U.S.-Soviet Relations Better Now

By RICHARD WALK

A report from the University of Iowa has shed light on the current state of U.S.-Soviet relations and how they might improve.

In the United States, there is growing consensus that better relations with the Soviet Union could bring significant benefits, both for the U.S. and for the world. This report, based on interviews with experts and policymakers, highlights several areas where progress can be made.

1. Economic Cooperation: It is widely recognized that increased economic cooperation can help build trust and reduce tensions. Efforts to expand trade and investment between the two countries could lead to mutual benefits.

2. Cultural Exchange: Programs that promote cultural exchange, such as student and academic exchanges, can help foster mutual understanding and respect.

3. Arms Control: The report emphasizes the need for continued efforts to reduce nuclear arsenals and prevent nuclear proliferation. This could be achieved through negotiations and verifiable agreements.

4. Environmental Cooperation: Both countries are facing significant environmental challenges, and working together on issues such as climate change and biodiversity can bring mutual benefits.

5. Healthcare and Public Health: Collaborative efforts in healthcare and public health can help improve the lives of people on both sides of the border.

6. Shared Challenges: The report highlights the shared challenges facing both countries, such as the COVID-19 pandemic, and suggests that working together on these issues could strengthen relations.

Overall, the report suggests that a new approach is needed to engage the Soviet Union in a way that benefits both nations. This approach should focus on concrete, mutually beneficial projects that can lead to broader cooperation over time.

Mexico--Its People Are Gentle

By SAMUEL GRATTON

Mexico, often portrayed as a land of poverty and corruption, is characterized by its gentle people and rich culture.

Traditional Mexican values such as respect, hospitality, and community are central to the country's way of life. These values have shaped the unique character of the Mexican people, who are known for their warmth and kindness.

Despite challenges such as poverty and political instability, the Mexican people maintain a sense of community and resilience. Their spirit is evident in the vibrant and colorful celebrations and festivals that are a hallmark of the country.

Mexico's rich history and diverse culture are reflected in its art, music, and cuisine. The country is known for its stunning landscapes, ancient ruins, and vibrant cities.

In conclusion, Mexico is more than just a country of contrasts. It is a place where gentleness and resilience coexist, offering a unique perspective on the human spirit.
Veterans to Discuss World Peace Views At Voters League

A round table discussion on "The Veterans Look at World Peace" will be presented to members of VFW Post 130, located in the Commercial building on Monday evening by the American Veterans committee in Iowa City.

Linn, instructor in the political science department, several members of the committee will present their views on questions of national defense and the role that the individual can play in securing international peace. The program will be held in the main lounge of the commercial building and will consist of an argument on the "peace-against-truce" proposition to which the audience will be invited to submit questions.

The meeting is open to the public and there will be no admission charge, Linn said.

Fiddusky's Performance Enchants Audience

By BILL VATER

A well-known soloist with wide experience in the musical field was the speaker at the recital Thursday evening by the visiting of the "Fiddusky and the "Busker" player." The program was well received by the audience who participated in the entertainment, which was arranged by a group of interested individuals. The program consisted of a variety of pieces, ranging from popular songs to classical works.

The recital opened with a short introduction by the speaker, followed by a few remarks on the history of music and its role in society. This was followed by a series of pieces, including a solo by Fiddusky, who played several pieces from different eras.

The pieces played included a variety of styles, ranging from classical to popular. The audience was particularly impressed by Fiddusky's skill in playing a variety of instruments, including the piano and the violin.

The recital concluded with an encore, which was well received by the audience. The recital was a great success, and the audience was grateful for the opportunity to hear such a talented musician.
SOMETHING NEW HAS BEEN ADDED!!

It's a two way radio system between Limited Cabs and the main office that gives you service on the spot. The second service of its kind in Iowa, Limited Cab is now equipped with frequency F.M., to revolutionize the taxi service as we know it with many benefits to our public transportation system. The instantaneous reception between home station and the cabs will provide customers with immediate service, but will reduce traffic congestion and street speeding. This reduction of deadhead mileage enables us to equal the service of fifteen ordinary cabs.

REMEMBER THESE BENEFITS! On the spot service, emergency runs to hospitals, etc. Dispatching of cabs to points immediately, and in numbers to baseball, basketball, and football games; heavy bus or train arrivals; theatre or school crowds; and breakdowns or tie-ups in other means of transportation. Reduction of traffic congestion and hazards. A possible reduction of rates, by cutting down on mileage per call. For your satisfaction, TO SAVE TIME DIAL 9629—but when you do, be ready to go—
