Exchange of Gunfire Adds to Suez Crisis

Cairo, Egypt - Heavily armed Egyptian and British soldiers exchanged shots through the night in a bitter battle in the eastern part of the Suez Canal.

The fighting kicked off when British shell-fire set off a tank explosion. The fighting continued into the early morning hours.

British and Egyptian authorities were both urging caution, but there was little sign of a suspension of hostilities.

The British, who were trapped in the canal, were reported to be attacking the Egyptian positions with tanks and artillery.

The Egyptian soldiers were reported to be advancing toward the British positions with machine guns.

The fighting continued into the night, with both sides sustaining heavy casualties.

Subcommittee Rejects Jessup Nomination

WASHINGTON - A subcommittee of the Senate Military Affairs Committee voted against his nomination today.

The subcommittee, which is responsible for the recommendation of nominees for military positions, voted 6-3 against the nomination of Col. John Jessup, a retired Army officer, for the position of chief of staff of the Army.

The full Senate is scheduled to vote on the nomination later today.

War, Bankruptcy Are Vital Issues in British General Election

By ARTHUR GAVINIAN

From The Associated Press

Britain appears to be preparing for a major Labor victory in the October 25 elections which they hope will bring an end to the present government. The elections are scheduled to take place on October 25, 1980, which they hope will bring an end to the present government. The elections are scheduled to take place on October 25, 1980.

A general election in Britain is a very important event, especially for the ruling Conservative Party, which has been in power since 1970. The elections are held every five years, and the results are often a reflection of the public's opinion on various issues, including the economy, foreign policy, and social issues.

In the run-up to the elections, the Conservative Party has been focused on issues such as the economy, immigration, and the war in Iraq. The Labour Party, on the other hand, has been campaigning on issues such as the NHS, education, and the environment.

The election results will be announced on October 26, and it is likely that the Conservative Party will lose their majority in the House of Commons, leading to a hung parliament and potentially a coalition government.

In Scotland, there is a new issue which has emerged in the election campaign — the question of independence. The Scottish National Party (SNP) has been campaigning on a platform of Scottish independence, and polls suggest that they are gaining support.

The SNP's leader, Nicola Sturgeon, has been a vocal advocate for Scottish independence, and has been accused of using the issue of independence to distract from more pressing issues such as the economy and foreign policy.

The SNP's recent success in the election campaign has raised the prospect of a second Scottish independence referendum, which could take place as early as 2019.

The election results will be announced on October 26, and it is likely that the Conservative Party will lose their majority in the House of Commons, leading to a hung parliament and potentially a coalition government.
