, almost five seconds back of Homburger's 7 minutes, 55.700 seconds. Fiske's total time was 7 minutes, 53.680 seconds.

The remainder of the field was badly stranded. Reta Capadrutti, the young Swiss who finally hearkened to the advice that life is long and the glory of brave but dead bobsledders fleeting, landed in fourth place with a total of 8 minutes, 12.180 seconds.

Count Rossi Di Monteleone of the Italian Vermont family, was fifth in 8 minutes, 24.210 seconds, one one-hundredth of a second faster than the quartet of Rumanian Aviators Lieutenant Al Papanau plotted. Baron Walter Von Munster brought the reserve German sled home last in total time of 8 minutes 35.450 seconds.

Discouraged Group
They were a discouraged band of bob sleighers as they fought another comparatively slow course, filled with snow at the order of Erwin Hermann of Germany and Albert Meyer, of Belgium, international committee members.

Cold last night froze the slushy track given them for yesterday's two heats into ruts that the races followed whether or not they led through the fastest parts of the course. Getting out of those ruts was dangerous business and despite the slowness of the track, which the boys insist they can drive in 1:40 for the 1-1/2 mile under proper conditions, another crowd of about 20,000 that lined the steep sides of the mountain despite zero weather was given a full quota of thrills.

Hawkeyes to Have 4 Meets on Saturday

All of the week end's activities for University of Iowa athletic teams will be concentrated into a period of seven hours Saturday afternoon and evening, with four events upon the schedule.

Minnesota will import its track and swimming teams to meet the Iowans in the field house Saturday afternoon, and the Indiana basketball team is the guest of the evening. Meanwhile, the wrestlers will tackle Chicago on the Midway.

The basketball game offers the Hawkeyes an opportunity to atone for the 35 to 27 defeat administered at Bloomington Jan. 16. Old Gold swimmers, easy winners over Wisconsin, will race one of the Big Ten's strongest teams, while the track team, which lost to Notre Dame last Saturday, appears to possess an even chance to down the Gophers.

Keeping in the undefeated class of the conference will be the objective of the wrestlers at Chicago. Both the Hawkeyes and the Maroons downed Minnesota, the former by an 18-point margin and the latter by seven points.

Gus Sonnenberg to Wrestle at Rapids Coliseum Feb. 26

Hopes of securing Gus Sonnenberg, former world's heavyweight wrestling champion for a wrestling match at the Cedar Rapids coliseum materialized last night for Promoter Johnny Freear.

The date for his appearance has been set for Feb. 26. Sonnenberg's opponent has not been chosen although it is thought that it will be Karl Zyzsko, who has won three straight headline matches in the coliseum.

Gus is given credit for having introduced many of the tactics which have revolutionized professional wrestling. He won the championship from Ed "Strangler" Lewis to lose it two years later to Don George.

"Chip" Fay's Scores of 246, 626 Best of Individuals

By DICK NORRIS
"Chip" Fay was "hot" on the alleys in the Business Men's league bowling session last night. He topped 246 pins in his second game for high single individual game. This, with his first game of 185 and his last of 195, enabled him to get the high total for the evening—a strong 626.

Tanberg of the Elks was right at his heels in both events with a 244 single game and a 600 series. Bremer's took all team honors with a 931 single and 2,692 for the three games.

The clothing store quintet took two away from the Varsity Cleaners. Iowa Supply dropped two to the Elks. Lenoch and Clegg got the only clean sweep of the evening over Necco Oil.

Illini Swamp Minnesota by 23-15 Margin

Indiana Beats Badgers; Purdue Troupes Ohio State

CHAMPAIGN, Ill., Feb. 15 (AP)—Illinois pulled Minnesota down another notch in the Western conference basketball title race tonight, easily defeating the Gophers 23 to 15.

So effective was the Illini defense that Minnesota failed to score a field goal until the last three minutes of the contest, while the offense, although ragged, was good enough to collect nine field goals.

The game was rough, three players going out via personal fouls. The victory was Illinois' fourth in seven games, and for Minnesota the defeat was its third in eight engagements.

Purdue Wins 43-26

LAFAYETTE, Ind., Feb. 15 (AP)—Purdue's well balanced basketball team trounced Ohio State 43 to 26, in a Western conference game tonight, and the Buckeyes dropped to sixth place in the standings.

Tonight's victory gives Purdue a chance to grab the Big Ten lead here Saturday night by defeating Northwestern, now on top. Each has lost one game.

Parmenter was the star of the Boilermakers five tonight, the big back guard smearing Ohio attempts and scoring four times from the field.

Purdue led throughout, holding a 27 to 10 advantage at half time. Seventeen personal fouls were called on each side.

Indiana Triumphs

BLOOMINGTON, Ind., Feb. 15 (AP)—Indiana won its third victory of the Big Ten basketball season tonight by defeating Wisconsin 33 to 21.

A second half scoring spree led by Weis and Hodson sent the Hoosiers far ahead after the Badgers had tied it at 15 all early in the period. Indiana led 13 to 10 at the half.

Wisconsin was weakened by the illness of Poser, a guard. Griswold, Badger center, captured scoring honors with 11 points before he was forced from the game on personals in the second half.

Greeks Start Play in New Sports Soon
The winter season of indoor athletics will swing into full play this week with volleyball, "B" and independent basketball leagues getting under way, the free throwing contest held and entries sent out for the inter-fraternity swimming meet and indoor baseball league.

These teams will be divided into sections with the winners playing each other for the first place position. Fraternities have until tomorrow night to get the entries in for this league.

The "B" basketball league, consisting of players who did not participate in either the "A" or pledge leagues, will also be started Thursday night. The six teams entered so far are: Sigma Nu, Phi Beta Delta, Alpha Tau Omega, Pi Kappa Alpha, Delta Tau Delta and Sigma Alpha Epsilon. The deadline for entering the league is tomorrow night.

Cedar Rapids Quint Downs Irish, 17-15

Locals Falter in Last Quarter of Close Battle

By JOHN LANE
Fighting desperately, in a battle that was anybody's game all the way, St. Patrick's of Iowa City dropped a 17 to 15 decision to the crack cagers from St. Patrick's of Cedar Rapids last night in the local team's gymnasium.

Although the game was fast, and ball handling unusually accurate, the splendid zone defense of both quintets kept the score low.

Kitch, Parlor City forward, took scoring honors with eight points. Little Gus Donohue put up an excellent performance to gather seven points, and was generally so prominent in the conflict that he was finally hailed off the floor on fouls.

Nolan Starts Scoring

The first quarter was fast, but the guarding was so close that only one point was made, when Nolan netted a free throw for the invaders.

In the next period, Donohue put the locals in the lead with a basket, but Kitch retaliated with another. Donohue then tied the score with a free throw. Malloy's goal again put the visitors in the lead, but Glenn tied the score with a basket, and Pinney's free throw ended the half with the locals leading, 6 to 5.

At the start of the second half, Kitch made a basket and a free throw that sent the Parlor City quintet into the lead, but Donohue again tied the score. Dyeen and Pinney broke even on free throws. Donohue's baskets put the locals in the lead, and Kitch broke even with Glenn on free throws as the period ended with the Iowa City five leading, 12 to 10.

Last Quarter Fast
The stands were in a wild uproar, as both teams went into the last period with a spirit of conquest that made the game look like a good old-fashioned gang fight, although relatively few fouls were committed.

Pinney started with a free throw, but Malloy and Kitch came back with a basket apiece. Scannell was fouled, but missed. On a technical foul, the big center failed again, and the locals' chance was gone. Spaight sank a free throw and Nolan made a basket, to give the visitors a safe lead, but Glenn's goal diminished the margin as the game ended.

Ramblers in Long Session; Will Meet Cedar Rapids Irish

While their opponents of tomorrow night, St. Patrick's of Cedar Rapids, were defeating the local Irish in a close defensive game, the St. Mary's Ramblers were in the midst of a long hard scrimmage against a pick-up team, preparing to make an attempt to repeat their performance in the previous meeting, that of downing the powerful Parlor City quintet.

The play in the workout was rather ragged, the Ramblers failing to break in for the numerous shots they usually take, while the defense failed in most instances. Capt. Leo Gaulocher was slightly bothered by a cold, but should be in condition by game time tomorrow.

The Ramblers will be striving to

"The GAY BANDIT of the BORDER"

by TOM GILL

SYNOPSIS

The Mexican peons, grown tired of Paco Morales' oppression, await the word from "El Coyote," their masked protector, to overthrow him. Morales has enlisted the aid of the U. S. Cavalry to capture the notorious bandit. Ted Radcliffe, a young American, learns that Morales was responsible for his late father's ruin. Bob Harkness, Ted's friend, urges him not to make an enemy of Morales, as he has other plans. Ted is enamored of Morales' beautiful niece, Adela. At a fiesta, Adela, sensing the hatred of Jito, Morales' ward, for Ted, exacts a promise from Ted never to fight with him. Morales informs Bob that his men will join in the search for "El Coyote" and that Jito has dedicated himself to kill the bandit. Adela tells Ted he must not let his lack of wealth keep him from love. Bob receives a note and leaves the merrymaking. Shortly after, news is received that Jito's vaqueros are raiding the village. Adela goes to the village with Ted and Morales, and lashes a vaquero insulting a girl. She calls "El Coyote's" vengeance upon Jito. Just as Jito orders the slaying of a poor farmer, "El Coyote" appears. His men disarm the vaqueros and inform Morales his rule is over. Back at the hacienda, Jito says he will prevent Adela from riding with Ted the next day. A messenger arrives with the news that one of Jito's men has been killed by Anton, an Indian, whom they have captured.

CHAPTER XXIV

He turned contemptuously from the Mexican and spoke now to Morales. "We are a free people, and tonight there came among us many horsemen, mad with drink. They came with anger in their eyes when they should have brought friendship. They battered down my lodges, they stampered my horses, they threatened my young men, and one of them I had to kill. I take no sorrow for that, but unless these bonds are taken from my hands, you, Paco Morales, will take great sorrow, for we Yaqui of the mountains are many and our young men have not forgotten other days. It might be easier to urge them to battle than to hold them back." He stopped speaking. Morales, without a word, walked up to the man and cut the bonds at his wrists. "My men will trouble you no more," he said slowly. "Go in peace."

Not until the moccasins of the Yaqui had shuffled out through the patio did anyone speak; then with a smile that still held a kind of sinister amusement Morales glanced at Jito. "One more loyal follower like you, Jito mio, and I shall be a ruined man. Once the Yaqui joins with this Coyote bandit, your vaqueros will have little time for merriment." A sudden tremor of anger seized him. "Take, for the love of God, your hand forever out of my sight." He rose and bowed to Don Bob.

"Never," said the old Spaniard, "have guests of mine suffered such disturbance. You must forgive one who grows too old to remember the demands of hospitality. Now I am very tired. Good night, señores. As for you, Jito, come to my room a moment. There are a few things that must be said."

His gaunt shoulders seemed more bowed as he left the room. Jito followed after a surly nod at the two Americans.

For a time Don Bob smoked on in silence while Ted paced the length of the room.

"It's hideous," Ted exclaimed. "This cold contempt for life these vaqueros have, Morales himself cares nothing. I'm wondering why we continue to take his hand and eat his food."

"My dear fellow, what earthly good would it do to insult him now? Take my word, there are better and more subtle ways. That Yaqui, for instance, He gave me something to think about." And for a space of many minutes Don Bob smoked, his eyes fixed in thought. At last he shook his head.

"Morales must be worried. It is as if he, too, felt the breaking up of things. This kingdom of fear that he has built can't go on always. There are mutterings, that Yaqui bluffed his way to freedom. Morales didn't dare hold him. The peons themselves aren't taking things lying down as they once did. And behind all this is the shadow of El Coyote. No, I think Señor Morales has many things to think of this night. Thoughts that will be unwelcome bedfellows for the Spaniard."

But Ted was gazing out toward the desert, and a little smile was playing about his mouth. When he looked up it was obvious he hadn't heard a word of Don Bob's soliloquy, for he murmured: "You should have seen her. She was magnificent."

"My son," answered Don Bob sorrowfully, "when they reach your stage, hope, if any, lies in a good night's rest."

And slipping his arm through Ted's he led him up the stairs.

Twice in the night Ted awoke to hear rain pattering on the tile roof, but the sunrise was cloudless. Adela waited for him in the patio, and in her face lay no sign of the night's happening, but as they passed down the walk toward the horses stood she looked silently up toward the mesa. High up on its edge, touched with the sun's first rays, glittered the Cross of the Conquerors. Lips slightly parted, she gazed up in a kind of silent communion—then turned toward the man.

"The legend of the Cross may yet be answered," she said slowly, "and the peon find his liberator. I thought so for a moment last night."

She mounted and led the way down the long drive.

"The first morning of creation must have been like this," Ted told her, as they rode through the gate and out toward the desert. "Everything washed and dusted. Those mountains look as if they were only a few miles away."

"They're about thirty. We're going half-way to them, the Spring of the Saints. There we'll try to eat all the food in our saddlebags, and come back through the sunset. A whole day devoted to your lordship. I'm being very nice to you, Ted Radcliffe, for no reason at all."

"You're being quite perfect to me. I'm wondering if it isn't because you pity me for—what's happened," he said.

Leaning forward she fondled the soft cars of her horse.

"I've not felt the least twinge of pity. Why should I, when the future is all ahead of you and you have a mind and a body to do what you want? Besides, you have something I never had—the memory of a father. Mine died when I was too young to remember—I only know he was big and handsome and had a wild Latin temper. And I know he loved my mother very greatly. So don't give me credit for too much charity. These people of mine, they have need of all the charity I possess."

"I love the way you call them your people."

"They are my people. Don't forget my mother had Mexican blood in her veins as well as Irish, and she loved this country and these people just as I do. She taught me their legends and their songs. So I am a creature of this desert country."

After a long moment she added, "I wish I could make it a country of happiness instead of tears."

"You mean—"

"What you saw last night. That sort of thing. There is a curse of cruelty on the lords of this land. They love cruelty for its own sake. Even my uncle. With me and Jito he is the gentlest of men. I love him. But to him these people in their mean little homes are not people with blood and feelings or with hopes and dreams. They are just things that do his will."

"Jito certainly seems a little inclined that way."

"Oh, Jito is a child, mentally. My uncle is his god. Jito is cruel only as a child is cruel. Sometimes when I have him to myself I make him sorry. But deep inside he is proud to be the feared leader of my uncle's herdsmen."

At the top of a little knoll she stopped, and together they looked out through the fresh morning air and over the blue sagebrush to where far-off purple mountains cast long shadows across the world. A little breeze stirred the desert stillness with the sound of very distant waters, and in a kind of enchanted silence those two watched and listened, held by the beauty and peace of it. When at last the girl turned, great tears stood in her eyes.

She whispered, as if half afraid to break the spell: "How wonderful this life could be so perfect here. It could be always a land of song and eternal sunshine, a land where everyone might have his little piece of land, his home and his work to do. When I was away at school, like an alien out there in the world, I realized then how much I loved all this desert country of mine. Each night I would pray the Mother of God to show me how I might come back and change this land of slavery into the paradise it should really be. The freedom and hopefulness that in your country you have. And so easily we could have it. Only to change my uncle—that would be enough."

She laughed with little mirth. "I came back, I tried to change it all, but ever between me and all I wanted to do was his iron will. Each year he is more obsessed with the desire to be absolute law in everything."

She touched the horse with her spur. "But why cloud a perfect morning? I had resolved to put all this behind me today—and be gay. If I did not sometimes forget, I should go mad. So now you will tell me about your own country."

But Ted shook his head. "You are asking too much of me. Let's talk of you. You are serious-minded, aren't you? And yet you told me you've been in love."

"In love? Oh, many times," she laughed.

"I don't think I like the thought of your being in love many times."

"You wouldn't, Señor Ted. The big, conquering male never does. He wants always to think that the one woman he selects has been dutifully waiting for him through the years. But I am a woman with a past. Back when I was twelve years old I was madly in love with Jito because he could bring me gila monsters in his hands and carry snakes in his blouse, and I couldn't. And I've been long in love with an old priest. Even now I'm in love with him, grown up as I am. You shall see him some day. And I'm in love with still another man, even today."

"Who?"

"A man older than you. A man of the world."

"Who?"

"Don Bob. Isn't he a dear?"

There was a strange quality of relief in Ted's laugh. "I know one reason why you love him. Bob's as savage as you over the wrongs of the peon. I'd advise a combination between you and Don Bob and El Coyote. There's no telling what the three of you couldn't do."

"The three of us? You should say the four of us. Because we'd enlist your talents too. We would have you rub Jito's nose in the dust each morning before breakfast. And now watch that horse of yours, for we're going down into the stream bed, and it's a crazy, crumbling path from here on."

Stocks Step Backward in Profit Taking

Twenty-Five Per Cent of Last Week's Gain Lost in Trade

NEW YORK, Feb. 15 (AP)—Stocks took a step or two backward today in conference with the very practical theory that profits were safer in the pocket than on the books.

Urgent needs of the shorts had been so well satisfied Saturday that further support from this source was not forthcoming and the market thus found itself vulnerable to realizing sales. However, Wall Street professed its satisfaction at the day's showing. For the net loss of 2.4 points approximated only 25 per cent of the advance made last week.

Opening lower, the market extended its decline to 1 to 5 points in the early trading, reduced these losses by a point or so, sagged again and then moved horizontally to an uninteresting close. Final quotations were above the early minimums. Transactions totaled 1,975,484 shares, well below the turnover in Saturday's short session.

U. S. Steel's net loss of 11.4 was just half of its extreme decline. American Telephone, off 54 at the worst, closed a point above the bottom. American Can Westinghouse, Du Pont, General Electric, National Biscuit, Woolworth, American Tobacco "B" Consolidated Gas, Santa Fe and Union Pacific finished 2 to 3 points lower. Rails, generally speaking, offered better resistance than other major classifications. General Motors was rather steady and Case staged a late recovery. Copper shares softened. Du Pont's directors declared the regular quarterly payment of $1 a share.

Five Men Held For Violating Prohibition; All Plead Not Guilty

DES MOINES, Feb. 15 (AP)—Four charges of violating the national prohibition act were lodged today against each of five Iowa men arrested here last Friday by federal agents.

The men pleaded not guilty before U. S. Commissioner J. E. Piper and were held under $2,000 bonds. They were H. E. and L. E. Chapman, brothers, of Carroll; Harold R. Cash and Thomas Moones of Ames, and William Stephenson. Stephenson and H. E. Chapman also are under $1,000 bond for carrying concealed weapons.

The liquor charges are illegal possession, illegal transportation, maintaining a liquor nuisance, and conspiracy.

Handicapped by a small squad Coach George Wells sent his Iowa City high basketball men through a light workout last night in their initial practice for the Davenport game Friday night.

Several of his men were occupied with make-ups in their scholastic work while several were reported sick. No injuries were reported after the Dubuque game in which the Little Hawks took the short end of a 30 to 17 score.

Coach Wells plans to make the workouts for the next week rather light by concentrating on basket shooting and handling the ball. The Little Hawks have been working hard and steady since the second semester and will be given a rest this week to avoid any danger of going stale.

Prof. C. C. Wylie of the astronomy department, addressed the Men's Forum class of the First Presbyterian church, Sunday morning, on the subject, "The development of the known universe."

Professor Wylie traced the development of astronomy from the early biblical times through times of the early Greeks and Romans, Columbus and Copernicus, and the American revolution to the present modern trend of astronomical thought.

Professor Wylie's talk was the first of a series of scientific lectures which will be given before the Men's Forum class every Sunday morning at 9:30, for an indefinite period. The lecture on astronomy will be followed by talks on geology, chemistry, and physics.

Grains Take Down Trend With Stocks

CHICAGO, Feb. 15 (AP)—Dominated by stock market recedes, grain prices took a general downward course today, although wheat displayed absorptive power on breaks of a cent a bushel.

Unsettled, 3 to 1 1/8 under Saturday's finish, corn 3 to 1 down, oats 3/4 off to 1 up, and provisions unchanged to 20 cents decline.

Corn and oats tagged after wheat. Eastern shipping demand for corn remained slack, and 1,538,000 bushels increase of the corn visible supply was a handicap to bulls.

Provisions reflected the decline of securities and grain.

Closing indemnities: wheat—May 59 1-4 to 3/4, 60 1-2 to 3/4, 61 1-4 to 3/4, 62 1-2 to 3/4; Sept. 61, 64. Corn—May 39 7-8 to 40, 40 7-8 to 41; July 42, 43 1-4; Sept. 43 1-4, 44 1-4.

Recent heavy short covering in corn appeared to have put the market into an impaired technical position and prices dropped with wheat. The cash demand for corn was ex-

Woman Tells Jury of Insults at Circle Inn

Mrs. Flint Testifies in McCombs Trial for Assault

Mrs. Mabel Flint, 832 Dearborn street, cousin of Vernon McCombs, who is being tried on a charge of assaulting Lyle Lenz, May 13, with intent to commit murder, testified yesterday afternoon in district court of an insult directed at her by Lenz on the night of May 13. She also told of the incidents leading to the stabbing Lenz.

Mrs. Flint told the jury that as she was leaving the dance at Circle Inn on the night of the stabbing, Lenz took hold of her arm and said, "I've loved you before and I'm going to love you again." She said that up to that time she had never seen or known Lenz personally.

Meets McCombs
In answering the questions of F. F. Messer, defense attorney, she said that she broke away from Lenz and started for the car in which she had come to the dance. On the way to the car she had to pass Lenz and two other men and a little further on she met McCombs who asked her what was the matter.

McCombs approached Lenz, and asked why he had insulted his cousin. Following a short argument she told the jury that Lenz struck at McCombs who dodged the blow and in turn struck Lenz in the eye, knocking him back against a group who were with him.

Fight Ensues
Continuing her statements to the jury she said that Lenz asked, "Are you with me, gang?" Responding, "Yes," they crowded around McCombs, making it impossible for her to see more of the fight.

County Attorney F. B. Olsen, prosecuting, showed the jury that although she had testified yesterday that McCombs was not angry at the time of the fight, she had testified at the preliminary hearing last summer that he had been angry.

Adams Testifies
Harold "Speed" Adams, 27, race-track driver, testified that on May 14, the day following the stabbing, he had brought McCombs to Iowa City from Cedar Rapids. He said that he and McCombs had stopped at the home of Lloyd Palmer in Iowa City and then continued to Ft. Wayne, Ind., where they were to race on May 17.

Mrs. Lloyd Palmer of Iowa City, owner of a race car told the jury that she had seen McCombs in Ft. Wayne and that she had seen him drive a racer belonging to her and Mr. Palmer. A racing program and an entry blank were produced by defense attorneys in an effort to show that McCombs had been at the race.

Mrs. Hazel Sawley of Iowa City, told the jury in answer to defense attorneys questions that she had heard Lenz say to Mrs. Flint: "I loved you before and I'll love you again." At the time of the fight she was near to the dance hall but did not see the stabbing. She said that she had fainted about that time.

Professor Shambaugh Addresses Club at Meeting

Figures of the many Lincolns, from the coarse and gangly backwoodsman to the tragic, unheavenly statesman in the hands of destiny, were portrayed yesterday noon in a lecture before the Chamber of Commerce by Prof. Benj. F. Shambaugh, laugh.

democracy, shall be the Lincoln of the ages," the speaker said in summing up the personality of the many-sided Lincoln whose birthday the nation celebrated last Friday.

Baconian Topic
Yesterday was the second time Professor Shambaugh has delivered the Lincoln address, having presented it on Feb. 5 as one of the regular series of Baconian lectures.

"There are as many Abraham Lincolns," the professor pointed out in the opening of his address, "as there are people who know him, as many as there are men who have written about him, as many Lincolns as there are plain people."

Traces Early Life
Professor Shambaugh traced the life of Lincoln through the different stages so well known to most Americans. His early boyhood in Kentucky, the 14 years spent by the family in Ohio, and his later life in Illinois, formed the rugged background for the gradual development of the solid logic and unwavering convictions that carried him through a whole series of defeats to the White House.

The turning point in Lincoln's political career Professor Shambaugh described as the famous speech in which he said "No house divided against itself can stand. No man is good enough to govern another without the other's consent."

Lincoln a Writer
In this speech Lincoln fixed his position definitely in regard to secession and abolition. From that time on, the speaker pointed out, Lincoln's power with the people continued to grow.

a great statesman, but a great writer and speaker as well, Professor Shambaugh quoted from his inaugural speech and his Gettysburg address. "If his inaugural address was superb," he said, "his Gettysburg address was sublime."
