SUI Violinist Wins International Prize

Stuart Canin, 32, head of the Violin Department at SUI, has been awarded the first prize in the Nicolò Paganini International Violin Contest in Genoa, Italy.

Stuart Canin

Mrs. Canin received word here late Sunday that her husband had won the contest. The formal presentation of the prize, about $3,000, was made Monday by Giovanni Gronchi, the president of Italy.

Canin was also given Paganini's violin, a Stradivarius, to use for several concerts this week in Italy. The Paganini contest, sponsored by the Italian Government, is held in connection with celebrations honoring Christopher Columbus.

Canin left Iowa City Sept. 26 and will return next week. Competition in the contest, a series of three examinations, started a week ago. Twenty-four violinists were selected for the second round and three performers — a French woman, a Russian man and Canin — were selected to present a final recital.

An international jury of famous musicians named Canin the winner of the contest.

Himie Voxman, professor and head of the SUI Music Department, described the contest as one of the world's most exacting competitions for violinists.

Canin, concertmaster of the SUI Symphony Orchestra, was born in the Bronx, N.Y. His parents, Monroe and Mary Canin, still live in New York City.

Canin started playing the violin when he was five. At age six, he played on the Jack Benny and Fred Allen radio programs. He started the violin "feud" between Benny and Allen as he alternated on their respective programs.

Canin has a brother, Martin, 29, who teaches piano at Columbia University in New York City. He will be a piano soloist in an Iowa City civic music program to be held in Macbride Auditorium in January.

As a young man, Canin was the recipient of many scholarships and awards, one of them being the National Federation of Music Clubs Artist Award, which is given annually to an outstanding young musician in the United States.

Canin is a graduate of the Juilliard School of Music in New York City. Following World War II he was a violin soloist at the Potsdam Conference in Germany where he played before Stalin, Churchill and Truman. He made his Town Hall debut in New York City in 1948.

Canin came to SUI in 1953 as head of the Violin Department. A member of the University String Quartet, Canin was also instrumental in organizing the newly-formed SUI String Chamber Society.

He and his wife, Virginia, have a 1-year-old son, Aram.

Turkey, Poland Fight For U.N. Council Seat

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (AP) — Turkey and Communist Poland deadlocked Monday in a race for a seat on the U.N. Security Council. At stake was the prestige of the United States, the principal supporter of Turkey.

Poland held an edge but failed to win the required two-thirds majority in a series of secret ballots in the 82-nation U.N. General Assembly. More voting will take place Tuesday.

On the 13th vote at the opening of the Assembly Monday afternoon Poland received 46 and Turkey 34 votes. Poland fell eight short of the required 54. Israel was absent because of the Yom Kippur holiday, and one other delegation abstained.

At one point during the morning Poland came within six votes of victory.

At the suggestion of Argentina the Assembly decided to take the 13th vote, then delay additional voting until after disposing of elections to the economic and Social Council and other business.

The Assembly quickly elected Ecuador and Ceylon for two-year seats on the 11-nation Council, then bumped into the deadlock between Turkey and Poland.

Each year the Assembly elects three nonpermanent representatives to the Council, the U.N.'s most powerful political body. The United States, Britain, France, the Soviet Union and Nationalist China are permanent members.

Most U.N. diplomats took the view that a Turkish defeat would be a blow to the prestige of the United States, which has campaigned vigorously for Turkey.

They recalled that United States support failed to elect the Philippines in a 1955 contest with Yugoslavia that went to 35 inconclusive ballots. The voting was spread over two months. Then the Philippines held the lead. Finally the deadlock was resolved by agreement to split the two-year term.

Adam Rapacki, the Polish foreign minister, declared his country was in the race to stay. He had the support of the nine-nation Soviet bloc, Yugoslavia, India and some other Asian-African nations, and almost half of the Latin-American bloc.

Turkish delegates said they were confident of ultimate victory.

OXFORD GIRLS WON'T DATE

OXFORD, England (AP) — In Oxford, where there are 9,000 university students and eligible young men outnumber girls 7-1, a dozen pretty nurses have sworn off dates for a year. Myra Davies already has been seen out twice with an undergraduate and has had to resign as president. Janet Blake says the nurses want to spend their time off visiting museums and art galleries and boy friends are not interested in cultural activities.

Pi Phi's, Phi Delts Capture Float Awards

A "Wishing to Win" theme paid off for Pi Beta Phi sorority and Phi Delta Theta fraternity as their float topped both the sweepstakes trophy and the Kiwanis Award for the best fraternity float at the trophy presentation during the intermission of the Homecoming Dance Saturday night.

Besides the sweepstakes award, trophies were given to the winners of four categories: originality, beauty, humor, and non-student.

First place in originality went to the members of Acacia fraternity for their "Hawks Will Win — Take It From the Greeks" theme. The team of Zeta Tau Alpha sorority and Delta Upsilon fraternity won the second place trophy for their float with a "Spike the Spartans" theme.

Winning first place in the beauty category were Delta Delta Delta sorority and Delta Tau Delta fraternity. Their theme was "Up and At 'em — Split the Spartans." Second place in the beauty category went to the Dolphin fraternity for their "Aladdin's Wish."

Air Force ROTC's "Udder Victory" took first place honors in the humor division. Second place went to Kappa Kappa Gamma sorority and Phi Kappa Psi fraternity for their "We Know Hula Win" theme.

The winning non-student float was sponsored by the Iowa City Shrine Club. The theme was "Victory Is Just a Step Away."

The Elks Award for the best men's dormitory entrant went to South Quadrangle and Beth Wellman House. Their theme was "We're Expecting a Victory."

The trophies were presented by Dick Runke, L3, Chicago, member of the Homecoming Committee, prior to the crowning of Miss SUI Saturday night.

Sharon Larsen Is Crowned 1959 Miss SUI

Van Doren Dodges Reply To Committee Subpoena

WASHINGTON (AP) — Charles Van Doren, big money winner on a television quiz show, was accused by the chairman of a House investigating committee Monday of dodging an opportunity to say in person whether the show was rigged.

Announcing that a subpoena has been issued to require Van Doren's testimony, Chairman Oren Harris (D-Ark.) declared:

"Mr. Van Doren has purposely avoided service."

Harris also said the committee will stand in recess until Nov. 2, when "we expect him here."

Van Doren sprang to nationwide fame by winning $129,000 on the now-defunct program "Twenty-One" in 1956-57. Other contestants on the show, notably Herbert Stempel who won $49,500, have said they were given answers in advance, and told when to lose.

Stempel did not say Van Doren was coached, however, and Van Doren telegraphed the investigating committee a request that his denial of trickery be entered into its record.

Van Doren made his long distance request last Wednesday, from his home in New York.

Harris disclosed Monday that the committee sent Van Doren a new invitation on Thursday to testify in person, but has heard nothing from him.

Then, on Friday, a subpoena was issued ordering Van Doren to appear Monday, but it was not served.

"This contestant," Harris told newsmen, "seems to have challenged the committee and the facts which have been developed."

"The undisputed and admitted facts," the chairman said, demonstrate that more than half the "Twenty-One" shows "were rigged and fixed." This is a showing, Harris said, that requires Van Doren, as a big money winner on the program, to tell his story.

Harris said this is a showing that requires Van Doren to tell his story.

Van Doren was an English instructor at Columbia University when "Twenty-One" made him famous. He is still an instructor there, but one of the results of his TV fame was a $50,000-a-year job with the National Broadcasting Co. as a commentator and specialist in education.

NBC suspended him from his job last week, pending outcome of the congressional investigation.

Monday, Columbia University said that at his request it has given Van Doren a week's leave from his instructing job. He had not shown up for a scheduled class last Friday and was absent again Monday.

Harris said a diligent search by committee staff members and others had failed to locate Van Doren. His residence telephone has been disconnected, for one thing.

Driver Refuses To Tell Police About Bus Crash

NEW BRUNSWICK, N. J. (AP) — Truck driver Roscoe Poe refused again Monday to tell police anything of the accident which killed nine coeds and Prof. Ernest Sixta, 40, a native of Cedar Rapids, Iowa.

A trooper and a detective of the state police questioned Poe at his bedside in Middlesex General Hospital. He said he would not give any information until he has retained a lawyer. He has not yet done so.

Police also postponed plans to file charges Monday of manslaughter and reckless driving against the 54-year-old Brooklyn man. They said the charges would probably be filed Tuesday.

Poe is recovering from injuries he received in the crash Friday when his truck struck a bus loaded with college girls. Police tried to question him Saturday but he said he would not talk without a lawyer. Police said an investigation of the charred remains of the truck showed its brakes were no better than 50 per cent efficient.

Hailsham Waits For Verdict From Macmillan

LONDON (AP) — Viscount Hailsham, chunky architect of the Conservative party's massive election victory, waited hopefully today for Prime Minister Harold Macmillan to give him some hint about his future.

Political correspondents suggested the 52-year-old party chairman will bow out of public life and return to his law practice unless Macmillan gives him a promotion in a reshuffled cabinet.

Man Hides 38 Years In Loft After Desertion

HELSINKI, Finland (AP) — After 38 years in almost complete isolation in a hayloft, a military deserter has returned to a normal life.

Vaino Johannes Kilpinen ran away from his cavalry unit on April 18, 1921, because he was afraid of horses. Since that time, he had been hiding in a barn at this family home in Renko, southwest Finland.

Only his family, who gave him food, knew about his existence. This was the story, as pieced together by police who found him Saturday: Kilpinen returned to his parents from his regiment, running through the deep Finnish forests. Father and mother reproached the runaway recruit but hid him in the hayloft.

In 1930, church registers listed him as disappeared.

His country fought two wars while he was sitting in that barn and he followed them through the newspapers. Through a peephole, he watched preparations for his mother's funeral and his father's.

Kilpinen spent his time making brooms and other simple things for the farm kitchen. He never was outside the group of farm houses and never met unfamiliar people. At 58, he had never seen an automobile or a radio set.

Police got hints last week that Kilpinen was alive. They searched the farm and found a thoroughly frightened man.

He became calmer when assured that no legal action would be taken against him. His crime was proscribed years ago and his voluntary imprisonment has lasted for a much longer time than any court could have jailed him.

Don't Take Shaft—Walking Is Faster, Easier On Stomach

WARSAW, Poland (AP) — Josef Zadrozniak spent last weekend cooped up in an elevator.

When he was finally released Monday he was hopping mad.

He was also hungry. Just before he was to leave his office Saturday, Zadrozniak took the self-service elevator to the fourth floor. It stalled between floors and wouldn't respond to the controls.

Zadrozniak called for help, but it was after closing time and no one heard his shouts.

Workers found the elevator disabled when they arrived Monday morning. Repairmen got it down to the ground floor and were amazed when the door opened and Zadrozniak walked out.

According to the newspaper Kurier Polski, he said he would sue for damages.

Iowa Males Vote Sharon Miss SUI

Homecoming weekend was "extra special" for SUI engineering students this year as their reigning MECCA queen, Miss Sharon Larsen, A2, Atlantic, was crowned Miss SUI at the Homecoming Dance Saturday night.

The coronation took place at the 10:15 intermission. Master of Ceremonies for the event was Greg Morris, A2, Iowa City, and Bill Sutton, A4, Red Oak, director of the Miss SUI Pageant, crowned the queen.

Attendants to Miss Larsen, all sophomores, are Carolyn Parks, A2, Maquoketa; Sherrie Lowell, A2, Cedar Rapids; Carol Johnson, N2, Clinton, and Mary Ann Sheahan, D2, Highland Park, Ill.

The five finalists were escorted to the throne by Bob Downer, A3, Newton, president of Central Party Committee; Tom Oblinger, A4, Grand Junction, president of Union Board; Gary Dunahugh, A4, Cedar Rapids, chairman of the Miss SUI stage presentation; John Voigt, A4, Freeport, Ill., chairman of Miss SUI field campaigns, and Fred Glassman, A3, Iowa City, chairman of the Miss SUI election.

Besides being the reigning Miss SUI and MECCA Queen, Miss Larsen was also an attendant to the 1958 Dolphin Queen. She is a sophomore dental hygiene major and a member of Gamma Phi Beta sorority. As Miss SUI, she will reign over all University social functions for the 1959-60 school year.

Miss Larsen received the following gifts after the crowning: a diamond pin from Hands Jewelry, Iowa City; a wrist watch from Hallmark Watch Co., Chicago, Ill.; a transistor radio from the Motorola Corporation, Chicago, Ill.; a Lady Schaeffer pen from the W.A. Schaeffer Pen Co., Fort Madison; earrings from Patsy's Gifts and Jewelry, Cedar Rapids; a pearl necklace from Ginsbergs Jewelry, Cedar Rapids; a pearl necklace from Ginsbergs Jewelry, Cedar Rapids; earrings from Youkners, Iowa City; a blouse from Wolf's, Iowa City; a skirt from Willards of Iowa City; pajamas from Aldens, Iowa City; bracelet and earrings from Richey's Fashion Center, Iowa City, and a blouse from Bremers, Iowa City.

Surprise Mac! But He Won't Kiss You Either

WINNIPEG (AP) — World-renowned Canadian pianist Glenn Gould dropped in at a senior citizens club here wearing heavy woolen gloves to protect his hands. "I am a pianist," he said, apologizing for not shaking hands. "That's fine," said President Ben Feakes. "I play the mouth organ and I'm not going to kiss you."

High Court Grants Labor Review Plea

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Supreme Court Monday granted an organized labor plea for review of a lower court ruling which could profoundly affect union membership and political activity.

It also followed a hands-off line on details of school integration cases.

Its refusal to review lower court rulings in school cases had these effects:

1. In Prince Edward County, Va., there remains unchanged a circuit court order for immediate integration which has resulted in county officials closing all public schools.

2. The Norfolk, Va., City Council continues under court injunction not to cut off public school funds.

3. Negroes in Raleigh and Montgomery counties, N.C., are prevented from speeding up the desegregation which is proceeding piecemeal under a state pupil assignment law.

The court agreed unanimously to review a decision of the Georgia Supreme Court that compulsory union membership is unconstitutional if the union uses for political activity any of the dues collected.

Issues Would Remain Says Union Leader

McDonald Stands Firm On Union's Demands

WASHINGTON (AP) — Declaring it will not be beaten, the United Steelworkers Union said Monday a court order may force an 80-day truce in the record steel strike "but there will be no permanent peace."

Steelworkers President David J. McDonald told a White House fact-finding panel that at the end of the enforced truce the basic issue would remain unresolved. The basic issue, he said, is "whether the companies will break the union."

His voice swelling to a roar, the white-haired union chief boomed that the Steelworkers "never, and I repeat never" would yield to management's demands. He said

Harry Truman Urges Union: 'Keep Fighting'

WASHINGTON (AP) — Former President Harry S. Truman has urged the United Steelworkers Union to "keep fighting" for a just and fair settlement of the 90-day steel strike.

The union Monday released a letter written Oct. 7 by Truman to union President David J. McDonald, which said in part: "I told you in New York that I very much felt that these people with whom you are dealing do not want a fair and just settlement but keep fighting and try to get one that is just and fair."

These call for elimination of protection for workers against changes in local working conditions as a prerequisite to a wage settlement.

McDonald shouted that such changes — which the companies say are necessary to cut labor costs — can be imposed "only over our dead bodies."

McDonald and Arthur J. Goldberg, the union's general counsel, were leadoff witnesses as a three-man panel began hearings intended to help President Eisenhower decide whether to seek a strike-halting injunction. The board is under orders to report to Eisenhower by Friday.

Industry spokesmen were in line to give their views to the fact finders after the union had had its say about the increasingly bitter dispute which dragged through its 90th day. The company representatives are expected to state their case Tuesday.

In the past, the companies have accused the unions of demanding pay boosts and other benefits that management argued would threaten new inflation. The steel firms have pledged to resist this, and there is no sign they were ready to back off.

This, together with McDonald's no-retreat stand, pointed to a renewed walkout about New Year's Day, even if a federal court order should send the strikers back to the mills for 80 days. McDonald said his union would bow to an injunction, although opposed to it.

The panel's assigned job is to find the facts in the case, but Chairman George W. Taylor had made it clear he planned to try to work out a voluntary agreement. Taylor, an old hand at arranging such settlements, is outspoken in his feelings that a Taft-Hartley injunction only serves to prolong a labor dispute.

Both McDonald and Goldberg challenged the need for an injunction to halt the strike, which has shut down about 85 per cent of the nation's steelmaking plants and idled about 800,000 workers, including half a million steel hands. This strike already ranks as the longest in the turbulent history of the industry.

Goldberg contended the strike poses no threat to national health or safety.

Boisterous Barristers

We have often wondered why astute Gentlemen of the Bar are referred to as "mouthpieces." This morning walking past the Law Building between classes, the meaning of that expression was explained to us in no unmistakable terms. Perhaps because few females are enrolled in the College of Law and, therefore, few are in Law classes, the Gentlemen of the Law congregate on the steps of the Law Building. There we found, as the girls from Burge and Currier were passing, the most clamorous clan on campus. We heard more shrieks, whistles, propositions and titters than one would be apt to hear at a Swahili reunion.

It is in fact quite a phenomenon that these men who will be our future lawyers and judges should be able to find no other way to amuse themselves than by ogling innocent young ladies. The Engineers have their hats and Blarney Stone, so we suppose the lawyers must have some form of entertainment besides their canes. But couldn't they be a little more subtle about their comments, and approach the young ladies in Latin? At least, then, only women Latin majors would be embarrassed.

But the poor students in the Geology Building who are trying so hard to study or listen so closely to a lecture are the ones we really pity. How can ANYONE concentrate when every few minutes the staid silence of the campus is punctuated by that spontaneous cacophony from across the street?

But who are we to condemn future judges? Perhaps they need some outlet for their emotions, pent up by the pressures of torts, pleadings and an occasional nolo contendere.

In fact, we understand that these staid gentlemen, after due consideration, have decided to find their release in another way. They have found a game which will give more variety to their current pastime. This game will require more energy and physical participation than hooting at girls but it is of the same calibre.

It is called hopscotch.

Letters

Take the average Joe College—but don't keep him, we like him. Joe College sometimes gets frustrated. Everything is wrong. The university is taking his money, the D.I. is printing lies, the parking situation is goofed up, he can't get a date with the gal who sits by him in history. As we said, everything goes wrong.

Well, what is he going to do about it? He builds up this tremendous resentment, and he is mad enough to act on it.

"I know," says Joe, "I'm going to write a letter to the editor and demand the Truth. Not only that, but I'll tell him the truth. He won't dare print it. Ha!"

So Joe sits down with his pencil clutched in his fist and writes out the truth.

"Man, that feels better already," says Joe.

If Joe goes ahead and puts it in the mail, and he sometimes does not, the editor reads it the next day.

"So we print it," the editor says to his assistant, "but we'll have to cut it down because it is so long."

The next day Joe reads his shortened letter.

"Those Cowards," he says, "I knew it; they were afraid to print the truth."

Well, maybe we are. Anyway, Joe has passed his catharsis, and we are glad he did.

Letters—

Our policy for the editorial page is that because the Daily Iowan has a monopoly on campus and because the Daily Iowan is public property, anyone who wishes to express his opinion on this page has a right to do so. The exception is when the language is unduly vindictive or crude, and it must be our responsibility to decide whether or not the material is fit. We must have a hand-written signature on the letters, as well as the university address of the writer. Otherwise there are no limits. We prefer the letters to be double-spaced and one page long, but that is not absolute. Lengthy material may have to be cut if we are to run any of it at all.

Just When Was The Last Time?

To the Editor:

I am writing in regard to your editorial, "What About It", which appeared in the Daily Iowan October 8th. You stated that Mr. John Zink must have made a miscalculation in assigning Monday night as the night for public observation at the observatory. You hinted that this would prevent observers from seeing lunik on its return trip to the earth, Sunday October 18th.

I would like to ask you a question: When was the last time you looked at a space satellite through a telescope? If you have ever tried to do so you would know that with the conventional type mounting on a telescope it is virtually impossible to keep a space satellite in a telescopic field of view more than a fraction of a second. Even if you could do so you would see nothing of interest, to say the least of this observation having any scientific value to the casual observer.

I do not know Mr. John Zink, but I think you owe him an apology for your "miscalculated" insinuation. And just to set the records straight, American science is not hindmost.

Evy, Brechler Fight Silly

To the Editor:

I think all this noise about Mr. Evashevski and Mr. Brechler is silly. Obviously they are the best in the nation in their respective fields, but this isn't the whole picture.

Now don't get me wrong. I'm just as much a fan as the next guy. In fact, everytime IOWA wins in anything from ping pong to football I jump for joy. But let's face the facts.

I don't know who said it, but whoever it was really hit the nail on the nose when he commented, "Great coaches don't make great teams: great teams make great coaches. Just ask Casey Stengel."

Chapter And Verse: You Name It

(Ed. Note: Who is the author of the following quotation, and where does it appear? The answer will be in tomorrow's paper.)

"Considering our present advanced state of culture, and how the Torch of Science has now been brandished and born about, with more or less effect, for five-thousand years and upwards; how in these times especially, not only the Torch still burns, and perhaps more fiercely than ever, but unnumbered Rush-lights, and Sulphur-matches, kindled thereto, are also glancing in every direction, so that not the smallest cranny or doghole in Nature or Art can remain unilluminated, — it might strike the reflective mind with some surprise that hitherto little or nothing of a fundamental character, whether in the way of Philosophy or History, has been written on the subject of —"

I'm Nobody

I'm nobody! Who are you?
Are you nobody, too?
Then there's a pair of us — don't tell!

How public, like a frog
To tell your name the livelong day
To an admiring bog!

The Wonderful One-Hoss Shay

By ARTHUR EDSON
AP Newsfeatures Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Library of Congress opened a special display last Thursday honoring a distinguished poet, musician, wit and story-teller.

Yet, ironically, for all his accomplishments, we know Oliver Wendell Holmes now chiefly because his son, O.W.H. Jr., became one of our great Supreme Court Justices.

The elder Holmes was born 150 years ago. He lived a sunny, productive, witty life, reaching the age of 85. He died 65 years ago, October 8th.

Looking over the library exhibits one is impressed with his standing among his contemporaries: A graceful note from Tennyson. Congratulations from John Greenleaf Whittier.

Holmes wrote some poems that are still remembered: "The Chambered Nautilus," "The Deacon's Masterpiece, or, the Wonderful One-Hoss Shay," "The Last Leaf" and "Old Ironsides."

At Harvard, Dr. Holmes did a first rate medical study for his time, "The Contagiousness of Puerperal Fever."

But it was as an individual — buoyant, a lover of life, a conversationalist who talked well and constantly — that Dr. Holmes became memorable.

When his death neared, he was unconcerned.

When his death neared, he was unconcerned.

A young lady thoughtlessly said to him: "How superb your death notices will be!"

Dr. Holmes' tongue didn't fail him.

"Have you heard," he asked, "of madame and her husband in the siege of Paris? Everyone was starving. Madame had a pet lapdog; shall we call him Fido?"

"Finally in desperation she had him cooked and served, nicely garnished. Madame and her husband picked the platter clean, wiped up the gravy with their fingers for lack of bread. Madame looked at the remains and sighed."

"How Fido would have enjoyed those bones," she said."

The Eye Of The Storm

By RON LEVIN

If you have already paid your toll at the Capitol theatre and been admitted, sheep-wise, through the gate to view the "sensational" Brigette Bardot in "Female and the Flesh," you may or may not have recognized the movie as the same to come forth two years ago, bearing the equally misleading title of "The Light Across the Street." The movie, sad to report, sheds little light, if any, upon either of its two chief ingredients, whether on this side of the street or the other. We have been had.

It may be of more than passing interest to those hardy and determined students enrolled in the Writing Lab to find that on the same roster that bears their names are to be found those of Kenneth Fearing and James Jones. This, of course, gives ample weight to the judgment of the critics concerning "Some Came Running." The sentence structure was poor, and we hope his next novel will show the results of a semester's stay in the lab.

Pete Seeger To Present Folk Song Concert Here

By ALAN HAUSMAN

One of America's greatest folk singers, Pete Seeger, will present a concert at the State University of Iowa on October 30. Seeger has long been recognized for not only his ability and versatility of style and instrumentation but for his scholarly research in the field of folk music.

A native of New York City, Seeger received an excellent musical education from his father, a notable professor of musicology, and his mother, who was a concert violinist. His early education was in New England.

The turning point in his musical life came in 1935; in that year his father took him to the Asheville, North Carolina Folk Festival. It was here that Seeger first heard played the five string banjo, that almost forgotten instrument which has been often termed America's only native musical instrument. Seeger adopted the banjo as the most satisfactory instrument for the playing of folk melodies; he is generally recognized as an almost incomparable player.

After attending Harvard for three years Seeger, like many intellectuals in the 1930's, became interested in social conditions and social injustice in the United States. He began a three year study of folk music in the Library of Congress with Alan Lomax. In the late thirties he met and travelled with both Huddie Ledbetter (Leadbelly) and Woodie Guthrie, the most famous of the folk musicians of the time.

At the age of twenty he helped to form the Almanac Singers, a group that became famous for their wartime songs: "Round and Round Hitler's Grave," and "The Good Ship Reuben James" are two that became popular. The Almanacs were union organizers, and sung in Detroit, Pittsburgh, Los Angeles and other cities for the C.I.O. Seeger served with army for four years.

After the end of World War II he returned to New York City and began his career anew. This time the group he helped organize was called the Weavers. Within three years after their inception, the Weavers were in the commercial big time. Their records — "Tzena, Tzena," "On Top of Old Smokey," "Wimoweh," "Good Night, Irene" — were imitated but never matched; for the first time since pioneer days, America saw a rebirth of interest in her folk music heritage.

But Seeger left the Weavers in 1956 and has since travelled America alone, giving concerts before people from coast to coast. His repertoire includes songs of the Southern United States, songs of the labor movement, ballads of topical interest, and the songs, sung in their native tongues, of Africa, India, Russia, Israel, France, Germany, Korea, China, and many other nations.

Besides the banjo, Seeger plays the 12-string guitar, a feat learned from Leadbelly, and the recorder or Israeli flute.

Pete Seeger will appear at 8:00 p.m. on Friday evening, October 30, at Macbride Hall Auditorium. Campus Record Shop is handling ticket sales. Seeger's last appearance at SU1 was in May, 1958 at the Czech Social Hall.

Cinema

By ROBERT KREIS

THE BLUE ANGEL (Tue-Wed.) — In 1929 a German film of this title appeared, and coming at the apex of an artistically fertile era, ably demonstrated the German concepts of cinematic lighting, composition, writing, direction and performance. The story of the respectable middle-aged high-school professor who destroys himself in succumbing to the sensual and mysterious dance-hall girl, was starkly projected, and the performances by Emil Jannings and Marlene Dietrich (her introduction to U.S. audiences) under Joseph Von Sternberg's direction, were poignant and believable. The film was, and is, a "classic."

In this technicolored remake, the setting is still rural Germany (updated to 1956-59) and the basic plot remains, but a toned-down script and tacked-on (semi-happy) ending render the original tragedy impotent, and the result is, generally, a hundred-minute bore.

Edward Dmytryk's direction is ponderous, stilted and confused. The early scenes, which establish the professor's home and teaching environment, are alarmingly weak and "stagey," and the later dramatic scenes, while occasionally effective, are generally either overdrawn or underplayed. Dmytryk, as a director, remains a Jekyll (Crossfire, Young Lions) and Hyde (The Mountain, Raintree County).

Without a firm guiding hand, May Britt and Curt Jurgens stumbled uncertainly and unconvincedly through their roles, the latter delivering surely his weakest American-film portrayal to date as the professor, while Miss Britt, who showed promise in "Lions" is way over her head here as the tart. Though highly attractive, she at no time communicates very much of the inner fire and sensuality inherent in the role.

Remaking a film that enjoyed moderate artistic and commercial success is a folly too often indulged in by Hollywood, but remaking a film "classic," as is the case here, is virtual artistic suicide.

COUCHICING, misspelled in this column last week, has now been correctly identified as the site of an annual conference on world affairs. For the 1959 Couchic-ing Conference, experts on Asiatic affairs assembled in Canada and, through the facilities of the Canadian Broadcasting Corporation, their observations on "Changing Asia" were recorded. Tonight, the sixth program in the series, "Sources of Conflict Between East and West," may be heard at 8 p.m. Participants include Dr. Y. P. Mei, Head of Oriental Studies at SU1; Dr. Edwin O. Reischauer and Frank Peers of the CBC.

MUSIC BEFORE COUCHICING: A magnificent singer, Consuelo Rubio, may be heard in the first selection from tonight's Evening Concert program, beginning at 6 p.m. The Song of Spain by Torroba is followed by Piano Concerto No. 22 by Mozart, Jeux d'Enfants by Bizet, a sonata for violin and piano by Brahms, and Brigg Fair by Delius.

MUSIC AFTER COUCHICING: On Trio, from 9 to 9:45 p.m., listeners may hear the big band sound of Frank DeVol, a vocal quartette known as the Clark Sisters, and the jazz music of Dave Brubeck and Paul Desmond.

NEARLY ALL major newscasts at WSUI are followed, at 12:45 and 5:45 p.m., by 15 minutes of supplementary materials drawn from the nation's news and magazine sources or the original re-

Books—

THE DISAPPEARANCE

By Philip Wylie

Cardinal Edition, Sept. 1958 (Reprinted from The Colorado Daily) — One afternoon, not just all the women, but all the female primates vanished from the face of the earth. This curious, tragic circumstance and what happened afterwards is described in detail by the author, to the point that, for anyone who has ever experienced an all male environment, the very thought is nauseating.

Male babies are left untended, regimentation increases, men become aggressive, boys have traumas and last, but not least, houses are no longer tidy and mealtimes become a bore.

The same thing happens in the between-chapters with the sexes reversed. Cities burn, hoarding rampages, there are no taxis, and the land is invaded by efficient Russian amazons who are eventually enchanted by what's left of the Fifth Avenue shop window displays.

The best of Wylie's healed-man optimism wins out, and for those of you who appreciate Wylie's best, this book, which was first published eight years ago, is quite satisfactory.

The point, moral and lesson is this: no sex is superfluous, and some sexes had better start being intelligent about it.

Part III of the novel contains an essay entitled, "On the philosophy of sex, or the lack thereof, extraneous to the narrative and yet its theme, which the impatient may skip and the reflective might enjoy." One definitely should be reflective in this case, at least if one is concerned about what is happening life-wise on this very campus. Philip Wylie is a good leisure companion for the undergraduate; he is a good source for bull session material.

When he was here for the Writer's Conference a few summer sessions ago, he made mention of the fact that many of his young readers questioned his sincerity, especially in regard to "Generation of Vipers," his pointed but playful slams at organized religion, and his knocking of "mom."

He definitely was and is sincere, although the essential problem of his own particular generation of vipers exists to a much smaller extent today. That is, we, in our generation, are much aware of the problems Philip Wylie's main purpose was to discover for his generation.

The idea is a wonderful one. Those who would like a better handling of it, however, should read Huxley's "Age and Essence," which is not leisurely companion.

Market Slowest In 21 Months

NEW YORK (AP) — The antics of space age stocks highlighted a semiholiday stock market Monday. The over-all list advanced moderately in the slowest trading in 21 months.

Banks and many business firms were closed because of the Columbus Day observance. Trading was dampened further by celebration of the Jewish holy day, Yom Kippur.

President Eisenhower's invocation of the Taft-Hartley Law in the steel strike late Friday had little effect on steels and motors.

Bernini's St. Theresa Altar Figure—

By JAMES COLEMAN
Daily Iowan Staff Writer

The Oxford English Dictionary gives Matthew Arnold's "pure and flawless workmanship" as one of its definitions of art. In this personal note we will ignore the above "production" aspect of art to be concerned only with its "consumer" aspect. The consumer viewing and experiencing the work of art in a personal empathetic fashion gains an appreciative meaning from the experience; an appreciative meaning which evolves mainly out of the pleasure he experiences. For the poor man with his reproductions (which with LP records and paperbacks make up his consumptive cultural world) the "aesthetic" experience is prohibited. Another, call it a non-aesthetic "artistic" experience, is possible; one which doesn't require any actual contact with the work of art.

As an example we might take the student interested in the 12th Century, in Dante, Thomas Aquinas, in the growth of France under Philip and perhaps particularly interested in Maryology. This student is introduced for instance to Chartres, the cathedral, its glass and doors, and especially its location in its medieval town. The result is an artistic experience: intellectual, practical, and emotional. Not the emotion arising out of pleasure but arising out of the sense of coherence that results when he sees in Chartres a binding together of all his interests. There has been no empathetic-personal experience but one has looked at monochromes and sketches and (via Henry Adams) measured the heights and imagined the glass and the light. This is an intellectual and rather mathematical-proportional experience, not aesthetic, but nevertheless a completely valid artistic experience which makes coherent a group of intellectual-emotional facts.

The student in this personal note, interested in the 17th Century, in Italy with its Jesuits and France with its Jansenists, in the Popes and perhaps particularly interested in the religious period which blended so exactly the extremely secular with the spiritual, views monochromes of Lorenzo Bernini's Ecstasy of St. Theresa in the Cornaro chapel of the Church of S. M. della Vittoria.

This experience, intellectual, practical, and unifying, can evolve out of an even more direct grasp of the product than in the case of Chartres. Here he meets a saint whom he knows and her life as represented in one religious experience. Chartres (again naturally via Henry Adams) represented the whole life of the Church with Christ as a child and the whole meaning of "Gothic." Theresa represents the Church in no such complex way and certainly includes only one important meaning of "Baroque."

St. Theresa herself is quite an appropriate subject of the artist-religionist-organizer Bernini. She is nearly his contemporary (canonized in 1622, the work was completed in 1647) and though no small organizer herself, she is primarily known for a unique and personal mystic vocabulary which owes nothing to other mystic writings but does reflect constantly the theological background of her numerous and varied spiritual advisors (Thomistic notions of the Dominicans, secular insights from the Jesuits, etc.). Bernini also met and worked with representatives of many directions within the Church.

The Church of S. M. della Vittoria is also in a way reflective of Bernini's life. It was erected in 1605 under Paul V, in Bernini's youth, and containing works by Domenichino and Guercino, was crowned artistically by Bernini in the Cornaro chapel under Pope Innocent X when Bernini was at his height.

With these "mathematical" details the figure itself is introduced, the Saint in ecstasy during the Transverberation of her heart by the arrow in the angel's hand. Bernini's depiction of the angel with his knowing smile, perhaps a little impish, is a perfect representation of those complete and full, purely intellectual beings, who though the messengers of God are actually so much less than the Saint in that they cannot bind together the spiritual with the sensual as she is doing in her mystic experience. As in all angelic depiction, he cannot be the important thing, he is the intermediary servant.

The beauty of this work is in Bernini's perfect depiction through perfect understanding of the most important aspect (the entire aspect) of man as the center and nodal point of the whole Hierarchy from God to the stones. This "supreme commonplace" can be said to have energized the whole Baroque period (if another commonplace will be excused I might repeat that the centuries of great artistic achievement were the centuries which could place no limit on man's). Bernini depicts here the Carmelite mystic, her body pierced and thus becoming purely spiritual, but with still a feminine body exactly implied under the Baroque complex of robe-folds by primarily the left shoulder thrust slightly forward, very static, very sensual, and very feminine.

Man, as represented here by the Saint, is the nodal point because in him is reflected the whole of the chain of being. St. Theresa is both spiritual and physical, at once made of the elements and superseding everything elemental, by mind and heart. She represents Man (as he possesses but is deficient in all the faculties) overcoming, with the aid of the Church, the lower faculties for the higher. The bare foot is no mere sign of the disincarnate Carmelites but a declaration of a form of worldliness which disavows not the world but its riches.

The practical experience of the figure provides then a sort of focus for some 17th Century commonplace and for quite a few elements in a complex and representative life (rather two lives, the Saint's and Bernini's).

The fear that perhaps we will not like the bronze sunbeams or green backgrounds detracts not at all from this artistic experience and questions about Bernini's craftsmanship and the assertions of an enormous ego (the Baroque artist speaking ex cathedra) are questions pertaining to production not consumption.

We have then an experience of a work of art which though mostly intellectual and practical is emotional in making slightly more coherent half a dozen diverse details.

Wherefore Indonesian Neutralism

By J.M. ROBERTS
Associated Press News Analyst

Just when the United States has begun to accept Indonesian neutralism, and to extend military and economic aid to a government which seriously needs it, the Indonesian foreign minister has taken a highly unneutral position with regard to Formosa.

Considered against the background of recent events and what seem to be the verities of Indonesian politics, one cannot help but wonder whether Oriental courtesy may not have involved Foreign Minister Subandrio in something from which he may later need to extricate himself.

In a communique broadcast by Peiping after Subandrio's visit there, he announces support of Red China's claims to Formosa, against which the United States has taken an unequivocal stand. In return, he receives Peiping's promise to support Indonesian claims to Dutch-held Western New Guinea.

This comes at a time when Indonesian nationalism has been working against all foreign business interests, especially affecting Chinese of both Communist and Nationalist persuasions.

It comes at a time when, after several years of watchful waiting the United States, having gone thankless after supporting Indonesian independence during the years of conflict with the Dutch, had reopened her heart and her coffers to the new republic.

It comes at a time when the Indonesian government is very largely controlled by anti-Communist Gen. Nasution, who has turned to the United States for military aid in his efforts to end the numerous local rebellions which still plague him.

It comes on the eve of Subandrio's visit to Japan, which always has opposed any Chinese expansionism, and to the Philippines, to which Red Chinese on Formosa would represent the same sort of threat as the Japanese did in World War II.

If Subandrio's expression in Peiping should prove to be an actual part of Indonesian policy, it would represent a very direct and dangerous conflict with U.S. policy, which is to defend Formosa by force if necessary.

It would represent a policy which, for Indonesia, is unnecessary and unprofitable.

U.N. Votes In Favor Of Tibet Debate

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (AP)—The U.N. General Assembly decided Monday to hold a full debate on charges of Chinese Communist repression in Tibet.

The vote was 43-11. Voting no were the Communist nations and Indonesia, which complained that the Peiping government would not be present to answer the charges since the U.N. has refused to consider admitting it.

Speaking in favor of holding the debate, U.S. Ambassador Henry Cabot Lodge told the Assembly: "If we turn our faces away from evil in the U.N., the world will be in serious danger."

Twenty-five nations abstained, mostly Asian neutrals and Arabs. India, whose relations with Peiping have deteriorated since the anti-Communist rebellion in Tibet this spring, refused even to participate in the vote.

Meet a Young Executive on the Champs Elysees

(SHE COULD BE YOU!)

Not long ago this young lady was a college senior. Today, she handles the responsibilities and decisions of an executive in one of the world's largest organizations. Today, she's an Army officer in Paris... a Lieutenant in the Women's Army Corps.

Her professional and social life is busy... exciting... happily balanced.

On duty, this young executive occupies a position requiring education, initiative and intelligence. The high salary and traditional privileges of an Army officer are hers.

Off duty, she enjoys her leisure time. (Free evenings and weekends plus 30 days annual paid vacation.) Perhaps she'll attend evening classes at the Sorbonne. Or make a skiing trip to St. Moritz. Or spend a holiday on the French Riviera. Whatever she does, she'll find a world of fun!

Of course, her assignment didn't have to be Paris. It might have been Heidelberg, Honolulu, Tokyo... even New York or Los Angeles.

But wherever this young lady goes, she enjoys a feeling of individual accomplishment. Because she began her career as an executive... an officer in the Women's Army Corps.

She could be you... this young executive on the Champs Elysees.

Special...1960 Summer Program for Juniors:

Want a special preview of Army life? Why not see it for yourself this summer! If you qualify for this limited program, you'll receive 4 weeks of orientation training during the summer of 1960—without any commitment. The sole purpose of this program is to help you decide—with confidence—if you want to apply for a commission after you graduate. If you're interested, today is the day to mail the coupon. Successor For Bert Bell Has NFL In Quandary

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — The sudden shock of Bert Bell's death left National Football League owners without a standout choice to succeed him as commissioner.

His 13 years as czar of the NFL were busy ones for Bell, leaving him without time to groom a successor.

Even the man who temporarily is filling Bell's post, former FBI agent Austin Gunesel, said Monday he had no idea whom the 12 owners might select.

Gunesel, as league treasurer, became acting commissioner Sunday when Bell died, under provision of the NFL constitution. He'll remain in that post at least until Wednesday when the club owners are expected to meet here after Bell's funeral.

The league constitution provides for such a meeting within 30 days after the death of a commissioner. As an alternative to choosing a commissioner, the owners could select an interim president to hold office until the league meeting in January.

Names being mentioned in speculation are those of Don Kelllett, general manager of the Baltimore Colts; Joe Donoghue, vice president of the Philadelphia Eagles and assistant league treasurer; Paul Brown, Cleveland Browns coach and executive, and George Halas and George Preston Marshall, owners of the Chicago Bears and Washington Redskins. Halas and Marshall have said they don't want the post.

Kelllett said "It is certainly a great honor to be mentioned as a possible successor... Whoever is named may succeed him but could not replace him."

Marshall was the first owner to mention a possible successor, Gov. A. B. (Happy) Chandler of Kentucky. Chandler, former commissioner of Major League baseball, declined comment. He has indicated he will seek the Democratic presidential nomination.

Gunesel also could be consid-

Steeler Coach Parker Fires Defensive Back

PITTSBURGH (AP) — Coach Buddy Parker, irked over the Pittsburgh Steelers' 28-24 loss to the Philadelphia Eagles, Monday fired defensive back Don Bishop.

Parker blamed Bishop personally for the loss. He said Bishop was not on the field when rookie end Art Powell returned a punt 58 yards for a touchdown that put the Eagles out in front in the second quarter.

He said Bishop was on the sidelines getting a shoe taped leaving the kicking team with only 10 players on the field.

Subs Scrimmage As 1st, 2nd Units Have Easy Drill

The two units that did the bulk of the work in defeating Michigan State, 37-8, had a day of rest Monday. The teams appeared on the practice field sans pads and engaged in only loosening up drills.

The third stringers and Mau-Maus were featured in a half-hour scrimmage Monday. The Mau-Maus were decked out in the red and white uniforms of Wisconsin, Saturday's opponent, and ran the Badger offense.

Curt Merz, who didn't dress for Saturday's game, was back for Monday's drills but still has a noticeable limp and may even miss the Wisconsin game.

Following the brief workout the Hawkeyes returned to the Fieldhouse to view movies of the Wisconsin team.

Even though the Hawkeyes put on a dazzling performance of football prowess Saturday, it's too early to start making plans for the celebration that follows clinching the Big Ten title.

Michigan State on its performance Saturday, cannot be listed among the powers of the league, and the Hawkeyes will have to equal or surpass the efforts put forth in the Spartan clash to play on equal terms with Wisconsin and Purdue, the next two stumbling blocks.

The uncertainty as to the strength of Michigan State again makes it nearly impossible to evaluate the strength of the Iowa team. The problem will unquestionably be solved within the next two weeks.

In Wisconsin the Hawkeyes meet an opponent that outweighs them by at least 20 pounds per man. The Hawkeye front wall has been one of the surprise features of this year's team but will have its most severe test Saturday.

The Badgers, beaten by Purdue last weekend, will be pointing for the Iowa game, knowing that another defeat will throw a monkey-wrench in their Rose Bowl hopes. As if this weren't enough motive for a win, Wisconsin remembers only too well the 20-9 loss to Iowa last year. That loss was the lone defeat suffered by Milt Bruhn's squad last season.

Wisconsin quarterback Dale Hackbart is perhaps the most dangerous man the Hawkeyes will encounter this season. A converted halfback, he is a fine runner and is undoubtedly the best passer that Iowa has met in this short season.

Last year the Badgers had Iowa defended almost perfectly for over half of the game. Then the Hawkeyes took advantage of two fumbles for touchdowns and Bob Jeter scored on a 68-yard screen pass for the final touchdown.

Don Norton placed himself at the top of the heap of all-American end candidates with another tremendous game Saturday. Visiting writers seeing Iowa for the first time this year were amazed at the life senior's proficiency in both pass receiving and defensive work.

A quick quote from the football world. Vanderbilt coach Art Guepe summed up his team's 33-0 loss to Mississippi (fifth-ranked in last week's AP poll) as follows: "We believe in educating the boys at Vanderbilt and they certainly got an education Saturday night."

For those who haven't heard as yet, it was Larry Sherry who won the Corvete for contributing most to his team's efforts in the World Series. He became the fifth hurler to win the award in as many years.

Milwaukee Braves owner Lou Perini indicates he wants an experienced man to replace the retired Fred Haney as manager of the Braves. For this information Leo Durocher and Chuck Dressen appear to have the inside track although Lou Boudreau and Bobby Bragan are also mentioned prominently. Then there is Birdie Tebbets, ex-Cincinnati field general who is now a vice president in the Braves' organization.

Billiards King In Union Exhibition

Mosconi Wows Spectators

By GARY HICKOK
Staff Writer

The finest pocket billiards player in the world, Willie Mosconi, left some 150 spectators "ohing" and "ahing" in amazement as he displayed championship shooting and incomparable trick shots at the Iowa Memorial Union Monday night.

It was Mosconi's second of four performances for SUI students. He will display his artistry today at 2:30 and 6 p.m. and promises that his shooting will be better than in two earlier shows.

"We have good days and bad ones," said the world champion while performing one of his trick shots. But as each of the balls on the table found its pocket with radar-like accuracy, this statement was somewhat hard to believe.

Before going into his display of some of the basic fundamentals and trick shots, Mosconi invited Jim Perez, 1959 National Intercollegiate straight rail billiards champion, to play a game to 150 points.

Mosconi defeated Perez 150-11 and ran 45 balls in one stretch. To the average player, this feat would be something to write home about. But it disgusted Mosconi.

The reason is this: He holds the world's record high run of 526 points, the world's best game of 125 points in one inning, the 1950 National Tournament high run of 141 points in one inning, and the world's record high run in challenge match play of 127 balls.

The congenial Mosconi has a fine sense of humor that permeates his precise, concentrated World champion billiards player, Willie Mosconi, plays a shot in his second of four exhibitions at the Iowa Memorial Union Monday night. play. After the game with Perez, one bystander asked the weight of his cue. Mosconi promptly replied: "Nineteen ounces and after I leave tonight I'm going to break it in two."

Just a few of his many trick shots included sinking six balls with one strike of the cue, making five balls on the run and making one ball on the run in combination with another. To add flavor to the performance, he even called two men out of the crowd to perform tricks after he had set them up. Mosconi is a great promoter of billiards playing. When asked whether people frowned on billiards playing because it might be linked with the wrong type of atmosphere, he cited the fact that many colleges throughout the nation have beautiful billiards facilities.

He has made a career of the game since he was 16. "At the time of the depression," noted Mosconi, "tournaments were set up and money was given for prizes. That is what attracted me to the game." He does no instructing but until 1956 he played in tournaments and made tours at the same time.

Mosconi, who has been World's Pocket Billiards Champion since 1941, has played with the late Willie Hoppe but says they didn't play the same type of game. Knowledge of the game is the hardest part of playing pocket billiards, notes Mosconi. "There is a right way of getting around and there is a wrong way just like in anything else."

The champion says that pocket billiards is a man's game. He feels that women don't have the patience and can't grasp the fundamentals of the game well enough. No matter what the sex, this writer feels that it would take a tremendous amount of patience and knowledge of fundamentals to top the accomplishments of the "champ."

Cubs' Jackson States Retirement Decision

ATHENS, Ga. (AP) — Ransom Jackson, third baseman for the Chicago Cubs, announced Monday he is retiring from baseball.

Jackson told John Holland, Cub vice president, of his decision several weeks ago but withheld public announcement until he returned to his home here. He told Holland that in view of the fact that he is 33 years old and has not been playing much recently, he thought it is time to look for something with security.

Jackson twice was named to the National League all-star team (1954-55). In 1955, he led the circuit in double plays for third basemen, starting 26. His lifetime batting average was .260.

Dressen Finds Acting Costly; Loses $300 For Series Show

NEW YORK (AP) — Baseball Commissioner Ford Frick Monday slapped a $300 fine on Charley Dressen, Los Angeles coach, for acting up in the final World Series game last week.

The commissioner said Dressen must pay $200 for using profane language and threatening gestures and $100 for "showboating" after he had been thumbed off the field by Ed Hurley, the first base umpire.

This is the second time Dressen has been fined for his actions in a World Series. He drew a $100 penalty for protesting a strike decision when he was manager of the Dodgers at Brooklyn in 1953.

The commissioner said he had sent the news to the fiery Dodger coach by telegram, advising that the sum would be deducted from Dressen's World Series check.

The incident happened in the fourth inning of the sixth and decisive game of the series at Comiskey Park.

Dressen was coaching at first base while the White Sox were at bat in the fourth and just after Ted Kluszewski, Chicago first baseman, had hit a three-run homer.

Dressen began exchanging words with Hurley, an American League umpire. After a while, Hurley thumbed Dressen off the field.

Later it was reported that Dressen was ejected for yelling at plate umpire Frank Dascoli while Earl Torgeson was at bat for the White Sox. Hurley told Dressen to be quiet and Dressen snapped back.

Dressen, who missed most of his team's 9-3 victory which sewed up the series, complained in the dressing room that he was banished without reason.

"The bench got on Dascoli for what we thought should have been a strike against Torgeson," Dressen said. "Hurley told us to shut up. I yelled 'What do you mean, shut up?' He thought I told him to shut up. I was innocent of the whole thing."

In last year's World Series, Ryne Duren, Yankee pitcher, was fined $250 for making a "choke-up" gesture at plate umpire Charley Berry.

The most sweeping fine was the $50 each assessed against each of the 22 members of the Milwaukee Braves — also last year — for prematurely disclosing how they were splitting up their World Series swag.

HAWKS IN TOURNEY

NEW YORK (AP) — Iowa and Cincinnati, guest teams in the Holiday Basketball Festival at Madison Square Garden, both will see action on the opening day program.

Iowa, representing the Big Ten, will play St. John's of Brooklyn, in the second game of an afternoon doubleheader on Saturday, Dec. 26.

A Campus-to-Career Case History

Engineering of microwave relay and carrier systems keeps Bryan Clinton's job interesting and challenging.

"I got the engineering career I wanted
...and right in my own home state"

In 1955, William Bryan Clinton, Jr., got his B.S. in Mechanical Engineering at Clemson College. Now Bryan's with Southern Bell Telephone and Telegraph Company at Columbia, South Carolina. He's doing specific planning of long distance communications projects involving cable carrier facilities and microwave radio relay systems.

Bryan chose a career with Southern Bell over several other offers. "There were three things that were most important to me," he says. "First, I wanted to go with an established, growing company where I could grow, too. Second, I wanted thorough basic training to get started off right, plus participation in development programs to keep me moving ahead. And, third, I wanted to stay in the South."

After 15 months of on-the-job training in various phases of company operations, Bryan was assigned to the Engineering Department at Columbia, S. C. His work with carrier systems and microwave radio projects has involved him directly in the growth of the company. And he's broadened his experience through development courses in management, general engineering, engineering economy, and microwave relay systems.

"I know I'm with a fast-growing company and I feel I'm really participating in its growth," Bryan says. "What's more, I'm getting the training I need to keep me abreast of new communications developments and take better advantage of advancement opportunities when they come along."

Bryan Clinton earned a B.S. degree in Mechanical Engineering. He's one of many young college men pursuing rewarding careers with the Bell Telephone Companies. Find out about opportunities for you. Talk with the Bell interviewer when he visits your campus—and read the Bell Telephone booklet on file in your Placement Office.

Series Opens Wednesday On Marriage

"How old is old enough for marriage?" is the title of the opening lecture in the fall series of Major in Marriage lectures.

The lecture will be presented by Mrs. Eleanor B. Luckey, assistant professor in the Child Welfare Department, at 3:30 p.m. Wednesday in the Pentacrest Room of the Iowa Memorial Union.

Any SUI student may attend the program of lectures, sponsored by the YWCA, and designed to acquaint students with the problems and rewards of married life.

The fall series of lectures will be held every Wednesday afternoon for the next five weeks. It will be concerned with the psychological aspects of marriage, and, in the spring series, the physiological side of marriage will be discussed.

On Oct. 21, Clark Vincent of the Sociology Department will discuss "Dating Behavior." The Oct. 28 meeting will feature Dr. William S. Moeller, associate in the Psychology Department, speaking on "Engagement Ethics."

An ecumenical panel of clergymen will be speaking Nov. 4 on "Should you marry outside your faith?" Nov. 18 a panel of married couples will discuss "If you do marry outside your faith," with Robert Michaelson, administrative director of the School of Religion, as moderator.

Legislator Presents Pin To Sorority

Mrs. Katherine Falvey of Albia, state representative from Monroe County and the only woman in the Iowa Legislature, presented a diamond sorority pin to the members of Zeta Tau Alpha social sorority at a brunch at the chapter house Sunday morning.

The pin will be presented yearly to the woman chosen by the chapter as the outstanding senior, and will be known as the Katherine Falvey award.

Mrs. Falvey was a member of the first Zeta Tau Alpha pledge class at SUI when the chapter went national in 1923. She is also a member of Phi Beta Kappa honorary scholastic fraternity.

Phys Ed Prof Earns Honors

Betty Van der Smitten, SUI assistant professor of physical education for women, has been named chairman of the research council of the American Recreation Society and editor of a recreation research publication to be issued for the first time this year.

Miss Van der Smitten attended the National Recreation Congress in Chicago early this month. The congress was jointly sponsored by the American Recreation Society and the National Recreation Association.

She was also elected secretary of the professional education section of the American Recreation Society.

At the congress, Miss Van der Smitten attended the administrative council meetings of the American Recreation Society and presented a research paper titled "The Development of an Aptitude Inventory and Rating Scale for Evaluating Professional Recreation Workers." The paper reported on a thesis project by Shirley Kammerer, G, Seattle, Wash.

Former SUI'er To Edit Magazine

Mrs. Robert Bonomi, Des Moines, has been appointed editor of the Adelphian, national publication of Alpha Delta Pi sorority. Mrs. Bonomi is a 1948 graduate of SUI.

The oldest secret society for college women, founded in 1851, Alpha Delta Pi has 99 chapters in the United States and Canada. Iowa chapters are at SUI, Iowa State University and Morningside College, Sioux City.

Skeptics Group To Meet With Prof. Samuel Hays

The first meeting of the Skeptics will be held at 7:30 p.m. in the YWCA office in the Iowa Memorial Union today.

Three GOP Congressmen To Make SUI Addresses

Three Republican congressmen will speak to SUI students Thursday morning as part of a program called "Operation Sound America."

Rep. Robert P. Griffin (R-Mich.), co-author of the Landrum-Griffin labor bill; Rep. Melvin H. Laird (R-Wis.), member of the House Appropriations Committee; and Rep. Albert H. Quie (R-Minn.), member of the House Agriculture Committee, will give brief speeches at 9:15 a.m. Thursday from the east steps of Old Capitol.

The congressmen will hold a general question-and-answer period and press conference at 9:45 a.m. "The purpose of the program," said Edward D. Failer, state chairman of the Young Republicans of Iowa, "is to acquaint college students with Republican principles and philosophies, explain the Republican side of issues in Congress and to help the college student better understand the art and science of government."

"It is our aim to encourage more young people to become active in the Republican party by giving them an opportunity to hear Republican leaders."

The team of congressmen will be guests of the SUI Young Republicans at breakfast Thursday morning. Following their visit here they will travel to Grinnell College, Iowa State University and Drake University for other appearances Thursday.

8 SUIowans Attend College Art Meeting

Four SUI graduate students and four professors of art attended the Midwest College Art Conference at the University of Wisconsin this weekend where Wallace Thomas Tomasini, professor of art at SUI, presented a paper on "The Renaissance Artist and the Income Tax."

Tomasini was also chairman of a graduate art symposium in which four papers were presented, one of them by a former SUI graduate student, William Dean Eckert, who is now an instructor at Ohio Wesleyan. The subject of his paper was "Tragic and Comic Scene of Serlio: Renaissance Interpretation of Vitruvian Concepts."

The graduate students who attended the conference were Robert Wolfe, Oxford, Ohio; Mary Ann Fichtner, South Bend, Ind.; Margaret Polson, Ithaca, N.Y.; and Edmund Eglinski, Lorain, Ohio.

Professors attending were Stuart Edie, Humbert Albright, Byron Buford and Wallace Thomas Tomasini.

The illustrated lecture will be in two parts: "Diamonds From Dust," illustrating in black and white the why's and how's of Dr. Kothary's famous combinations of dust and sunlight, and "India-A Portrait in Color," a series of color slides.

Tickets will be available at the door of Shambaugh Auditorium on the evening of the lecture. Admission price is 75 cents.

Rhodes Official To Speak Here

Alson D. Bell, assistant to the American secretary for the Rhodes Scholarship Trust, will speak Thursday at 7:30 p.m. at the Honors Round Table to be held in the Senate Chamber of Old Capitol.

Student admission will be honors card, and each honors student may bring a friend.

Comedy To Open Dramatic Season

The SUI theatres 39th season will open Oct. 22 with the 19th century comedy, "A Scrap of Paper," by Victorian Sardou.

Students in the cast include: Hugh Dunn, A3, Columbus Junction; Jane Gilchrist, A3, Denison; Richard Paulus, A4, Iowa City; Gary Jay Williams, A4, Fairfield; Donald Shearer, A3, Solon; Stephan Cole, G, Chicago, and Joel Vance, A1, Evanston, Ill.

Also, Martha Chapman, A3, Quincy, Ill.; Gail Giegold, A4, Villa Park, Ill.; Robert Meadors, G, Petersburg, Ind.; Lynne Haussler, A4, Manhasset, N.Y.; Allan Longacre, G, Omaha; Willie Jo Lofton, G, Memphis, Tenn.; Mary Lamar Rickey, G, Memphis; Mary Adelyn Sims, A2, Memphis; and David Benedictus, G, Berkshire, England.

Directed by James Gouseff, instructor in dramatic arts, "A Scrap of Paper" will run Oct. 22-24 and Oct. 28-31. Curtain time for all performances is 8 p.m.

Reserved seat tickets will be available beginning Thursday in the east lobby of the Iowa Memorial Union Monday through Friday from 9 a.m. to 4:30 p.m. and Saturday from 9 a.m. to noon.

Written and produced purely for entertainment, "A Scrap of Paper" represents the well-made play which reached great popularity in Europe in the middle of the 19th century, according to Gouseff.

Perhaps no other 19th century French dramatist was able to stir so many audiences and acquire a comparable reputation in Europe, America and Asia, as Victorien Sardou. His plays were written to amuse and charm and to make his audiences forget the troubles and worries of everyday life.

A love letter, which perhaps should never have been written, provides the source of an hilarious game of keep-away, played by amorous gentlemen and ladies. The setting of the play is the village of Chignon, in the provincial France of 1875.

Classes Set To Lessen Gawkinsness

Help for the awkward years when rapid growth makes youngsters seem "all arms and legs" will be offered in three classes in dancing which will start Saturday morning at SUI Women's Gymnasium.

The classes are designed to improve rhythmic development and coordination as well as develop ability in dramatic expression. Both boys and girls between five and 12 years of age may register for the classes, which will meet on Saturdays for 45-minute periods.

Classes are divided into different age groups so that the dance movements may be geared to benefit the child's particular growth level. For example, the fundamentals of walking, running and hopping will be included in the beginner's classes, while the advanced sections will use more intricate steps. Children will be encouraged to express themselves in coordinated dance movements, and many will work up simple dances.

The intermediate class, for six- and seven-year-olds, will meet at 9 a.m. each Saturday; the beginning class, for five-year-olds, at 10 a.m.; and the advanced section for children from eight through ten years of age, will meet at 11 a.m.

Mrs. Glennis Kulke, who has taught similar dance groups in the past, will be the instructor for the dance sessions this year. She has participated in dance classes at the University of Colorado at Boulder.

Parents may register children for the classes at the SUI Women's Gymnasium Oct. 13 through 16, from 9 a.m. to 4 p.m. The cost of the lessons is $7.50.

College Problems To Be Discussed By Panel Today

The Inter-Varsity Christian Fellowship today will meet at 7:30 p.m. in the east lobby conference room of the Iowa Memorial Union.

A panel discussion of "Problems of College Students" will be led by Dr. William Snyder, SUI medical intern, Richard Campbell, associate professor of chemistry, and two graduate students, Norm Luther, Iowa City and Jim Maxey, Bloomington, Ill.

Mayor Declares Oct. 18 As United Nations Week

Iowa City Mayor Philip F. Morgan has officially declared Oct. 18 to 24 as United Nations Week in Iowa City.

Morgan signed a formal proclamation in ceremonies Friday at SUI's International House.

UN Week has an added significance in Iowa City this year as SUI President Virgil M. Hancher is serving as an alternate delegate to the UN General Assembly now meeting in New York City.

Brooks Hays Will Discuss U.S. Ideals

"American Ideals" will be discussed by Brooks Hays, former U.S. representative from Arkansas, in a lecture Wednesday at 8 p.m. in Iowa Memorial Union at SUI.

Free tickets for the lecture will be available to staff members, students and the general public in the East Lounge of the Union from 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. today and Wednesday or until all tickets have been distributed.

While serving as a representative of the Fifth Congressional District of Arkansas from 1942 through 1958, Hays became known for his interest in social work and as a recognized authority on farm tenancy in the South. He has worked for the extension of educational and economic opportunities for Negroes in the South and has taken an active part in inter-racial organizations. His work on civil rights legislation led to his appointment to the platform committee of the Democratic National Conventions in 1952 and 1956.

Author of the book "A Southern Moderate Speaks," Hays served for eight years as a member of the committee on banking and currency and from 1951 through 1958 was a member of the committee on foreign affairs. He is well known for his public appearances before church, civic and college groups and is regarded as one of the best storytellers in the U.S. He received the Speaker of the Year Award from the University of Arkansas, Fayetteville, in 1958.

Hays is presently a member of the governing boards of George Peabody College at Nashville, Tenn., and George Washington University, Washington, D.C. He is also a member of Phi Beta Kappa and Sigma Chi fraternities. He was educated in Russellville, Ark., public schools, received his bachelor of arts degree from the University of Arkansas in 1919 and his bachelor of law degree from George Washington University in 1922.

The physician is survived by his wife, Lucille, and daughter, Sandra, of Bethesda, Md.; a son, Seymour, Jr., a student in psychology at Harvard University; four brothers, Clarence of Iowa City, Lyle of New York City, Attorney Harold Des Moines, and Dr. Albert of Long Beach; and a sister Mrs. Robert Grimm of Iowa City.

Hospital Plaque Honors '31 Grad, Dr. Vestermark

A plaque honoring the late Dr. Seymour Day Vestermark, a 1931 medical graduate of SUI, has been mounted in the main corridor of the University's Psychopathic Hospital.

Prior to his death in February, Dr. Vestermark had been chief of the National Institute of Mental Health's training branch for 10 years. The Institute is a unit of the National Institutes of Health, an arm of the United States Public Health Service.

The American Psychiatric Association awarded a Certificate of Achievement of Dr. Vestermark shortly before his death.

The physician is survived by his wife, Lucille, and daughter, Sandra, of Bethesda, Md.; a son, Seymour, Jr., a student in psychology at Harvard University; four brothers, Clarence of Iowa City, Lyle of New York City, Attorney Harold Des Moines, and Dr. Albert of Long Beach; and a sister Mrs. Robert Grimm of Iowa City.

Demos Discuss 'Inflation' Topic

"Economic Growth — With or Without Inflation" will be the subject of an SUI Young Democrats discussion meeting at 7:30 p.m. today in Union Conference Room 2.

Guest leader will be Gerald L. Nordquist, instructor in economics. A social coffee hour will be held following the discussion.

Applications Due Monday For Danforth Study Grants

Monday has been set as the deadline for applications for study grants given by the Danforth Foundation to college and university teachers.

Applications and information may be secured from Robert Michaelson, administrative director of the School of Religion, at 108 Macbride Hall.

An applicant must be between the ages of 25 and 40 and have had at least one year of successful graduate study and three years of teaching experience, exclusive of 1959 or 1960. This does not include more than one year of high school or junior college teaching.

Another stipulation is faculty status with a minimum of half-time classroom teaching within his total load at the time of applications.

A recipient of a grant may enroll for study at an accredited American university of his choice. Grants range from $2,400 to $4,800, exclusive of payment of tuition and official fees.

SUI Dean Named To Advisory Body

William J. Simon, dean of the SUI College of Dentistry, has been appointed to serve on the National Advisory Dental Research Council, Surgeon General Leroy E. Burney of the Public Health Service, Department of Health, Education, and Welfare has announced. Simon's four-year term of service on the council began Oct. 1.

Members of the Dental Research Council advise and make recommendations to the surgeon general on research and training grants and fellowships to be awarded from Public Health Service funds appropriated to the National Institute of Dental Research, Bethesda, Md. This is one of the seven institutes which make up the National Institutes of Health, main research branch of the Public Health Service.

Simon has been serving as member of the Training Grant Committee, a subcommittee of the National Advisory Dental Research Council. He will continue in this post and is attending a meeting of the committee this week in Washington, D.C.

Indian Goes To Church, Confesses Bank Robbery

REDWOOD CITY, Calif. (AP) — An Indian, urged by his wife to go to church, whispered to another worshiper at the Assembly of God here Sunday that he wanted to admit a bank robbery.

Sheriff's Lt. Joseph Kimble later saw Gawexsky Smith, 29, admitted robbing the Webbers Falls State Bank in Oklahoma of $2,694 on Feb. 3, and spending the money for medical bills for his wife and two children. Smith, a painter, was held for the FBI.

WHAT'S THIS FELLOW THINKING?

Pretty hard to tell, isn't it? His thoughts are known only to him; they are INVISIBLE to you.

It's the same way with the maintenance functions of dry cleaning. They are INVISIBLE to you. You can't tell by looking at the cleaned garment if these functions have been done or not. Therefore you must depend on the cleaners for getting done the INVISIBLE maintenance functions. For example:

Did proper neutralization and complete flushing of chemicals applied to extra-soiled spots on your clothes take place, so that fiber deterioration was eliminated?

You can't tell by looking if this INVISIBLE maintenance function was done or not. That's why you must rely on a dependable cleaner that performs these functions.
