Herbert Hoover announced at General Motors' Cadillac local that the General Motors strike settlement had been reached. The General Motors strike settlement was reached after a period of negotiations with the United  automobile workers union. The strike had been a significant event in the automotive industry, with thousands of workers involved. General Motors had been one of the major employers in the automotive industry, and the strike had drawn attention from both the automotive industry and the broader economy.The settlement was reached after a period of negotiations, with the双方 agreeing on a new contract that included various provisions, such as wage increases and improved working conditions. The settlement was announced at a press conference held at the Cadillac local, with Herbert Hoover, the head of the company, announcing the agreement. The announcement was met with relief by both the company and the union leadership, as well as by workers who had been involved in the strike.

OCT 24 1946

THE Chicago newspaper, the Chicago Daily News, was not the only one to report on the basketball game between the Chicago Rams and the Chicago Bears on October 24, 1946. The Daily News, along with other newspapers, covered the game, which was played in the Chicago Stadium. The game was the first of the season for both teams, and it was a hotly contested match.

The Rams had a solid lead early in the game, but the Bears came back to tie the game at 31-31 with 11 minutes left in the first quarter. The Rams then pulled away, leading 52-38 at halftime. In the third quarter, the Bears made a comeback, cutting the deficit to 63-51. However, the Rams held on to win the game, 98-79.

The Daily News reported that the Rams' lead was due to their strong performance on defense. The team's defense held the Bears to only 29 points in the second half, while the Rams scored 63 points in the same period.

The Daily News also reported that the game was a highly anticipated match between two of the top teams in the league. The Rams were the defending champions, while the Bears were last year's runners-up.

The Daily News reported that the game was a high-scoring affair, with both teams scoring more than 90 points. The Rams' quarterback, Bob Smith, had a standout performance, completing 17 of 23 passes for 276 yards and three touchdowns. The Bears' quarterback, Jim Donahue, had a solid performance as well, completing 14 of 24 passes for 194 yards and two touchdowns.

The Daily News reported that the Rams' defense was the key to their victory. The team's defense held the Bears to only 29 points in the second half, while the Rams scored 63 points in the same period.
