Continuous Rains Drench Iowa City Area

By HAROLD HATFIELD

"Our Great Pumpkin. Please bring me a pumpkin, young man, and tell me, why is it that I have never seen a pumpkin before?"

This has been the prayer for the past three days, according to a large group of supporters who have come to see the annual pilgrimage of pumpkins. The Great Pumpkin has been a tradition for over 50 years, and this year was no exception.

The Great Rain began shortly after the event, when the Kansas Jayhawks scored a field goal, and by Monday afternoon, the Iowa City streets were covered with a blanket of mud. The muddy conditions are expected to last for at least another day, with the possibility of more rain in the forecast.

Short Review

Of Campaign

By Roberts

The huge and uncertain task of the 1968 presidential campaign seems to have given rise to a great deal of interest in the possibility of the Democratic candidate being elected. This interest has been fueled by the recent success of the Republican candidate in the primary elections, which has made the Democratic candidate appear more likely to be the next president.

The polls show that the Democratic candidate is behind in the polls, and it appears that the Republican candidate is likely to be nominated. However, the polls are not always accurate, and the Democratic candidate has a chance of winning if he can improve his standing in the polls.

The campaign has been characterized by a great deal of uncertainty, and it is difficult to predict the outcome. The Democratic candidate has been criticized for his lack of experience, and the Republican candidate has been criticized for his lack of independence. However, both candidates have their strengths, and it is difficult to say which candidate will win.

The campaign has also been characterized by a great deal of spending. The candidates have been spending a lot of money on advertising and campaigning, and it is difficult to say how much of an impact this will have on the outcome.

The campaign has also been characterized by a great deal of controversy. There have been several controversies involving the candidates, and it is difficult to say how much of an impact this will have on the outcome.

Congressman Fred Schwengel utilizes university students on his legislative research team

Congressman Fred Schwengel is one of the strongest supporters of higher education in Iowa. Realizing, upon his election to Congress in 1954, that the University of Iowa and the University of Northern Iowa students interested in governmental activities, initiated what is schematically known today as the "Schwengel Legislative Research Team." This team is made up of university students who take a year off their studies to work in Washington, D.C., for the congressman. A 1964 study by the University of Iowa found that 90 percent of the students participating in the "Schwengel Legislative Research Team" later secured employment in governmental positions.

Casey To Lead AL’s Los Angeles Team?

NEW YORK — Casey Stengel was named the Los Angeles Dodgers’ manager by Peter K. Browning and Bill Greenberg of the Associated Press on Thursday. Both Stengel and Yogi Berra, the old New York Yankees’ skipper, were long-time friends of Browning and Greenberg. The Associated Press story said the Dodgers had been looking for a manager for about a week, and that Stengel was the man to fill the vacancy. The Associated Press also reported that Don Zimmer, who had been their top choice, was expected to return to the staff. Zimmer was with the Yankees last season and had helped them win the World Series. He was also considered a strong candidate for the Dodger job.

21 Wins

DODGERS - The Associated Press story also stated that the Dodgers had won 21 games in a row, the longest winning streak in the majors this season. The streak began on Oct. 23 and included a game against the Cardinals in St. Louis. The Associated Press story said that the Dodgers had been playing well and that they were expected to continue their winning ways.

Every four years, the Associated Press releases a new edition of its “Yearbook,” a comprehensive guide to the baseball season. The 1960 edition was dedicated to the memory of the late baseball great Branch Rickey.

The 1960 Yearbook was dedicated to Branch Rickey, the former Branch Rickey Foundation executive who was a major influence in the integration of baseball. The 1960 World Series matched the Dodgers against the Baltimore Orioles, with the Dodgers winning the seven-game series in six games. The Dodgers had the best record in the National League during the regular season and were considered a strong contender for the World Series title.

The 1960 All-Star Game was held at Wrigley Field in Chicago, with the American League winning 4-3. The game was played on July 13, 1960, and was considered one of the best All-Star Games in recent history.

1960 World Series Preview

The Associated Press story also previewed the 1960 World Series, which was expected to be a close match between the Dodgers and the Orioles. The Associated Press predicted that the Dodgers would win the series, but that it would be a hard-fought battle.

1960 Baseball News

The Associated Press story also covered other news related to baseball, including the retirement of several prominent players and the return of some injured players. The story also included a look at the future of baseball and the challenges facing the sport.

1960 Baseball Statistics

City Return

There were three striking incidents in Saturday's football game. One was the bewildered look of the Green Wave fans, who were the minority on the home side. Another was the Iowa City Express, who made a brave, but unsuccessful attempt to score with their first string. The third was the Iowa City Express' ability to score with their second string, and that of the University of Nebraska, who were forced to hold a tough, hard-hitting game with the Press Box. The Express were lucky enough to come out of the game with a victory, thanks to a strong showing by the Express' second string. Jack Saved His Company $10,000 On His First Assignment

While Jack Torkel was in college he had some definite career ideas. He knew what he wanted - a job with a payoff and a good judgment. With a B.S. in Business Administration from the University of Nebraska, Jack knew he could control money and manage money. He did this. He worked for the Press Box, and as such he had a chance to make a good showing. He was a good showing. He was a good showing. He was a good showing.

Jack puts it this way: "If a guy can keep his head up, there are plenty to go in this outfit. A man doesn't have to work around for opportunity to know—he has all he can handle right from the start.

If you want a job in which you're given a chance to show your stuff, and have all the advantages for your decisions, right from the start—then you've saved in your plan. Boston, 610 N. Main St., Springfield, Ill., 62701.

SUI Prof Get Grants

A grant of $4,000 has been awarded by the National Science Foundation to two UI physicists for research in theoretical physics. Viki Friedander and Philip Ballachek, both professors of physics, received the grants. Friedander's project is "Particle Theory" and his assistant, Richard Field, will also be working on it. The UI grant was the only one awarded to a university in the state.

The research will attempt to understand the mathematical equations which can be applied to problems in nuclear physics and statistical mechanics, and perhaps will make suggestions for explaining the subatomic particles which are not known to exist in various areas.
