Today's News Briefly
On the Local Scene

ASSURANCES AND promises are ways that I have come to expect in small communities. In the case of a recent zoning dispute, that was the case of the owner of the area who is attempting to build a new apartment complex. Although the owner has made assurances, the zoning board is not convinced of the need for the additional apartments.

A club was opened on Tuesday in Des Moines. The club is run by the local Kiwanis Club, which has been active in the community for many years. The club is open to all people who want to join and participate in the activities.

State News
THE IOWA LEGISLATURES began its session last week with the announcement of the resignation of the Governor. The Governor has announced his resignation due to health issues.

The Governor has been a leader in the state for many years and has been a strong advocate for the people of Iowa. He has worked hard to ensure that the state is moving in the right direction.

The Governor's resignation has been met with mixed reactions. Some people are sad to see him go, while others are happy that he is taking care of his health.

The Governor's resignation has also sparked a debate about the future of the state. Some people are calling for a new Governor to be appointed, while others are calling for a special election to be held.

In other news, the Iowa Legislature has approved a new budget that will provide funding for the state's schools and hospitals.

Worldwide Roundup
WORLDWIDE, the news is filled with stories of people who are making a positive difference. In many parts of the world, people are working hard to improve their communities and make the world a better place.

For example, in Africa, a group of people are working to provide clean water to communities that do not have access to it. They are using innovative technologies to bring clean water to people who need it.

In Asia, a group of people are working to provide education to children who do not have access to it. They are using local resources to build schools and provide educational materials.

In South America, a group of people are working to provide healthcare to communities that do not have access to it. They are using local resources to build clinics and provide medical supplies.

These are just a few examples of the positive changes that are happening around the world. As we look to the future, we must continue to work together to make the world a better place.

Housing search a thorough one

The University, as we noted in this column in last Wednesday's issue, is reviving the housing situation, especially at the moment, as it attracts new students.

This is not likely to prove easy by simply stating that more housing is being built. Facilities go up and are occupied, and new students are moving in, but the new buildings are not as numerous as people would like, and the situation is unlikely to improve until many more new buildings are built. The University has not yet made enough progress in this matter, however, to warrant any pessimistic predictions. It is likely that the University will continue to build more housing until the situation is resolved.

From the time he was a boy - The tale of young Lyndon, who always wanted the job

By ART MONROE

It was many years ago, more than 40 years, when I was a student at the University of Chicago, that I first met Lyndon B. Johnson.

As a graduate student in 1928, I was teaching a course in social psychology, and Lyndon was a student in the course. He was a young man then, just starting his career as a politician, and he was already showing the same qualities of leadership that he would later display in his role as President.

I remember him then as a very active participant in class discussions, always daring to ask questions and challenge my ideas. He was a very intelligent and thoughtful person, and I was impressed by his ability to express his views clearly and persuasively.

Lyndon had a strong sense of justice and fairness, and he was always willing to help his fellow students. He was a good friend to me, and I enjoyed working with him in the classroom.

Changes In Orient

Propose No For Choice

This proposal is to change the name of the University's student newspaper from The Daily Iowan to The Daily Lion. The proposal was introduced by a group of students who argued that the name of the newspaper did not accurately reflect the spirit and values of the University. They proposed that the new name, The Daily Lion, would better represent the University's commitment to excellence and leadership.

The proposal was debated in the Student Senate, and it was eventually approved by a vote of 21-0. The new name will be effective immediately, and The Daily Lion will begin publishing next week.
Changes Eyed in Orientation

Propose New Methods For Choosing Leaders

Prepared changes in fall orientation for the student body by the appointed committee Tuesday in the seniorships, Mr.倳
Wood said. Mr.倳
Connell and Mr.倳
Smith will head the committee. Their proposals, however, are still in the hands of the Faculty Com mittee. These include having incoming freshmen orientation groups headed by sophomore the faculty or students representing groups from these groups, a religious emphasis in the orientation program, and making orientation more necessary from the standpoint of the administration. Board.

Other items are to be discussed at the meeting Tuesday evening, but the final plans will not be announced until after the meeting.

UCLA Tops College Basketball Poll: Plays Iowa Next

BY BEN CLAN

Associated Press

The UCLA Bruins, with a firmer grip on first place in The Associated Press Poll, booked a long awaited trip to Wally's World. With 24 first place votes in the latest AP poll, the Bruins are in no doubt about their standing at the top of the basketball hierarchy.

Coach Ralph Miller, whose basketball team hopped fifth-ranked Indiana at Bloomington Monday, was quick to his high place in the AP's special regional panel votes.

"We know we're good enough to take a shot at the Boulter's title, and it seems we're going to have a shot at it," Coach Miller declared. "There are several days of real tough competition, but when we take that first step, we can see the beauty of it all. It's a good start to our campaign against Indiana, and we're going to take a shot at it.

"WE RAN our pattern well against the Iowa Corn, and our will not be quelled, even when defeated when we line up the Iowa corn."

Coach Miller noted that this year's team has improved on the previous year's team, and that the players and their heads are cleared and polished. He tells them to shoot at the only point, and in the best manner possible.

The Bruins, like most of Iowa City's teams, have good reasons to be more wary of their most opponents.

The Misses, last night's Iowa City High School game, had a gaudy total of 52 points from the bench. In 24 minutes, they had been shooting, with 24 points from the bench. In 24 minutes, they had been shooting.

"The AP's special regional panel votes are coming down to the Iowa City High School game. They're coming down to the Iowa City High School game."

The game was a close one, with both teams shooting from the field with equal accuracy. The Iowa City High School team had the advantage in rebounds, with 12 rebounds to the Bruin's 8.

The Bruins, however, had the upper hand in the final game, with 12 points to the Iowa City High School team's 10.
