The REAL Spirit

How CAN IOWANS FAN CREATE THE WINNING URGE WITHOUT DEGENERATING INTO A PEP RALLY MOB?

This is a little inside note to the students of the University of Iowa. For those who are in the mood, here's a little pep rally with wholesome high-fiving, heartfelt exhortation—fill it out and fill it up. Send copies to the editors of the different college and high school newspapers of your province rally. We don't want just any kind of pep rally, we don't want just any kind of enthusiasm, we want the kind of enthusiasm that will. . .

The idea of November 15th is to start that considered but powerful spirit of victory, short as it may sound small and work so that we're fighting hard as a country and not just as Iowa. . .

Nothing is worth believing with that—nothing is worth doing with that—nothing is worth expending energy for it— which distracts from the conspiring spirit of our determined nation.

We'd like that kind of stuff to win this coming season, to make it the kind of victory which is a credit to the Hawkeyes, to Iowa AMV and the good and loyal.

We'd like that kind of stuff that made that!

America's Movieland

OF A French Violinist, Paige's New Bond, and the US Army Group in NEW YORK—Let me hear you say "France-ment is right. It's round. It's ready. That's it.

After his appearance with the Pittsburgh Symphony Orchestra at Carnegie Hall in New York last month, Alphonse Poquoson was greeted at home in neighboring Fairport, N. Y., by some 1,500 students who whitened the snow to white. "Are you the Meadows' home sick you brought us from France?" they cried. "Yes, I say, you a descendant of Ponce de Leon!"

I'm not sure it's a story, but it's a story.

It's this issue in an American breed too. Haunted Paige, who never conducted his orchestra, a group of war workers, was a natural leader of the students of the university. This sort of leadership is not something which is usually found under 25, or over 25. All were born in the United States. Some of them are Poquoson's age, some are older. None of them take turns. They haven't handled the work without a week, they do it with a whiz and a quickness without a week.

Prospective: If he draws a resolution of your within the Caucus, it's Rarit Cap. Case, Cap. Case, or the whole lot. He's down town today.

Dear Mr. Editor:

I feel that the best way of giving our students an identity with the world situation is to go to the real news, and let them have it all, and then give them the words to express what they feel. Don't try to do anything

Objective in Speech Pathology, Research Discussed in Baconian Lecture Last Night

Professor Motzker Explains Disorders, Remedies for Defect

By GENE GODFREY

The three major categories of research in speech pathology are articulation and voice disorders, neurological signs, and compensation of the effects of such disorders, a professor at the University of Iowa last night explained. This, he said, is the main thrust of research at the present time.

Professor Charles B. Stouffer, from the Department of Speech and Hearing at the University of Iowa, told the audience that the emphasis on research is not in the remedy of speech disorders but in the prevention of the development of such disorders and in the compensation of the effects of such disorders.

In his speech, Professor Stouffer mentioned the importance of compensation of the effects of speech disorders and the importance of prevention. He also mentioned the importance of research in speech pathology.

The audience listened attentively as Professor Stouffer discussed the various aspects of speech pathology. The discussion was well-researched and was appreciated by the audience.

In conclusion, Professor Stouffer emphasized the importance of research in speech pathology. He encouraged the audience to continue to support research in this field.

Baconian Lecture is a series of lectures given by renowned experts in various fields. The objective of the lecture series is to provide educational and informative programs to the audience.
Pediatrician Says
Diets Lack Vitamins

Dr. Philip Jones of the department of pediatrics at the children's Hospital, reported at the regulat­ E dinner meeting of the Iowa City
Medical Society last week that,
 recent surveys made in this state showed there is lack of Vitamin A, B and C among the people who live here.

The surveys were conducted on over 500 people, the majority of whom were 18 to 50 years old.

The surveys showed that the people who were deficient in Vitamin A had a greater number of cases of eye infections and a higher rate of respiratory infections. The people who were deficient in Vitamin B had a higher rate of heart disease and a lower rate of respiratory infections. The people who were deficient in Vitamin C had a higher rate of skin infections and a lower rate of eye infections.

The surveys also showed that the people who were deficient in
Vitamin A had a greater number of Cases of eye infections and a higher rate of respiratory infections. The people who were deficient in Vitamin B had a higher rate of
heart disease and a lower rate of

Team Displays Renewed Spirit in Scrimmage

Hawks' Offense Gets Attention in Last Stiff Practice

Hawk's secondary finally came through against Minnesota formations in their first heavy football practice yesterday, coming out on top in a row of the Gopher team's last workouts.

It was a different team on the field, with the Hawks showing excellent spirit and intelligence, displaying the quarterback's plans tactfully and timely. At the same time, the Hawk defense was set back on the huddle by switching defenses both in the first and second teams.

Coaches Alternate

Two sets of players alternated in the first string team, as Bob Anderson and Gehr Carkoff traded off four plays, while Bob Wood and Al Smith, two veteran linemen, as defense, at times, were switched.

For Sooner Blocker Vital for Win

KANSAS CITY (AP) — Sooners hopes, dashed by a single point by the Huskers in Lincoln, are on the line today in a conference title game at Nebraska University, as Oklahoma block for a berth in the NCAA's Rose Bowl next January in Pasadena.

The Sooners will have to get past the Huskers Friday to get back to the national title game after a year of disappointment.

The fundamental problem for the Sooners is their defense, which was the main concern of the team's practice this week. The defense has to show up, because the only way to beat the Huskers is to force turnovers and get off the field.

Hawkers are locked in a battle with the Huskers, and the defense is key in preventing the Huskers from scoring.

The game is at the Missouri Athletic Club, and the Sooners can't afford to lose.

The Sooners are 9-1-1 for the season, and the Huskers are 7-2-1. The Sooners need a win to stay in the conference title race, and a loss would all but end their hopes.

The game is expected to be a close one, with the Sooners favored to win.

You Bel Your Life

When You

Gamble With Carelessness!

Have you ever thought of "carelessness" on a subject for an insurance photo? There are hundreds of insurance around us, on very heavy street corners, every day. We think that a picture which would show the dangers lurking in common occurrence would have good advertising value. Can you win such a picture? If you can, submit it to us. You may get the free prize.

And remember, we want any picture that will illustrate the value of insurance in any of its phases. But you better hurry. The time is getting short.

Mrs. Chas. Rogler's Puerto Rican Specialties

Iowa City Hostess Uses Fruits to Put zest in Dull Meals

By CORINNE HAYES

It makes a difference in presentation. Little and subtle things can make a big difference in our eating habits. Too often do we serve the same old foods the same way. Just serve some of the same old foods, but have the foods ready in different ways. A simple recipe may be changed by adding a little spice, flavor, gravy and other flavors. And flavoring the foods, instead of serving them cold.

Mrs. Rogler went on to explain that the foods she serves in her home are the foods she serves when entertaining. Mrs. Rogler is a member of the Women's Board of the University of Northern Iowa, a member of the Women's Club of Iowa City, and a member of the National Parent-Teacher Association.
