Army Experts Fit Their Men to Jobs

Joe R. Davis
Central Press Writer

On a war reservation three thousand miles from home in Montana, a group of local draftees were being turned to military life.

For Capt. Larry and Joe Joe, the other two who had not been drafted, the first week was a bit of a shock.

"That's the first time I've ever left home. I don't know what I'm doing," Joe Joe said.

They worked hard. They learned how to use a rifle, how to read maps, how to cook meals over a fire.

But the most challenging part was learning how to work with the other men.

"I'm not used to being around people," Joe Joe said.

"And I'm not used to being told what to do," Larry added.

But as the weeks went by, they learned to work together, to rely on each other.

"We're getting there," Larry said.

"But we still have a long way to go," Joe Joe added.

The draftees were part of a larger group of men who were being trained to work in the military.

Their training included learning the basics of military life, as well as learning specific skills like Blueprint Reading and Radio Telephonic Equipment. They were also being taught how to work with other men, to work as a team.

"It's not just about learning how to shoot a gun," Larry said. "It's about learning how to work with others, how to follow orders, how to be part of a team."

How One Iowa City Organization Has Gone All-Out for Victory

Veterans of Foreign Wars Group
Does Its Part in National Effort

Forcing the issue in civilian roles rather than on battlefields is an old habit with the Veterans of Foreign Wars who are again contributing wholeheartedly to the war effort.

Iowa City V. F. W. post 525, the "lucky" of the city's service groups, has always shown an enthusiasm and genuine community interest in the war effort. But only since the United Nations entered the present conflict has this organization's work been so remarkable.

Besides local activities pictured on this page, the post has cooperated with the national V. F. W. in procuring the United States army air corps with 33 army training planes costing $10,000 each. These planes were given to the army July 4.

Each post has granted the V. F. W. authority to solicit pledges to cover the costs and to distribute our corps information and preparatory books. This is the only organization of its kind given this responsibility.

Illustrated on this page are some of the various local activities which the V. F. W.'s organization has brought into their scope of war service—whether too late or too late.

The hard driving in the box,爱国主义的Veterans of Foreign Wars.

The Iowa City post has purchased more than $10,000 worth of Liberty Bonds, and recently embarked on a method by which it is able to buy bonds, every pensioner, pictured here are Charlie Smith, general manager of the V. F. W. post, becoming the chief of the city's investment in Liberty, at Carl Neon, Iowa City's head salesman, looks on. Not content with just selling bonds, the post has taken over all expenses of Coast to Coast in the First National Bank building.

V. F. W.'s most imaginative war contribution will be this huge bronze relief which will be displayed in college and Clinton streets. The name of every man from Johnson county to serve will be engraved on the relief, which will be permanently placed in the post, which will have a cemetery and local training station, and the surrounding ground will be seeded and terraced.
