Industrial employment was 15.3 percent down, and it was 15.5 percent below the peak.

Purchasing power of labor is maintained at a higher level than the purchasing power of wages.

Employment is still paid so that men who are not employed can go back to work by selling goods on the current market.

The economy, however, continues to need support and the workers who have been laid off are experiencing difficulties.

Tomoyuki also mentioned that the situation in Japan is not very encouraging.

His paychecks are getting smaller, and he earns less than before.

Some students at the University of Iowa are protesting against the cutting of jobs.

This is a serious problem, and the situation is not expected to improve soon.

The Council of Students is calling for a meeting to discuss the issue.

Letters to the Editor

To the Editor

Dear Editor,

I write to the Iowa Journal, a publication that has been in existence for several years. I believe that this publication has been an important source of information and entertainment for many people.

During the past year, the Iowa Journal has been actively involved in reporting on important issues such as the economy, politics, and social matters. I am particularly impressed by the way in which the Journal has been able to bring attention to important issues such as the economy, politics, and social matters.

I would like to commend the Journal for its efforts to provide a platform for diverse voices to be heard. The Journal has been successful in providing a forum for people from different backgrounds and perspectives to share their ideas and opinions. This has been particularly important in light of the current political climate, where there is a growing divide between different groups.

I encourage the Journal to continue its efforts to promote dialogue and understanding. Through its coverage of important issues, the Journal has the ability to bring people together and create a sense of community. I look forward to reading future issues of the Journal and seeing how it continues to contribute to the public discourse.

Sincerely,

Eakes, Veteran End, To Captain Hawkeyes In Burlington Game

Ralph Hanna was appointed Little Hawk game captain Monday for the Burlington game, right guard by coach Wally Frye.

"I'm thrilled to have the privilege of representing the team," said Hanna. "It's an honor to be in such a select group of players who have served the team so well."

Hanna, a senior, has played in all but two games.

NUSSEY END INJURED

LINDON, Neb. (AP)—A heavy fall 47-yard reception in the second period of Saturday’s game against Missouri, Tuesday, failed to hurt the Huskers.

That was the description of the injury yesterday as the Husker coach, who had been out of action since last week, returned to the gridiron. It is the second time the Husker coach has been out of action in the season.

Even the brief war m-up for these two teams is enough to cause a mental block and the Huskers were unable to get their offense into gear.

Lions Hears Daykin "Labor Wants Wages To Be Fixed"

"Labor wants security of income," according to Prof. W. G. Daykin, of the college of commerce. "Labor's problem is not what wages to ask, but what it can be insured against. The labor movement is fighting for security of income, not for a given wage." The meeting was attended by many local businessmen.
