United Nations Urges Moscow To Cancel ‘Big Bomb’ Blast

The General Assembly will meet Thursday morning. Delegates prepared for the UN Security Council to convene today in New York to consider the resolution on the Soviet blast. Secretary General Kurt Waldheim is to report on efforts to prevent the test.

The Soviet offer to test a 5-megaton device in the atmosphere presents a clear threat to world security, Waldheim said in a statement Wednesday. He warned that this would lead to further tests, raising the risk of an arms race.

The test would also trigger a U.S. response, said the U.S. delegate, Ambassador John R. Muccio. "This is a moment of truth," he said. "It is a test of the United Nations and its ability to prevent the arms race.

Waldheim said the test would be a violation of the 1963 Nuclear Test Ban Treaty, which the Soviet Union had signed. The treaty banned nuclear tests above ground, underwater and in space. Waldheim called on the Soviet Union to withdraw its test proposals and respect its obligations under the treaty.

The test would also violate the 1968 Non-Proliferation Treaty, which was signed by 115 countries. It was designed to prevent the spread of nuclear weapons and to ensure that nuclear technology was used for peaceful purposes.

The test would also have serious economic consequences, said the U.S. delegate. It would increase the cost of nuclear arms and make it more difficult for the world to develop a nuclear-free future.

The test would also have serious environmental consequences, said the U.S. delegate. It would increase the risk of nuclear fallout and make it more difficult for people to live in a nuclear-free world.

The test would also have serious political consequences, said the U.S. delegate. It would undermine the UN's ability to prevent the arms race and make it more difficult for the world to achieve a nuclear-free future.

In Defense of Iowa Athletics

Here at Iowa, as well as at other universities, it has long been a favorite pastime of college students to take on the athletics and the Athletic Department. That pastime became increasingly popular during the past year whenever an apparent scandal developed to the Athletic Department. Critics of the student body began to hurl insults at the critics of the past and comments that are not here.

But even with quick response to charges, the department remains under fire.

When an article appeared in "Sport" magazine's November issue charging Connie Hawkins, former UC and Iowa basketball player implicated in the nation's wide ... over $500 a month to come to Iowa, critics mocked the university's cost of athletics.

The Hawkins' story may sound like a fairy tale on the surface, but it is the same story that has been repeated by many young people from all walks of life.

Iowa Athletic Department needed to comment. It did.

Of course, the Hawkins were not the only Iowa basketball players who received a nine-figure salary. In fact, they were some of the lowest paid...
New Atom Smashers for SUI To Boost Nuclear Research

The SUI Physics Department has received a $54,000 grant from the National Science Foundation to purchase another atom smasher, a similar but much smaller, instrument. Construction of the Iowa Van de Graaff began in July 1962. Once completed, the university's facilities will be among the largest in the nation. The 15-foot-high machine will be located in the Physics building's basement, near the Van de Graaff's existing 10-foot-high unit.

SUI Graduate Develops Way to Stop Chronic Nose-bleed

OLSON, N.D.—In a new application of the SUI Medical Research department's work, a SUI graduate student has developed a method for stopping chronic nose-bleeds.

The student, Edward S. Rose, a former SUI Medical student, has developed a method for stopping chronic nose-bleeds. The method involves the use of a specially designed device that is inserted into the nostril to prevent blood from oozing out.

Loch Ness Monster: A Big Mystery Since 1928

FORGE ABERDEEN, Scotland—Loch Ness, the famous lake in the Scottish Highlands, is the site of one of the world's most enduring mysteries. The legend of the Loch Ness Monster dates back to the 1930s, and ever since, people have been fascinated by the possibility of a giant, prehistoric creature living in the depths of the lake.

Dr. William Hamilton, a professor of zoology at the University of Edinburgh, has spent years studying the lake and its inhabitants. He believes that the monster is a myth, but others are convinced that it exists.

Price Boosts Shoe Cost Of Living to Record High

WASHINGTON—The cost of living continued to rise in April, with prices for shoes increasing at a record rate. The index for shoes rose 1.3 percent, marking the fourth consecutive month of gains.

The rise in shoe prices was driven by a surge in the cost of leather and other materials used in shoe production. The inflation rate for all items was 0.8 percent, but the cost of shoes was more than twice that.

Final Word From Burns—Hollis Definitely Sideline

Coach Feels More Injury To Hawk Star

By GARY GERLACH

Jocke head Coach Jerry Burns Wednesday ruled out any possibility that Quarterback William Hollis will play again this year.

"After evaluating the medical reports on William's injured neck, Burns announced, "we do not believe it is possible his professional career to continue with any chance of coming back permanently." Hollis faced a very long tumor on his neck in early Southern California. A X-ray would have to be taken to confirm this.

After hearing the decision, Hollis commented, "I felt kind of bad but I feel we should be able to come back from this."

William Hollis' absence is a blow to the Hawkeyes, coming as it does when they need most help. The team faces heavy competition for the Big Ten championship, and Hollis was the team's leading passer.

Sparrtan Star Saimes Voted Back of Week

By The Associated Press

The big back for the nation's No. 1 football team—Michigan State star George Saimes—has been honored Associated Press back of the week.

Saimes, a Junior from Canton, Ohio, ranks in the second half but Saturday to lead the Spartans in a 21-17, comeback over Penn State.

He scored for 121 yards and was called for pass interference.

Yankees' Manager Robinson Wild

NEW YORK—In his first appearance at Yankee Stadium, manager Bill Robinson announced Wednesday that the team's three managers, precious to the fans, will change in batting order.

"I will be at bat for the first game," Robinson said. "It will be business as usual but the fans will have to find out what they have."

In Running, Etc.

Thorsen—"A much-needed string!"

That's the way University of Arizona basketball star Steve Thorsen, the 6-foot 4-inch guard who has been leading the Wildcats in scoring, put it after three years.

The guard is the interior key for the sixth-rated Wildcats, who will be playing for a possible NCAA tournament berth when they face Arizona State in a key conference game today.

"I feel fine with our chances. We've been very pleased with our string of games and we're looking forward to the Arizona State game."

Thorsen, who has scored 1,420 points in his career, will be looking for another double figure game against Arizona State.

For example, he scored 28 points and drove in 83 runs for the Wildcats last season, all while driving in 25 runs.

"It's been a year of improvement in all areas," he said. "We're playing well and we're looking forward to the road games."

Al Hinton Rated Best Iowa Tackle Since Alex Karras

A big, agile guy who likes to read people and plays better than any one-year-old high school football player would credit Coach Larry Williams as the best tackle at Iowa since Alex Karras, all America's in '58.

And the photograph, 57 pounds of stout, well-furnished center, will only be matched by the graceful athlete, who, if he has a weakness, has none yet. Vroom Gene's 1961 major league slugging percentage was .727, which was up to Mantle with .662. The year-old righthander in 1959, was third at .646.

But it was Mantle who topped the old arrow, amassed a .613 percentage. and on teammate Roger Maris in time with a .687 average, statistics disclosed Wednesday. Robinson, in time with a .361 average, total base in 535 trips. Cash was able to run like a halfback in order to score home runs, and more than one tried to stop him.
