Italian Mob Riots in Rome

At 2 a.m. yesterday, a mob of some 10,000 people, mostly youths and students, gathered in Rome's Piazza San Marco and began to throw stones at the American Embassy. The mob, which included many members of the Communist party, was protesting the arrest of two Italian students who had been accused of planning a documentary film critical of the Italian government.

The police attempted to disperse the crowd with tear gas and water cannon, but the rioters continued to attack the embassy, causing damage to the building and the surrounding area. The mob also set fire to several vehicles, including a bus and a taxi.

The Italian government has condemned the riots and has called for a peaceful resolution of the conflict. The US government has also condemned the violence and has said that it is monitoring the situation closely.

Parley Okies Try To Solve Their Problems

The Okies, a group of Oklahoma farmers who have been protesting the low prices they receive for their crops, have announced that they will hold a meeting next week to discuss their options.

The Okies have been protesting for several weeks, and their demands include higher prices for their crops, better access to credit, and more support from the federal government.

The meeting will be held in Oklahoma City, and the Okies have invited representatives from the US Department of Agriculture and the Federal Reserve Bank to attend.

Agricultural Woes Continue

The agricultural situation in the US remains dire, with low prices for many crops and a glut on the market.

The Department of Agriculture has estimated that the US will produce 10% more corn than it consumed last year, and that the price of corn will drop further in the coming months.

Other crops, such as wheat and cotton, are also facing similar problems.

The Okies have called on the government to provide more support to farmers, including higher prices for their crops and more access to credit.

Justice Ruliford Grants Sigismondo Stay of Sentence

The Court of Appeals in Washington, DC, has granted a stay of execution to Sigismondo, a convicted murderer.

Sigismondo was sentenced to death for the murder of a woman in 1985. The court had previously denied his appeal, but he has filed a motion for a rehearing.

The stay was granted pending the rehearing, which is scheduled to take place next month.

The court's decision has been criticized by some legal experts, who say that it is not clear how the court reached its decision.

LONG LINES AT GROCERIES IN 47 CITIES
London, Ont., Reports Shortages as Serious As During Wartime

The London, Ont., grocery stores have experienced heavy losses in the past week due to a severe shortage of supplies. The stores have been forced to raise prices and limit the amount of goods they can sell. This has caused long lines outside the stores, with customers waiting for hours to get their groceries.

The shortage is said to be the result of a nationwide shortage of food supplies, which has been caused by a combination of factors, including a poor harvest, a shortage of workers, and a spike in food prices.

In London, Ont., the shortage has been particularly severe, with many stores running out of certain items. The city's mayor has called for the federal government to take action to address the shortage.

The UK government has said that it is monitoring the situation closely and that it will take action to address the shortage as necessary.

Anadarko, Okla. — In a week when the general strategy in the Middle East seems reflected in day by day news reports, the political and social scene in the state department is busy with the announcements of the U.S. military buildup in the Middle East.

The buildup in the Middle East, which is the latest manifestation of the U.S. policy of containment in the region, extends the list of nations that have increased their military capability in order to counter the perceived threat of the Soviet Union.

Writer searched with a grid of questions for the answer to the question, "What is the sport of bullfighting?" He found the answer in the works of famous bullfighters, including Delbert Wylder.

"One day while I was watching the corrida, a small child wandered off the course and was taken to the hospital. The child was fine, but his parents were worried. Wylder explained, "It's important that parents understand the risks involved in bullfighting."

The sport of bullfighting is considered by some to be dangerous, but Wylder argues that with proper training and safety measures, it can be a safe sport.
