Congressmen On Parade!

Oddities of Congress to be Showcased

By Gallery Caging

BE EIGHT O'CLOCK

Washington, Jan. 3 (AP)—Gallery gates at the beginning of the new session of Congress are sometimes filled with the firm all-around applause of the audience—dead beds, solemn adjournments, and furtive whites and neckties. But behind the scenes, the audience is much more interesting.

The House is the largest, with 435 members. The Senate is slightly smaller, with 100 members. The members are seated in rows, with the Speaker of the House and the Vice President of the United States seated at the front. The members are dressed in suits and ties, with the exception of the Speaker of the House, who is dressed in a white shirt and black tie.

The members of Congress are in session from January 3 to April 15, with a recess period from April 16 to May 1. The session is divided into two parts, the first session running from January 3 to June 30, and the second session running from July 1 to December 31.

The House of Representatives has 435 members, with 17 seats from each state. The Senate has 100 members, with 2 seats from each state.

The House has a Speaker, who is elected by the members, and a vice speaker, who is appointed by the Speaker. The Senate has a President, who is elected by the members, and a vice president, who is appointed by the President.

The House and the Senate have committees, which are appointed by the Speaker of the House and the President of the Senate, respectively. The committees are responsible for investigating the conduct of members, and for making reports to the House or the Senate, as the case may be.

The House and the Senate have a joint session, which is called to order by the Speaker of the House and the President of the Senate, respectively. The joint session is called to order whenever there is a dispute between the two houses, or whenever there is a vote on a joint resolution.

The House and the Senate have a president pro tempore, who is appointed by the Speaker of the House and the President of the Senate, respectively. The president pro tempore is responsible for presiding over the House or the Senate, as the case may be, in the absence of the Speaker or the President, respectively.

The House and the Senate have a clerk of the House, who is appointed by the Speaker of the House, and a clerk of the Senate, who is appointed by the President of the Senate. The clerks of the House and the Senate are responsible for keeping the minutes of the proceedings of the House and the Senate, respectively.

The House and the Senate have a sergeant at arms, who is appointed by the Speaker of the House and the President of the Senate, respectively. The sergeant at arms is responsible for maintaining order in the House and the Senate, and for enforcing the rules of the House and the Senate.

The House and the Senate have a page, who is appointed by the Speaker of the House and the President of the Senate, respectively. The page is responsible for delivering the bills and resolutions to the members of the House and the Senate, respectively.

The House and the Senate have a printer, who is appointed by the Speaker of the House and the President of the Senate, respectively. The printer is responsible for printing the bills and resolutions, and other documents, as the case may be.

The House and the Senate have a clerk of the records, who is appointed by the Speaker of the House and the President of the Senate, respectively. The clerk of the records is responsible for keeping the records of the proceedings of the House and the Senate, respectively.

The House and the Senate have a librarian, who is appointed by the Speaker of the House and the President of the Senate, respectively. The librarian is responsible for maintaining the library, and for providing the books and other materials, as the case may be.

The House and the Senate have a chaplain, who is appointed by the Speaker of the House and the President of the Senate, respectively. The chaplain is responsible for conducting the prayers, and for providing the religious services, as the case may be.

Effort Made To Bolster Offense
Only 4th Down Pass In End Zone To Count

By KENNETH GREGORY
The Associated Press

NEW ORLEANS, Jan. 3 (AP) - The football rules committee of the National Collegiate Athletic Association recommended today changes in the off-side system and in the method of counting down-and-out throws as a means of bolstering the offense.

The committee also has decided to play for three minutes at the end of regulation games when under 25 seconds remain on the clock.

...Recommended changes in the rules included a proposal to award a touchdown when the ball is fumbled or comes out of bounds behind the goal line on a kickoff or punt. A second proposal would exclude officials from interference in the act of catching the football on a forward pass when the ball is fumbled or comes out of bounds behind the goal line on a kickoff or punt.

The committee also is proposing to award a touchdown when the ball is fumbled or comes out of bounds behind the goal line on a kickoff or punt. A second proposal would exclude officials from interference in the act of catching the football on a forward pass when the ball is fumbled or comes out of bounds behind the goal line on a kickoff or punt.

How does a dressing woman become a change-of-channel announcer? The typical announcer is a former movie or radio star, and is asked by the producer, writer, or director of a dramatic or musical situation to fill in. Announcers must be on line in minutes.

In this case, the little one is ten minutes old. She said her swell name is Marlene, and her first broadcast was the sound of a clear stream of water running by the ear. She is a product of the Bankhead school of announcing.

The announcer's home is the radio set. She said she has her own dressing room and her personal dressing table which is stocked with a line of makeup products. She said she has her own personal hair stylist and a personal manicurist.

To travel. To meet the people. To broadcast. To entertain. To make them laugh. To make them cry. To make them think. To make them feel. To make them care.

IOWA DRUG
University of Iowa’s Ten Best News Breaks of 1937 Year

The eyes of the world were on the United States in 1937 when President Roosevelt’s much-anticipated “New Deal” went into effect. The New Deal brought about significant change and reform in many areas, including education, housing, and public works. The University of Iowa was at the forefront of these changes, and the following are ten of the most significant news breaks of 1937:

1. Construction of the new University of Iowa Hospital

The new hospital, which was completed in 1937, was a state-of-the-art facility that greatly improved the quality of medical care available to the University community.

2. The resignation of ophthalmologist Prof. R. W. Scott from the college of medicine

Prof. Scott was one of the most respected ophthalmologists in the country, and his resignation had a significant impact on the college of medicine.

3. The closure of the college of engineering

The college of engineering was closed for the school year due to low enrollment and financial difficulties.

4. The New Deal’s impact on housing

The New Deal brought about significant changes in housing, including the creation of the Federal Housing Administration (FHA) to help stabilize the housing market.

5. The resignation of ophthalmologist Prof. R. W. Scott from the college of medicine

Prof. Scott was one of the most respected ophthalmologists in the country, and his resignation had a significant impact on the college of medicine.

6. The New Deal’s impact on housing

The New Deal brought about significant changes in housing, including the creation of the Federal Housing Administration (FHA) to help stabilize the housing market.
