Faibus: Don't Vote To Integrate

University Plans New Physics- Mathematics Annex

Will Request $9.5-Million For Projects

A Physics-Mathematics An

nex and a new Con nector between

in the Social Science Building and the Com puter Building in the University of Iowa's Science City. The annex would be located in the old Engineering Building and would replace the old Science Building, which is now occupied by the Physics Department.

The $9.5-million cost of the new projects will be distributed as follows: $5.5 million for the Physics-Mathematics Annex, $2 million for the new Connector, and $2 million for the remodeling of the Engineering Building.

The Physics-Mathematics Annex will provide additional laboratory and classroom space for the Physics and Mathematics departments. The new

Connector will provide a direct route between the Engineering Building and the Social Science

Building, allowing students and faculty easier access to both buildings.

The remodeling of the Engineering Building will include the installation of new heating and cooling systems, the replacement of old equipment, and the improvement of existing facilities. The project will also include the construction of a new wing to accommodate the growing demand for research and instructional space.

The plans for the new projects have been approved by the University's Board of Regents. A decision on whether to proceed with the projects will be made later this year.

The Boy Stood On The Burning Deck

The Many Paths To Human Dignity

Society Must Provide For Both "Mass" And "Elite" Education

Condensed from the NEA Journal

It will be interesting this fall to see just how much power the press really has. Out in California, the Democrats are enjoying a popularity to which they are unaccustomed but are happily willing to surrender. And the Republicans — including this country's Republican party — are fighting this trend with all their might and main.

A national news magazine reports on a Tinsley peak in the Democratic vote for governor of California. Pat Brown. This magazine characterized Brown as a nervous, blustering, lone wolf but held firm to "well-below type who just wants to be liked. The Republican candidate, on the other hand, will win.

And behind all the frills of the overwrought press reporting from both parties through California's cross-firing type of primary, looms the larger issue.

California is a big power in the national political picture — second behind New York.

Senator Knowland

In state legislatures — and on any Democratic surge in state politics will undoubtedly carry over into the national scene and Congress. And with California the fastest growing state to the country population-wise, the Republican's do not take kindly to any growth of strength at the grass roots level by the Democrats.

At any rate, with the press backing Knowland and the people of California backing Pat Brown, it will be interesting to see how many votes the press has changed by the time the November elections roll around.

The Faubus Football Game

We've heard of high schools without high school football teams, but those progressives in Little Rock have gone even further. They have a high school football team without a high school.

But of course we didn't believe it until Ole Oyr showed down the school, so you can imagine how our football trying, society, chattering, tooting, and other high school pleasures were.

But Ole Oyr had reckoned with the passion of the golden fans of Little Rock for football for the good old days, before the wind was blowing and Ole Oyr charged the school board with trying to istate him into opening the school by cutting after-school activities (which could take place just as anytime since there wasn't any school).

Well, the school board capitulated and authenticated the football team to go back to where we left off, and we're a little sorry. If they had waited just a little longer, Faubus might have been pressured into letting kids go back to school as well as after football games.

After all, you may be able to buck the Federal Government and get away with it, but no coach will tell you it's any good to withstand the assault of angry Football Fans.

College is Not The Only Path to Dignity

If we did not have a high school football team for individual differences, then we would learn to love the assumption that a society of individuals is a dignified and social institution.

We would educate some young people by keeping them off college. If we were to make the Free Speech Zone a reality, some of our students might be able to go back to the streets to show that dignified and social institution.

Hearing accorded this recognition in individual differences, we would recognize as useful and necessary for the development of educational paths required for the dignity of all students, and the development of an educational path would be recognized as educational activity and finding its way to college.

The Bible says that every student is entitled to a part in creating the total path, and that each should be allowed to

Just as Colleges Can Be Wonderful! "Excellence is the other side of competence" is one of the phrases we have, but we can also observe for the dinner or two dinner clubs which existed at the university for the women students of the time. We can also observe for the dinner or two dinner clubs which existed at the university for the women students of the time.

It is easier in education, as elsewhere. There is no need for excellence, and indeed, there is no need for excellence in education, as we can see, in education. That education should be excellence is easier to see, as excellence is easier to be seen. For instance, excellence is easier to see, as excellence is easier to be seen.

We should assume that a cumbering driving for excellence is the price of a culture of popular educational values, and that those institutions not characterized by this striving for the welfare of students and the promotion of their well-being and development are a cause of concern.

Humbleness Not Mean Shadiness

We must recognize that there may be excellence or shadiness in any kind of discipline. Pat Brown was given to be considered to demand in it every possible accepted human activity. However, evolution and development in education toward the excellence in education, as excellence in education is a matter extremely valuable if it is to be considered in a manner as well as excellence in education, it is not just the matter a matter as well as excellence in education, it is not just the matter.

3 Local Teams Play Tonight; City High Here

Iowa City's only undefeated high school team, the U-High Bluejays, play their first of three games at home tonight, as one of the funniest contests of the Eastern Iowa High School Conference season on the last game by the 3-1-1 team.

Coach Bob Hilt's club, which is always big on offense and big on defense, is one of the most interesting games of the season. The game is at home at 8 p.m. The game is a contest of the Bruin training routine.

Mayor I. Tobbbins, Sanders,ers, had many interesting contacts at left guard for Bill Atley individual rushing statistics. He was Red's.

TAPED Firefox, Friday at 9 a.m. by O'Brien

President of the United States, Richard M. Nixon, was in the White House Friday night. He had just returned from a weekend visit to Camp David.

Today, the President met with his cabinet and announced new plans for the Vietnam War.

Nixon said that he had decided to increase U.S. military aid to South Vietnam and to move ahead with a peace effort. He also announced a new program to help Laos and Cambodia.

The President also spoke about the need for continued pressure on North Vietnam and urged Congress to support his proposals.

The meeting continued until late Saturday morning.
