How Much Is a Child's Life Worth?

The tragic death of Keith Howell yesterday ought to be burning this question in the mind of every Iowa citizen—how much is a child's life worth?

When the log on which Keith was riding in the flooded area of City Park hit a hole, he went down. He never came up—alive. He didn't have a chance—he couldn't swim.

His companion told a Daily Iowan reporter, "I'd have tried to get him but I can't swim."

Neither boy has ever had a decent chance to learn to swim. Iowa City voted in 1941 to float $62,500 in bonds for a municipal swimming where the children could learn to swim. The war came along and construction was impossible.

Six years later, Iowa City is without a city pool because costs have shot up so the same pool planned in 1941 would now cost around $100,000—the difference of $40,000.

It's possible that $40,000 stood between life and death yesterday for Keith. Knowing how to swim in not automatic insurance against water tragedy. Sometimes even the best of swimmers drown. But ability to swim is at least the chance to escape.

Keith Howell couldn't swim. Neither can countless other Iowa City boys and girls. Will one of them find himself facing death in the water today or tomorrow?

University pools, by order of the state board of education, cannot be used by the city. Classes at the junior high school pool are limited to 25 in each group for the daily hour of summer instruction. This is simply inadequate.

Mr. and Mrs. Iowa City, could your child swim if he were suddenly faced with a life-and-death struggle in the water? How much would it be worth to you to know that at least he would have the chance that Keith Howell didn't? Is it worth your share in the additional $40,000 it would take to build a municipal swimming pool?

No amount of money can restore Keith's life, but money wisely invested in a swimming pool might save the lives of others.

Iowa City desperately needs a municipal swimming pool NOW.

Rampaging Iowa River Won't Give Up; New Floods Seen

Although the Iowa river receded slightly late yesterday, a rise is expected sometime this morning with the crest possibly surpassing the high of 14.6 feet reached at 2 p.m. yesterday.

This means that Iowa City has not seen the end of high waters that have flooded lowlands, forced evacuation of at least three families and indirectly attributed to the death of an Iowa City boy.

According to L.C. Crawford, associate director of the hydraulics research institute, the water had receded .2 of a foot in the period between 2 p.m. and 8 p.m. yesterday.

However, he warned of a rise coming sometime this morning as a result of a one-half foot rise reported from Homestead yesterday afternoon.

Floods Sweep Over State

BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

As swirling flood waters poured over large sections of southern Iowa land yesterday, temperatures over the state zoomed upward approximately 20 degrees during the day.

The heavy rains of Wednesday night, amounting to more than five inches in some Southwest and South Central Iowa communities, isolated many farms, caused hundreds of families to evacuate their homes, disrupted rail traffic, necessitated closing of many Iowa highways and cut off communication to at least seven small Iowa communities.

Cost Stops Action on Swim Pool

By ART HEUSINKVELD
Civic leaders yesterday agreed that a municipal swimming pool would greatly facilitate swimming instruction and thus help prevent water tragedies such as cost the life of Keith Howell. But prospects for a pool here appeared dim because of inflated construction costs.

In 1941, $62,500 in bonds were issued to build a pool after voters approved the move in a special election. Mayor Preston Koser yesterday pointed out that a project like the one for which plans already have been drawn would now cost from $90,000 to $100,000.

Adding that "it is doubtful if we could get a contractor to bid on a pool now," the mayor said a special election would be necessary to have citizens approve a bond issue covering the additional sum required.

Boy Scout Executive George R. Gragg declared that swimming and life saving instruction are a regular part of the scout program and that a university pool has been used in the past. The scout leader "hopes" to secure its use again for future training purposes.

Gragg said a municipal pool would be a "great help" in broadening the instruction program. "We could expand it 1,000 percent for both boys and girls," he asserted.

Prof. M. Gladys Scott, chairman of a Red Cross committee on swimming safety, said that organization is prepared to furnish expert instructors for an extensive teaching program but is hampered by insufficient facilities.

She related that the Red Cross chapter here has cooperated with the recreation center's program and emphasized that a public pool would enable many more children to become water-proficient than now have the opportunity.

Swimming classes are scheduled to start June 16 at the junior high school pool, according to J. Edgar Frame, director of the recreation center. But limited facilities permit a class size of only 25 for the hour sessions of four different age groups, he said, and more children want to attend than can be accommodated.

The recreation commission runs into the added difficulty of an inadequate budget. Frame reported, adding that a larger pool could still be operated at the expense now required under the junior high setup. The tentative instruction program will run for 10 weeks this summer.

Word that the city's $62,500 is not enough for the sort of pool originally planned also came from (See SWIMMING POOL Page 4)

Couldn't Swim -- Youth Drowns While Playing in Flood Waters

By JIM BECKER

Keith Howell, 10, son of Mr. and Mrs. Carl Howell, 621 Reno street, drowned yesterday morning when he rolled from a log into a pool of deep water while playing in City park.

According to 13-year-old Jimmy York, 1119 E. Church street, companion of the victim, Keith was "floating on a log" near the deer pens in the west section of the park when the accident occurred.

Keith, who attended the fourth grade at Horace Mann school, "went down when the log turned over," Jimmy said. "He never came up."

"I'd have tried to get him," he added, "but I can't swim." Keith was also unable to swim, he said. Jimmy was standing near the edge of the muddy water when his companion went under.

Jimmy first appealed to two girls standing nearby to aid him. Finding they too were unable to swim, he ran to the cabins near the park pavilion where he told George Turecek, park superintendent, what had happened.

Turecek instructed Jimmy to have someone at the pavilion call the firemen and then hurried to the scene of the accident.

Called by Mary Margaret Lowenberg at City park, firemen arrived shortly after 11 a.m. and put off in a boat to search for the body with grappling hooks. The body was located by Fireman Vernal Shimon in about 10 minutes.

Deputy Sheriff Marold Glaspey, who was diving for the boy, helped firemen Shimon and Walter Garwood get the body into the boat and to shore.

Water was shallow where the two boys had been playing. At the spot where the body was found, however, the water was deep. As Turecek explained, the land dropped suddenly there to form the west pond in City park.

Artificial respiration began immediately and a resuscitator was used in an attempt to revive the boy. Efforts were abandoned a half hour later after the arrival of County Coroner F. L. Love.

The body was taken to Hohen-shuh mortuary where funeral services will be held at 2:30 p.m. tomorrow. Burial will be in Oakland cemetery.

Besides his parents, Keith is survived by a brother, Aaron Lee, 12, and a sister, Karalyn Kay, 7.

This is Iowa City's first death by drowning since April 1, 1946, when John Rothlisberger, university student, drowned when a canoe overturned on the Iowa river.

U.S. Ratifies Peace Pacts

WASHINGTON (AP)—The United States, through its senate, yesterday ratified the first four peace treaties to come out of World War II—those with Italy, Bulgaria, Rumania and Hungary.

The 79 to 10 roll call vote accepting the Italian treaty and the easy voice vote approvals for the other three, however, did not signify unbounded enthusiasm for the pacts hammered out by the big four foreign ministers.

Speaker after speaker voiced fears that Italy, like Hungary, might be engulfed by communism when U. S. occupation troops pull out.

Occupation troops are to be removed from the countries affected within 90 days after the four treaties become finally effective.

However, Russia still would be permitted to maintain forces to maintain communication lines to Soviet-occupied areas of Germany and Austria.

The treaties become effective when ratified by the U. S., Britain, Russia and France and formal notices of ratification are filed.

Great Britain has ratified the treaties, France is technically in process of ratification and Soviet Russia has yet to act, it was said at the state department.

College 'Herd' Eroding Reproduction Low -- Gregg

By JIM MCGUIRE

Low rates of reproductivity among university graduates may soon result in the "human erosion" of society.

This warning was sounded last night by Dr. Alan Gregg, director of medical sciences at Rockefeller foundation, New York, in his centennial address at Macbride auditorium.

"Being the direct successors of frontiersmen, we think that warning fantastic," Dr. Gregg said. "We think nature wonderful, the herd—whether human or buffalo—inexhaustible, and the farm

Probe Russia's Hungary Plan

BUDAPEST (AP)—An authoritative American source said yesterday the British and American governments had taken the first step toward a possible United Nations inquiry into Communist assumption of complete power in Hungary.

The informant said the first move was the demand by Britain and America upon Russian authorities here yesterday for copies of the documents—the Russian "proff"—which were used to unseat Premier Frenck Nagy. These documents were the "confession" of an arrested secretary general of the Nagy party that the premier was implicated in a plot to overthrow "Hungarian democracy."

A second step, the informant added would be the renewed demand within a day or two by Britain and America for a three-power investigation of Hungarian politics.

Truman Indicates U.S. Intervention in Hungary

WASHINGTON (AP)—A strong American protest to Russia was indicated yesterday after President Truman blasted the Communist seizure of power in Hungary as an outrage demanding action by the United States.

Mr. Truman stepped publicly into the situation yesterday when he said the United States did not intend to stand idly by.

that was good enough for father will never give out."

Dr. Gregg pointed out that the 98 SUI faculty members listed in Who's Who have only 176 children. He said census figures for 1940 showed that 100 college women graduates between the ages of 45 and 49 produced 123 children, while 100 women who had less than fourth grade education produced 433.

According to Who's Who, Dr. Gregg has four children. He was 33 at the time of his marriage.

"I would expect democracy to last longer and universities to flourish more when those who have valued higher education are not a restricted or vanishing minority," he explained.

Infertility of college graduates was attributed to the following factors:

(1) Marriage is postponed from four to 10 years at a time in the lives of young men and women when under other circumstances families would be formed.

(2) Academic tradition, harking back to monastic orders, reinforces the general assumption that the university student needs all his time for his studies.

Universities have done little to remove obstacles to family life, except under the pressure of post-war conditions, according to Dr. Gregg. Referring to younger staff members, he said their salaries should be such as to keep a man, wife and two children, and to enable them to give at least one son an education similar to their own.

"How often are salaries high enough to bear the scrutiny of the biologist who tests the adequacy of an animal's environment by asking, 'Do they renew their kind in this environment?' That is a decisive test of a healthy environment."

Dr. Gregg also assailed universities for "running away from the flesh." He said that they provide dormitories for men and dormitories for girls, but that it has taken the GI Joe and his Josephine to suggest that there can be an academic life after marriage which is "certainly as earnest and probably more sound in its long term values than the anxious celibacy hallowed by the clerical tradition of single-minded scholarship."

He recommended the planning of a center that would facilitate the lives of young married students.

Labor Bill Opponents Delay Senate Vote

WASHINGTON (AP)—Bitter-end opponents of the Taft-Hartley labor bill stuck to their guns last night and forced at least a day's delay in taking a Senate vote to give final congressional approval to union-curbing legislation.

Senate Republican leaders abandoned hope, in the face of sharp attacks by Senators Pepper (D-Fla.), Morse (R-Ore.) and others, of getting a vote until today.

There was no doubt the Senate would follow the lead of the House and approve the bill.

The only question was whether it would roll up a vote large enough to override a veto.

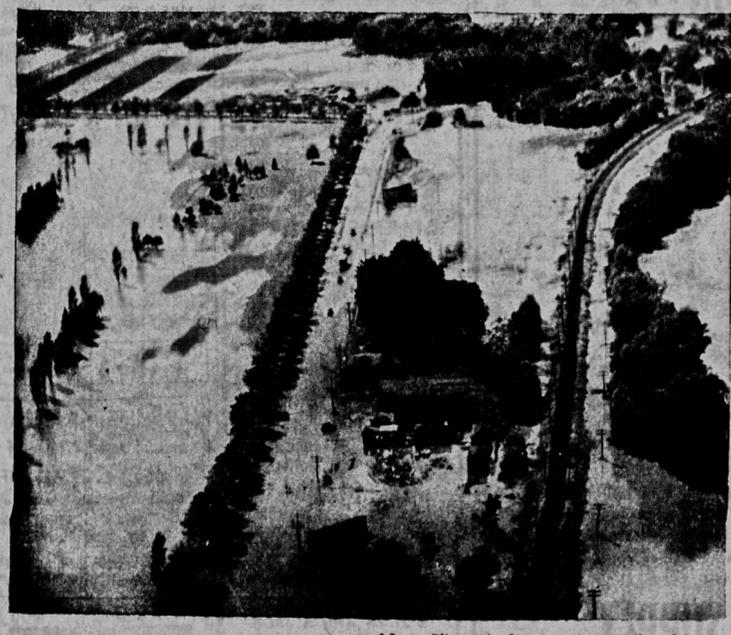

As dispatch of the legislation to the White House neared, a trio of house democrats appealed to President Truman to veto the measure.

Cubs, Giants Split; Dodgers In Lead

Chicago Takes 1st Game 5-1; N.Y. Wins 9-3

NEW YORK (AP)—The New York Giants and the Chicago Cubs fought to a standstill yesterday and as a result they relinquished their grip on the National League lead to the Brooklyn Dodgers by 10 percentage points.

After the Cubs took the opener, 5-1 behind the three hit pitching of Paul Erickson, the Giants came back and squashed the Cubs in the nightcap, 9-3 on the strength of an eight run third inning rally that saw 13 Giants parade to the plate.

During the Giants' big frame, the Cubs used three pitchers, starter Johnny Schmitz, Bill Lee and Russ Meyer. Buddy Kerr and Monty Kennedy contributed two singles each during the rally which Sid Gordon started with a single. Rigney accounted for the final Giant run by smashing a homer in the sixth.

Kennedy, who started against the Cubs Wednesday and lasted only three innings, experienced only one bad inning the second, when the Cubs scored all of their runs on a single by Phil Cavarretta, doubles by Clyde McCullough and Eddie Waitkus and Len Merullo's one bagger.

In the opener, Erickson was in trouble a number of times but had the stuff in the clutch. The Cubs picked up a run in the first off starter Larry Jansen and two more in the sixth when Thomson and Joe Lafata collided attempting to catch a fly by Waitkus with two down and two on. They added their remaining runs in the seventh on singles by Merullo, Lonnie Frey, Peanuts Lowrey and Marv Rickert's ground out.

Cards Blast Braves 5-3 With Brecheen, Marion Setting Pace

BOSTON (AP)—Marty Marion's fourth home run of the season with two mates aboard and one out in the ninth inning yesterday gave the St. Louis Cardinals a 5-3 victory over the Boston Braves.

The triumph was the sixth of the season for Harry (The Cat) Brecheen who was aided by two unearned runs earlier in the game, and the fourth loss of the year for Johnny Sain who had a slight edge on Brecheen until the ninth.

Enos Slaughter and Ron Northey singled in succession in the ninth and after Whitey Kurowski fouled out, Marion poked his four mester, a high fly which just squeezed by the left foul pole by a foot and which barely skimmed the top of the wall.

Ass't Hawk Coach Says — All Should Learn To Swim

— Fear Is Big Obstacle

Almost everyone can and should pass the swimming test after one or two periods, Havlicek said, others need from eight to ten weeks. To pass the test a man must be able to swim 40 yards using any stroke "except the dog paddle."

Havlicek, who teaches men students the fundamentals of swimming, estimates that 35 to 40 percent of the students entering physical education classes do not know how to swim, but all are given the opportunity to learn.

"Fear of water," said Havlicek, "is the biggest obstacle to overcome in learning to swim."

This fear of water is usually due to some childhood scare—a drowning death in the family or the memory of being pushed into deep water, he stated.

He added that most people who fear water are able, through personal instruction, to gain enough confidence to overcome their fears and to become adequate swimmers. Although some men are able to

Yankees Game Out As Chandler Ruins Detroit Bid 7-0

DETROIT (AP)—New York's surging Yankees closed in on league-leading Detroit yesterday with a 7 to 0 victory that trimmed the Tigers' first place edge to a single game.

Surgeon (Spud) Chandler, who pitched a three-hit shutout and Tommy Henrich, who smacked a pair of home runs, were the fair-haired boys yesterday as the Yanks took their fourth victory in six games with Detroit this year and won the series three games to one.

The game was interrupted for seven minutes by a shower and enlivened by a near-brawl a few moments later when Yankee Catcher Ralph Houk was put out of the game and Tiger Pitcher Freddie Hutchinson banished from the dugout as a result of a series of run-ins around the plate in the fourth inning.

Bill Johnson, who had singled, bowled Detroit Catcher Hal Wagner over as he scored on Phil Rizzuto's double and Houk, awaiting his turn at bat, charged Wagner when he thought the Detroit backstop was blocking Johnson off the plate.

Players from both dugouts poured onto the field and Hutchinson started swinging at Johnny Lucadello before the umpires restored order.

The Yanks went on to score three times before the inning was over, added another run off Al Benton in the fifth and finished up with Henrich's two homers, third and fourth of the season.

Chandler, taking his fourth win against four setbacks, yielded just three singles, by Hoot Evers, Eddie Lake and Pat Mullin, walked one man and permitted the Tigers to put one other man on base on Johnson's error. Two Detroit runners got so far as second and nobody reached third.

Taylor Stops Buc Nine 3-0 On Two-Hitter

BROOKLYN (AP)—The Brooklyn Dodgers took over first place in the tight National League pennant race yesterday as rookie righthander Harry Taylor blanked the Pittsburgh Pirates, 3-0, on two hits.

The win moved the Brooks ten percentage points ahead of the New York Giants and Chicago Cubs who split a twin bill and dropped into a tie for second place. It also enabled the Brooks to sweep their four game series from the Pirates.

Jackie Robinson and Bruce Edwards accounted for six of the ten hits yielded by Fritz Ostermueller and Hank Behrman. Robinson belted a homer and two singles and Edwards a triple, double and single.

Manager Billy Herman of the Pirates was chased by Umpire Butch Henline in the eighth inning for protesting a called strike on Cully Rikard. Pitcher Edson Bahr and Coach Zach Taylor also were bounced in the same frame for heckling Henline from the bench.

Dean Shannon went all the way for the Knights giving up nine blows over the seven-inning route. It was the third loss for the K. of C. in as many starts.

Tucker and Bailey led the Cardinal attack with a triple apiece. The tilt lasted a short fifty-seven minutes.

Tonight the Yellow Cab will inaugurate their season against Bremers. The game will begin at 6 o'clock at the City high field.

Sports Shots

By Bob Collins

The unfortunate drowning out at City park yesterday made us just a little thankful that the university forced us to learn how to swim in our freshman year. Before that came about we were frightened to death of water in any form and leary as what benefit such instruction could give. We'd always had a lot more fun on the river bank than in the water, or so it seemed.

Nevertheless we passed the test after trying unsuccessfully to just jump in, walk across the bottom and climb out again. And with success came new confidence in our own ability, a new respect for water and a new appreciation for swimming.

Actually what we need is more swimming instruction all through our system of education. It's a great sport anyway you look at it and, who knows, it may save lives in emergencies. Old Man River is a grim reaper and disaster such as yesterday's emphasize the need for meeting the issue by each city no matter how large or small. Always, it seems, we are putting dollars ahead of lives as we put off building municipal facilities for such things.

Last night as we were cleaning out one of the drawers so that we could fill it up all over again, we came across a little booklet entitled "An Outline Survey of Journalism." Good thing we did too before some of the people that run this place found it and read the section on sports. They'd probably come to the conclusion that we're the wrong people for the job as outlined so completely therein.

If we covered the number of events as completely as the Survey advocates, we'd need not one page but four each evening except the busy ones when the rest of the editors could go home and turn the "Daily Miracle" over to us completely.

We're considerably shaken by the whole chapter. It seems that sports writers are now called upon to use good English and grammar as well as to avoid using technical terms or undue sports slang. And here all along we've thought commas were something to use like boldface

Harvard Professor Gives Literature Social Treatment

BY MARGARET OLMSTED
Teaching literature as a social analysis rather than from an aesthetic point of view is the method used by Prof. Howard Mumford Jones in his English classes at Harvard university.
Jones will speak on "The State University and Graduate Education" in Macbride auditorium at 8:15 tonight.
Poets and writers told us about the rise of fascism years before we realized the danger, he asserted. The "practical man is not always as practical" as the writers who are called dreamers.
Anyone who reads literature sensitively and carefully can sense what society will be like five or ten years hence, Jones asserted, giving as an example Robert Lowell's "Lord Weary's Castle."

PROF. HOWARD M. JONES

"There is no hope at all for the human race,"
Schools and colleges, he stated, offer a vast preparedness to the individual when he brings "great issues" down to common sense.
Setting a goal for education, Stoddard declared, "the university has a part to play in the establishment of peaceful relations among all nations. The call is for integrity, straight thinking, and a love of humanity."
He decried the habit of the majority to "think fitfully." For most people, he said, the fields of economics, psychology, and sociology are "a closed book."
"It is the urgent problem of every university to open this book wide," he declared and continued: "Clearly modern education must include within its grand structure an understanding of the forces that make for peace and war."
"The time has come for every American to realize that it is war, war above all else, that ruins us."
"We must discover what nations fight for. If their needs are legitimate, we must do everything possible to help supply them. We can have no disembodied peace. We can have only people's peace, shared by all and available to all in terms of human aspirations."
To Air Lewin Study
An experiment begun at the Iowa Child Welfare station under Dr. Kurt Lewin will be dramatized at 6 p.m. today in the CBS documentary unit production "Experiment in Living."
The experiment, completed by the late Dr. Lewin at the Massachusetts Institute of Technology, studied the reactions of 10-year-old boys in autocratic and democratic environments.
The influenza epidemic of 1918, originating in Asia, resulted in the loss of more lives than did the first World War.

Stoddard Sees War Abolished By Education

"Recently science has been applied only to the waging of war—and with horrible results... Social science should now be tried in a billion dollar analysis of war's underlying conditions."
So spoke University of Illinois President George D. Stoddard as he made a plea for education as a means for formulating a "public policy." Dr. Stoddard talked yesterday afternoon at the first of four centennial lectures at the University of Iowa commencement.
"Every person needs to know more about man, and about conditions that affect his welfare," he said. "He is caught in social trends; in a crisis, his life and the safety of his country will depend upon a quick recognition of where the issues lie."

PANEL DISCUSSION
A panel discussion on "The University in a Democracy" will be given by the four Centennial lecturers, President George D. Stoddard, Dr. Alan Gregg, Dr. Thomas Munro and Prof. Howard Mumford Jones, in the Senate chamber at 10 o'clock this morning.
Prof. M. Willard Lampe will be moderator of the forum. The forum will be open to the public.

of approximately 200 in Macbride auditorium, Stoddard said educators can make sure every person becomes aware of problems outside his own particular field.
"I hope, therefore, that we shall cling to learning, never for a moment yielding to the poisonous notion that it is futile to cultivate the human mind. If such work be wrong," he said,

Lauds Iowa's Lead In Art Education

By FRANCIS ROBBINS
The University of Iowa has taken the lead in art education among colleges and universities in the nation, Thomas Munro, curator of education for the Cleveland museum of art, said last night.
The versatile educator arrived in Iowa City last night to take part in the centennial lecture series.
"Generally speaking colleges are now in their infancy in the field of art education," he explained. "There has been too much emphasis on specialization in the study of the visual arts."
Munro, who has written books in such diversified fields as economics and aesthetics, sees the "scientific approach" to art as coming from a course in social science and history as well as from a drawing class.
"The real problem is to find out what art really is instead of relying entirely on emotional preferences," he said.

PROF. THOMAS MUNRO

"It is time to study the arts in a systematic way."
He said the advances made in such fields as psychology and history have opened vast new aspects of art education that were not possible a half century ago.

Visual art is as much evidenced in a toaster on the kitchen table and in city planning as in sculpture and painting in an art gallery, he explained.
"It is a reflection of all the various phases of our culture, religion and economics, as well as entertainment."

Munro will speak at 3 p.m. today in Macbride auditorium on "New Approaches in the Study of Arts."

Alumni Dinner Tonight

Classes of '32, '37 and '42 will be honored at a dinner in Iowa Union at 6 p.m. tonight.

Included on the informal program will be a recording of Mrs. I. P. Wilson's broadcast over WMT Feb. 25. The 95-year-old Mrs. Wilson is the university's oldest living alumna. She was one of 50 members of the class of 1870.

Guests at the dinner will be given a copy of the statute which authorized establishment of the university.

Meredith Willson Gives 'Iowa' Song to SUI

Meredith Willson, composer, recently contributed the musical scores of his song "Iowa" and a symphony to the University of Iowa's collection of compositions by native Iowans, it was announced yesterday.
Willson, born in Mason City, sent the original manuscript of his song "Iowa," selected as the theme of the state centennial in 1946. The score, with the 53-page photostatic copy of the symphony "Missions of California," will be a part of the university library's rare books collection.
Now housed in the university library's rare books room at Macbride hall, the collection will be placed in the "Iowa room" with other gifts of Iowa authors and composers when the new library is built.

SUI Band to Complete Concert Series Tonight

Tonight's concert by the university band under the direction of C.B. Righter will be the last in the commencement series.
It will be presented at 7 p.m. from the band shell just south of Iowa Union.
Two marches, "The Desert Patrol" by King and "Sempere Fidelis" by Sousa will help to make up the variety program.
Included will be three selections of folk dances, "Italian Polka" by Rachmaninoff, "Pizzicato Polka" by Delibes, and "Three Dances" by German.
Other presentations will be "Bridal Song" by Goldmark, "Intermezzo" by Coleridge-Taylor, "Manx Overture" by Wood, and "Monsieur Beaucaire Suite" by Rosse-Bucalossi.

New Freight Rates May Change The Nation's Industrial Life

By SIGRID ARNE AP Newsfeatures Writer WASHINGTON—Shortly the South's long-time complaint over freight rates will begin to get its test of fire.

For decades Southern business men have argued it was difficult to get manufacturing going in the South because Southern freight rates on manufactured goods were higher than those in the manufacturing heart of the nation—the Northeast.

Now the Supreme Court has agreed with the South. Sometime this summer, as a result, railroads from Denver eastward must put into effect new rates which will come close to leveling the differences.

The changes were ordered by the Interstate Commerce Commission (ICC) to take effect Jan. 1, 1946. But several Northern states protested, and the changes had to wait the Supreme Court decision.

Further ICC order: to rewrite all their rate schedules so there is mile-for-mile equality.

Arguments over the change go straight to the complicated heart of the national economy. A few basic facts have to be understood:

1. Three different sets of freight rates apply to manufactured goods in transit in the area from Denver eastward. They are lowest in the Northeast, higher in the South and West.

2. Raw materials, generally speaking, are hauled from the South and West to the Northeast, and then the manufactured goods are shipped back.

3. But the biggest market will still be in the Northeast, which has 48 percent of the population, buys 76 percent of the industrial machinery, and 64 percent of all goods.

It is that market in the Northeast which factories in other areas want to reach on an equal footing with Northeastern manufacturers, and the new rates should make it more nearly possible.

It's thought by some there will be a slow shift of manufacturing out of the Northeast and into the South and West. That could mean a shift of population as well. What will it mean to investments in such Northern cities as Albany, Boston, Waterbury and Cleveland? If the shift happens, it will cost money just to put up the new factories.

I'D RATHER BE RIGHT We Drew the Line--Russia Fills In

By SAMUEL GRAFTON New York Post Syndicate There goes Hungary. The "Truman Doctrine" is answered. The Communists, with a tiny minority, have taken the country over.

Now the Supreme Court has agreed with the South. Sometime this summer, as a result, railroads from Denver eastward must put into effect new rates which will come close to leveling the differences.

When, with bombast and ridiculous grandiloquence, we proclaimed that the Greek and Turkish borders were our bastions, our line, our sacred perimeter, we practically invited the Russians to make it their line, too, and to come up as close to the edge of it as they could.

It is interesting that both Mrs. Anne O'Hare McCormick and Mr. Walter Lippmann, our two best-informed commentators on foreign affairs, now have serious doubts about the wisdom of the "Truman Doctrine," or at least about the trumpery eloquence against which it has been set off.

It might have been all right to help these two countries, as we have helped so many others. Where our statesmen, so to speak, went wrong was in injecting a second-hand geopolitics into the picture, reducing this to a cardboard world of disputed and disjointed squares, babbling about final challenges and ultimate defenses and last stands and what was ours, and what was theirs.

We carried on in this cosmic and belligerent fashion to a point at which even the British, who had held this line before us, were embarrassed by our big talk, and hardly knew which way to look.

Our play was obviously to prevent this kind of dismal organization along any line; our play was to set up a rehabilitation plan for western Europe, at any cost, to invite every nation in the world, without exception, to share in it, to insist on a universal and to reject a zonal approach, to take every complaint, patiently and stubbornly, to the United Nations, to set up a democratic tumult and holler which would have the whole world for its goal, and which would not consent to crouch smugly, ever, behind some thin line of soldiers strung out along a lonesome ridge.

If we are to save ourselves, we had better get rid of some of the line-drawing realists, and call the so-called idealists back in, quickly. But at the moment the "realists" seem to have the upper hand, as in the person of Mr. Herbert Hoover, with his suggestion that we ought to make a separate peace with our half of Germany; he thus becomes a spokesman for those who want to draw up still more lines, and further mark out the boundaries of struggle.

But this is not a cardboard world; and the paradox is that idealism can make much greater demands, with much less hostility. We can still save ourselves, but we must act quickly; a few more months of such "realism" may, in the Europe of 1947, ruin us.

Currier continued to serve the university as Historiographer and it is to him that we owe gratitude for a collection of both manuscripts and printed material which related to all phases of life as it centered about the university. He assembled all these facts in twelve scrap books, which are now housed in the rare book room of the university library.

Currier died early on Sunday morning, May 12, 1909. The minister of the church which he had served so faithfully for almost fifty years said, "He knew how to make much of life in himself and in others."

Military Training Is Symbol of a Wake

By SAMUEL GRAFTON New York Post Syndicate It is a dreary world that the President's Advisory Commission on Universal Training bids us look forward to. Its report cries in the night, like a cat on a back fence.

From now on, according to the Commission (and a very liberal, distinguished and decent Commission it is) we must keep watch on the far horizons for atomic attack, telescopes to our eyes, we must bury some of our war plants underground.

We must begin compulsory military training of 18-year-old boys, at a cost of $1,750,000,000 a year. The Commission, which doesn't like these developments any more than anybody else, makes a brave attempt to say that these moves will help to preserve the peace.

When this is the best that can be produced by such people as Joseph E. Davies, Harold W. Dodds, Daniel A. Poling, Anna M. Rosenberg, Samuel Rosenman, etc., then we know how dead our dream is. This is a syllabus for a wake.

If this is the postwar world, it's a stinker. If this is the best we can have, after the kind of war we had to fight, then we should proclaim a day of national mourning, with slow drums beating while this report is read over the radio, and with bits of black cloth

Tumult and Shouting

The outstanding problem today is not child labor or inadequate diet of our children, but juvenile delinquency. Duty is a hard word and so is sin. There are words that are rarely heard today, either in school or in the home.

The verdict of history will hinge on events and discussions during the balance of this year. Rulers of the states dare not let slip this opportunity. It may be—God forbid—the last opportunity.

Presently the Belgian Congo has factually become the property of American monopolists, the supplier of raw materials for making atomic bombs which serve as a weapon of foreign political blackmail and preparation for imperialistic aggression.

It occurs to us that General Eisenhower has somehow tuned in on the wave length of the American people—that when he speaks, it's generally to say what's on the minds of most of us.

It must be clear that aid to Greek agriculture — aid on a substantial scale — offers the most promising avenue for the return of Greece to economic and political health.

Amos Currier Best Remembered As a Teacher

(This is the first of a series of four articles on outstanding University of Iowa faculty members whose memoirs have been published by the centennial committee.—The Editor.)

Almost one hundred years ago it was said that Amos Noyes Currier "possessed the elements of a natural teacher." How well he was to prove that during 40 years service to the University of Iowa in its formative years!

Prof. Luella M. Wright of the English department relates the life of this pioneer Iowa educator in one of the monographs being published in the university centennial memoir series.

A native of New Hampshire, Currier came to the university in 1867, with a heritage of hard New England winters, 10 years at struggling Central college in Pella and four years Civil war service behind him. He served the university capably as professor, head of the classical department, acting president and finally, dean of the college of liberal arts.

In his early meetings with the faculty in 1867, Professor Currier could see neither the warp nor the woof of the future patterning of the University of Iowa. At once, however, he became aware that a university in the middle west, like the state it represented was dynamic," Professor Wright writes.

City Cannot Use University Pools

Over the years Iowa City has requested several times the use of University of Iowa facilities for municipal swimming programs.

Such a possibility has been stymied because of a ruling of the State Board of Education that facilities of the state-supported school shall be used only by students and should not be utilized for municipal programs of the city in which the school is located.

The physical facilities of the university include three pools: the large one in the fieldhouse, a small one in the reserve library building and a medium sized pool in the women's gym.

In addition to his regular duties, in 1868 Currier found himself chief custodian of the library which then occupied a small and badly lighted cubicle in a corner of the Senate chamber of Old Capitol. Soon he was preparing a catalogue of the books which the university possessed and finally painstakingly completed a card catalogue.

As acting president, Currier laid rules the Kuomintang in China's war. ST. LOUIS POST-DISPATCH Americans may yet have to consider whether universal military training is the only means left to arouse themselves to a sustained awareness of their world responsibilities.

Union members favor substantially every provision in the pending labor laws. That being so, we can expect them to make a sincere effort to work harmoniously with their employers after this legislation is passed.

$1-Million Printing Plant Seeks Iowa City Location

A million-dollar printing plant ultimately employing 350 persons will come to Iowa City if current negotiations are carried through, it was announced yesterday.

President W.W. Summerwill of the Chamber of Commerce disclosed the firm has purchased about nine acres of land between the Rock Island railroad tracks and Lower Muscatine road at the end of Kirkwood avenue.

This is the territory which Hugh A. and Ruth F. Dunlap have petitioned the city council to re-zone from residential to industrial land, with a public hearing on the proposal due Monday at 7:30 p.m. in the city hall.

Summerwill said the chamber cannot reveal the firm's name at this time.

According to informed sources, the firm is having "labor trouble" at its present location and this might be intensified if plans of a move were known. Also there is a possibility that the company's lease would not be renewed if its aims were made public.

Intending to expend nearly a million dollars on a modern one-story plant made of brick, the printing firm initially will spend about half that sum and will employ 175 persons, Summerwill declared. Later expansion will extend the original building on well-landscaped grounds, he added.

Persons familiar with the situation reported that the concern will have a payroll which "could conceivably reach $750,000 a year." First plans call for a plant covering 50,000 square feet, with an additional 50,000 square feet coming under expansion aims.

It was understood that the printers already have arranged with railroad officials to run a spur from the Rock Island tracks to the plant area. Negotiations reportedly have been going on since Nov. 18 last year, with company representatives visiting Iowa City and approving the site selected.

This would be "the midwest plant of a business described in the Dunlaps' re-zoning petition as "international in scope".

Planning Commission Approves

It has the blessing of Iowa City's planning commission, which last month recommended city council approval of the petition regarding a proposed site. Citizens who object will have an opportunity to oppose the move at Monday's council meeting.

The Chamber of Commerce said the industrial project follows a policy formulated last year to welcome suitable commercial enterprises which will increase municipal tax revenue, give possible employment to graduate students who may want to make Iowa City their permanent home, and increase the community's buying power.

Dr. Ernest Rogers Dies In Colorado

The flag on Old Capitol flew at half mast yesterday in tribute to Dr. Ernest A. Rogers, 80, professor emeritus of the college of dentistry, who died suddenly Wednesday night at Ft. Collins, Colo.

A graduate of the class of 1892, Dr. Rogers was associated with several departments within the college and from 1916 to 1940 was director of the dental infirmary. He completed 50 years' service to the university in 1943 and later retired to Ft. Collins.

He was one of the 50-year faculty members honored last Sunday at the university baccalaureate and had written Iowa City relatives that he planned to attend the Centennial commencement.

He married Adelaide Joy, a former public school teacher of Iowa City. She survives him together with their adopted sons, Clifford and Frank.

Funeral services will be held at Ft. Collins tomorrow afternoon.

Mary Budreau Drops Cab Company Suit

A claim for $2,025 damages against the Limited Cab company yesterday was dropped in district court by Mary Budreau.

In her dismissal, Mrs. Budreau stated that settlement with the cab company had been made satisfactorily outside of court.

Mrs. Budreau had sued for damages for bruises and other injuries she claims she received when one of the company's cabs in which she was riding hit a bump in the street. The case had been scheduled for jury trial during the present term of court.

Attorney for Mrs. Budreau was Will J. Hayek. D. C. Nolan and M. E. Coltrane represented the cab company.

Marnar Funeral Today

Funeral services for Mrs. Clara Belle Strickler Marnar, 88, will be held at 2 p.m. today at Oathout's funeral chapel with the Rev. James Waery officiating. Burial services will be held in Miles at 2 p.m. Sunday.

Surviving are two brothers, H. W. Strickler and J.B. Strickler, Kalona.

Navy Veteran Receives Silver Star Award

"For conspicuous gallantry and intrepidity" during Iwo Jima campaign, Truman J. Sorden was awarded the navy's silver star medal last night at the Roy L. Chopek American Legion post. Lt. Com. Glessner of the U.S. navy made the presentation.

Sorden, 26, was a hospital corpsman attached to the 5th Marine division during combat operations in the Pacific. He earned the medal for treatment of the wounded and obtaining medical supplies on Iwo Jima.

Sorden served in the marines for two years and came to Iowa City after his discharge in 1945. He is employed as an embalmer at the Oathout mortuary.

Episcopal Clergy to Get Training Here

Iowa City's first summer clinical training program for theological students of the Episcopal church will open June 15, it was announced yesterday by the Rev. Frederick W. Putnam, pastor of Trinity Episcopal church.

The program, under the joint sponsorship of Seabury-Western Theological seminary, Evanston, Ill., and the Episcopal diocese of Iowa will have an enrollment of four men for the first session. This probably will be increased to eight or twelve students in the summer of 1948.

Students will work half-time as attendants at the Psychopathic hospital and will take courses in psychiatry, adjustment counseling, social work and pastoral care. On weekends they will assist in mission churches in Iowa.

Under the training program, candidates for the ministry will be given an intensive course in understanding and working with people. They will also be brought up to date with the latest developments in mental hygiene, psychology and medical care.

Lecturers for the course in psychiatry include Dr. Wilbur R. Miller, professor of psychiatry and

City High Senior Outlines Young America's Future

A peaceful world can only be insured if the younger generation keeps its mind on the objectives of peace, a City high school senior, Don Guthrie, told the Rotary club at its weekly luncheon yesterday.

Guthrie's speech, "What Next, Young America," won first place in the state speech contest this spring.

During the war, Guthrie said, a young person's future was certain — he would join the service following graduation. But with the end of the war, this unifying factor was lost.

"The problem for young people today," he asserted, "is to find some unifying goal toward which we can all work. Someone must now sound this call for unity, and it is the young people who are going to do it."

Guthrie expressed his belief that the United Nations is the only instrument we possess to shape a completely peaceful world.
