No Answer!
A Note to the Possessors Among Us

The most depressing, yet at once the most reassuring statement of today's world came Saturday from the lips of our President, Franklin D. Roosevelt, to Ambassador Kennedy.

"I say What is there to be gay about?"

And then that enigmatic American observer of history, President Roosevelt, proceeded to explain why. He pointed to "the new pattern" among his generation of leaders—men and women—indeed, the world of the American goodbyes.

We recognize his position, but let us hope he is not right.

The path is not yet a path for democracy, but one of self-preservation, the assertion of the will to live, the will to continue the struggle for life. As long as she is there, we have of course to pay. The war for the preservation of Britain is, we hold, for the preservation of America. The war is not between 'preservation' and 'production' as the President seems to think it is.

The Question of Feeding People.

But the question, even in the heat of the day's politics, seems to us a question of the urgency of the need to feed the world, to a new nobility, but one of self-preservation, the assertion of the will to continue the struggle for life. As long as she is there, we have of course to pay. The war for the preservation of Britain is, we hold, for the preservation of America. The war is not between 'preservation' and 'production' as the President seems to think it is.

When has it not been the answer to the question of how much to spend, how much to save? How can we figure the problem of feeding people one for another?

Any how if we have an answer of demanded freedom in America, are we to face the nationalistic trend of President Roosevelt? We have heard the legend of America, the nation, of self-preservation, survival, success.

To this neither man nor the American people speak the name of so much as an answer, but only just principles by which we can live.

Therefore, let this nation seek not for yet the last and the last answer for the path that we tread in the heat of the day's politics, seems to us a question of the urgency of the need to feed the world, to a new nobility, but one of self-preservation, the assertion of the will to continue the struggle for life. As long as she is there, we have of course to pay. The war for the preservation of Britain is, we hold, for the preservation of America. The Case of Ethel Merman
And How We Brought Her in near by George Tucker

New York—It was Mrs. Louis B. Mayer who decided to ask Mr. Louis B. Mayer to bring Ethel Merman into the office on Monday. She was near to tears when she had received her visitor, but that didn't mean she wasn't interested.

She hadn't given an "Ethel Merman evening" since she had received the part in "The Pajama Game" on the night before last. But it did mean she had no idea what was happening to the right of the right.

She was right, however, and to a new nobility, but one of self-preservation, the assertion of the will to continue the struggle for life. As long as she is there, we have of course to pay. Professor Warren to Discuss Merits of 17th Century Poetry in Third Bacoonian Lecture

Lecture Scheduled Thursday Evening in Senate Chamber

Emerging in the late 17th century, the Bacoonian movement was the first time in history that poetry was introduced to the Senate. Prof. Robert Warren will trace the emergence of the Bacoonian movement, which was characterized by a shift towards a more naturalistic and everyday style of poetry.

The work of John Donne, a key figure in the Bacoonian movement, will be discussed. Donne's poetry, with its themes of love, death, and the human condition, set a new standard for poetic expression.

Additional readings with the Baco's target by devotionalism from the next century. A review of the role of the Bacoonian movement in the development of modern poetry will also be included.

Cadets Can Practice Mortar Firing Now

Capt. Joseph T. Zak Designs Firing Device

Capt. Joseph T. Zak, commander of the mortar company, has designed a firing device that allows the cadets to practice mortar firing.

This device, which is a simple sub-caliber mechanism, has been designed to simulate the actual firing of a mortar. The device is intended to provide cadets with the opportunity to practice and improve their skills in a safe and controlled environment.

Prof. L. Frost

Voted Honor

Prof. Lawrence Frost of the physics department is the latest Tesla Fellow. As such, he will be recognized for his contributions to the field of physics.

Prof. Frost's research has focused on the behavior of electrons in magnetic fields, a topic that has important applications in the development of new materials and technologies.

CAPT. J. T. ZAK DESIGNS FIRING DEVICE

By WILLIAM HENTHORNE

Robert Pickett of USC's faculty com- missioning the Poltergeists to teach his cadets to fire a mortar.

As a result of his training, the cadets can now practice mortar firing in a safe and controlled environment. The device is designed to be used in conjunction with a standard mortar, allowing cadets to gain valuable experience in a realistic setting.

The Poltergeists, an organization of students dedicated to the advancement of scientific knowledge, have welcomed the new firing device with enthusiasm.

LaMURGERY GETS

Seven New Books

Four books published this year are among the most reviewed in the field of physics. According to Librarian Felix L. P. "The Last Leaf of the Bough" by John P. "The Bulwark Project" by Isabella S. "The Federal Amendment" by Mary G. "The Diving Bell" by Vivian F. "The English books are "Secondhand Smokes," "The Life of a Connoisseur," "Tea for Two," and "Brown Sugar.""

The Federal Amendment is the story of a woman's struggle for justice in a world where the laws are made for the powerful and the powerful are often the most vulnerable.

SIDWELL'S

Homogenized Soft Curd Vitamin D Milk

This morning will witness the introduction in this city of Sidwell's Homogenized Soft Curd Vitamin D Milk, containing the Vitamin D concentrate, "Vitex," a "Better Milk," in both flavor and food value. This is our own pure, rich pasteurized milk to which has been added the Vitamin D, extracted from natural sources by a process developed in the laboratories of Columbia University.

In addition, the process of homogenization "breaks up" the cream content so that it is homogenized throughout the entire battle of milk. Homogenized milk, with "cream in every drop," is more quickly digested, too, because it forms a smaller, softer curd in the digestive process. It tastes richer and encourages all in the family to drink more nutritious milk.

Every quart of our Homogenized Soft Curd Vitamin D Milk contains 400 U. S. P. units of Vitamin D.

Medical Laboratory Will Give Course in Typing Pneumonia

A pneumonia typing course for nurses, to be given by Dr. E. H. Barnes of the state department of health, is to be held in the university medical laboratory, beginning today, according to Dr. W. T. Foster, who is to give the instructions. The course is open to all nurses in the state and is sponsored by the state department of health.

Dr. Foster, in preparing the course, has been in close consultation with the state department of health and with the various nurses' organizations to determine the practical value of the course to nurses. The course will begin today and will continue for three weeks.

The course is divided into four parts: practical, theoretical, and practical. The practical part will be conducted in the laboratory and will include the examination of patients with the help of the state health department.

The theoretical part will be given in the classroom and will include lectures on the theory of pneumonia, its diagnosis, and treatment.

The course is open to all nurses in the state and is sponsored by the state department of health. The course will begin today and will continue for three weeks.

Public Opinion Mayer's Topic

Professor to Analyse Election Polls Tonight For Philosophy Club

Professor, Norman C. Mayer, of the sociology department, will address the Philosophy Club tonight at 8:00 p.m. The subject of the address will be "Public Opinion and the International Situation." The meeting will be held in the Philosophy Club room of the line of halls.

The importance of the role of public opinion in the foreign policy of modern nations will be discussed. Mayer describes himself as a "dilettante" on the subject and will, therefore, give an informal talk to the club.

"The participation of the public has a profound effect on the foreign policy of modern nations," Mayer said. "Our foreign policy is more likely to be determined by those who are not responsible for the conduct of foreign policy than by those who are."
