World War II is perhaps the greatest event in our nation's history. The war was fought to protect freedom and democracy, and it was won by the United States and its allies. The war ended in 1945 with the dropping of atomic bombs on Hiroshima and Nagasaki.

Today, we celebrate the end of World War II by remembering those who fought and died in the war. We honor their sacrifice and remember the lessons learned from this terrible conflict.

But we must also remember that the war was not an end in itself. It was a means to an end, a means to protect our way of life. And so we must continue to work to protect that way of life, to ensure that freedom and democracy prevail.

We must remember that the war was not just about fighting. It was also about building. The war helped to create new industries, new technologies, and new ways of living. And so we must continue to build on those foundations, to create a better future for ourselves and for our children.

We must remember that the war was not just about fighting. It was also about learning. The war helped to teach us about the importance of education, of science, and of technology. And so we must continue to learn, to develop new ideas, and to find new ways to solve our problems.

We must remember that the war was not just about fighting. It was also about peace. The war helped to bring about a new world order, a world in which nations work together to solve their problems. And so we must continue to work for peace, to build a world in which nations live together in harmony.

We must remember that the war was not just about fighting. It was also about hope. The war helped to bring about a new era of hope, an era in which people believe that tomorrow will be better than today. And so we must continue to hope, to believe that a better future is possible.

Noted Italian Historian To Give Graduate Lecture

Prof. Guido Thomson, outstanding scholar in the field of medieval history, will give the University of California an advance glimpse of his studies through a graduate lecture he will deliver at 6 o'clock tonight in the large auditorium of the Capitol Theatre. Prof. Thomson has held many outstanding positions with Italian universities since 1933 and has been a member of the American Historical Association. A native of Italy, Prof. Thomson received a Ph.D. degree in history from the University of California. He is a member of the University of America and has written on Roman history, medieval and historiographical subjects, a book on the history of Italy, and a number of articles on medieval history.

Author as Well

Professor Thomson has written on the political and economic problems as well as the applications and limitations of the medieval history subject.

Mr. Caelus, the president of the Student Senate, has been appointed to the position of assistant to the dean of the faculty. He will assume his duties immediately.

To Air Views
On Steinbeck

"John Steinbeck," the subject of the next lecture in the series sponsored by the Student Senate, is the name given to the program on this occasion. A successful writer, John Steinbeck, will present his views on his latest novel, "East of Eden," in which he discusses the theme of "The Empty City." The lecture will be presented by Dr. Charles B. Foster, of the literature department.

Friends Group Plans Discussion

The Friends Group of the Student Senate will meet tonight in the lounge of Iowa Student Union, with Dr. John S. Hartwell, of the English department, as the guest speaker. The program will focus on the novel "East of Eden," and the group will hear Hartwell discuss the themes and techniques he uses in his writing.

Four graduating members of the University of California, who have been awarded scholarships, will be presented with their awards next Tuesday and Wednesday. The winners are Adolph F. Bremer, of San Francisco, Calif.; W.M. Watson, chairman of the student chapter of the American Economic Association; and Yvonne Riley, of Anamosa, Iowa. The ceremony will be held in the student lounge of Iowa Student Union.

Dr. Raymond W. Siegel, of the college of commerce, will be chairman. Those participating in the ceremony will be Esther N. Hagen, of Cedar Rapids; James R. Layne, of Princeton; and Yvonne Riley, of Iowa City.
