China Debate Looms; Admit 4 New Members

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (AP)—The U.N. General Assembly formally admitted four new members Wednesday, as strong opposition developed from the Communist bloc in advance of a major vote on China.

Mohammad Alamin Khan, 60, former Pakistani diplomat who served as UN's chief delegate, was elected president. His 172 votes to 27 for Colombia's Carlos Salgado were supported by 49 non-aligned nations.

Five states opposing the admission of four new members—Burma, India, North Korea, Poland and Yemen—voted against Mr. Khan. They were opposed by the non-aligned group and the U.S.

The first vote was on former Prime Minister Lee Kuan Yew of Singapore, who was opposed by China and six other states. He received 104 votes to 57 against.

Secretary General Keating said that he had decided not to announce the results of the vote until all the countries had had a chance to speak. He also said that he had decided to delay the vote on the other four members until after the General Assembly's debate on China.

The vote on China was scheduled for today, but it has been delayed until the next week.

Mr. Khan said he would use his presidency to try to overcome differences between the 155 member nations of the UN.

The assembly will also vote later today on the admission to the UN of four more states:

- Indonesia, which was expelled by the Security Council in 1965 for its support of Indonesia in its dispute with Malaysia;
- Morocco, which was expelled by the Security Council in 1962 for its support of Portugal in the Sino-African conflict;
- Tunisia, which was expelled by the Security Council in 1962 for its support of Portugal in the Sino-African conflict; and
- Kenya, which was expelled by the Security Council in 1962 for its support of Portugal in the Sino-African conflict.

Mr. Khan, who is on leave from his post as Singapore's trading representative in New York, said he would use his presidency to try to overcome differences between the 155 member nations of the UN.

- Kenya, which was expelled by the Security Council in 1962 for its support of Portugal in the Sino-African conflict.

The non-aligned group, which includes 105 states, has already expressed support for Mr. Khan, while China has said it will vote against all four new members.
