

—Homecoming 'Dream' Has Many Phases—

Parade Tonight Begins Homecoming Whirl

By KATHY FERRY
Staff Writer

"Dreams To Be Caring For," the 1966 Homecoming theme, may produce many different thoughts in the minds of University students as Homecoming activities begin today.

To many students the dream could be the thought of no afternoon classes. The official ringing of the University bells at 12:30 will signal the end of Friday classes.

When the Homecoming parade begins at 7 tonight, many who have worked hours on Homecoming floats will "dream" that their group's float will win the sweepstakes award.

Grand Marshals for the parade, which starts at Iowa Avenue and Gilbert Street, are Roy Williams, president of the Iowa City Chamber of Commerce and Tom Hanson, student body president.

50,000 Expected

A crowd of 50,000 is expected to view the parade.

Among the dignitaries who will ride in the parade are Pres. Howard Bowen, William Hubbard, mayor of Iowa City; Richard Peterson, Alumni Association president; Carston Leikvold, city manager;

Sheila Bauer, 1965 Miss U of I; and the 1966 Dolphin Queen and her attendants.

Twenty-one competitive floats will vie for the sweepstakes award and prizes in three divisions, originality, beauty and humor. First and second place awards will be made in each of the three categories.

21 Floats In Competition

The floats in parade competition are (in order of their appearance on the parade route, title, student organization and sponsors):

"Wake Up And Win," Alpha Gamma Delta-Tau Kappa Epsilon, Iowa City Press Citizen and St. Clair-Johnson Clothiers; "Seeking For Victory," Delta Gamma-Phi Epsilon Pi, Iowa Board of Realtors; "We Dreamt We Killed The Wildcat," Pi Beta Phi-Sigma Alpha Epsilon, Proctor and Gamble; "We Dreamt We Caught A Wildcat," Beta Sigma Phi; "We Swallow Everything But De-Feet," Alpha Chi Omega-Sigma Chi, Hy-Vee Food Store.

"Flush the Wildcats," Chi Omega-Delta Upsilon, Younkers, Sears; "Interrupted Northwestern Passage," Kate Daum-Hillcrest, Northwestern Bell Telephone; "Wild Dreams Grow Wise as Sweet Childhood Flies," Gamma Phi Beta-Sigma Pi, McCorkic Paint, Gilpin Paint & Glass, Pittsburg Plate Glass, Stillwells.

5 Miss U of I Finalists

In addition to the competitive floats in the parade, there will be a float carrying the five finalists in the Miss U of I Pageant. This float is sponsored by the Pageant board.

Young Republicans, Young Democrats, and UNICEF will all have cars in the parade. Political candidates will ride in the YR and YD cars.

Parade music will be provided by the University Marching Band, the Scottish Highlanders and 14 Iowa High School Bands. These 14 bands are from Iowa City High School, English-Valley Community School, L and M Community School, Seymour Community, Lone Tree Community School, Clinton High School, East Buchanan Community School, Emerald Knights Drum and Bugle Corp from Cedar Rapids, Miles Community School, Durant Community School, Sigourney Independent School, Linn-Mar Community School, Deep River-Millersburg High School, and Mid-Prairie Community School.

Angel Flight and the Air Force drill teams will also participate.

3 Parade Judges

Parade judges will be Leo Swanson, 1965 Dad of the Year; Stanley Redeker, State Board of Regents president; and Wilbur Molson, member of the State Board of Regents.

As the parade ends, each of the five Miss U of I finalists will be "dreaming" that it will be her name that is announced as the 1966 Miss U of I. The coronation will be held on the east steps of the Old Capitol following the parade.

Following announcement of float winners, Peter Frantz, A3, Deerfield, will crown Miss U of I. A 15-20 minute pep rally will also be part of the ceremony.

Miss U of I, who will be presented Saturday at the stadium before the football game, will receive a dress, two blouses, a diamond pendant, bracelet, purse, shoes, three sweaters, a skirt, perfume, picture frame, waste basket, nylons, a Paul Revere bowl and her crown.

Open House will be held at the Union following the coronation.

The annual Dolphin Show will be presented in the Field House Pool at 8:30 p.m. The Dolphins also presented their show Thursday evening.

Homecoming activities will begin Saturday morning with coffee for alumni beginning at 9 a.m. This will continue until noon.

A state officials luncheon will be held at 11:30 a.m. with members of the Homecoming committee acting as hosts.

Football Win "Biggest Dream"

Victory for Iowa as they battle Northwestern in the Homecoming Football Game, scheduled to begin at 1:30 p.m. Saturday, will be one of the biggest "dreams" of most University students, alumni and friends.

Following the game, the monument, constructed by the senior engineering students, will be burned as has been the tradition at Iowa.

Saturday's dance from 9 p.m. to 1 a.m. in the Union, featuring Ralph Flanagan's band and the Fendermen and the Fenderettes, plus parties and other celebrations, will bring the "Dreams To Be Caring For" of Homecoming 1966 to a close.

Renewal Plan Net Cost To Be Near $16 Million

Land Sales Will Lessen Costs Of Development

By BRAD KIESEY
Staff Writer

"Net cost of the recommended urban renewal plan will be more than $16 million, Barry D. Lundberg, Iowa City's director of planning and urban renewal, told the Iowa City Council and the public Wednesday night.

Lundberg released the figure at a presentation meeting at City High School auditorium after members of the Department of Planning and Urban Renewal recommended a plan to the public and the council.

Lundberg said the gross cost of the project would be an estimated $20.53 million.

The city would receive about $4.25 million from the sale of land in the urban renewal area to private developers. The net cost then would be an estimated $16.33 million.

Under federal law, cities involved in an urban renewal project approved by the federal government can receive 75 per cent of the net cost of the project from federal funds. The remaining 25 per cent of the cost must be paid by the city.

Iowa City would get about $12,250,000 in federal money if the project were adopted as recommended. The city's quarter of the cost would amount to about $4,080,000.

Lundberg gave estimates of the costs of various categories in the plan. He said street improvements would cost about $1,470,000; public utilities would cost about $790,000; a culvert completely covering Ralston Creek in the project area, $350,000; malls, plaza and sidewalk canopies, $390,000; and a six-lane Court Street-Melrose Avenue bridge, $560,000.

Not all the cost of the Court-Melrose bridge can be included in the cost of urban renewal, Lundberg said. The urban renewal area would contain structural parts of the bridge which would account for only 57 per cent of the $2.4 million cost of the bridges. Only that part within the project boundaries may be included in the costs to be paid by the federal government.

Bridge Traffic

In addition, traffic studies show that only about 40 per cent of the traffic that would use the bridge would be going to and from the urban renewal area. Traffic passing through is not a factor in figuring the amount of federal money that can be used for the bridge.

Therefore, only 40 per cent of the 57 per cent of the cost of the bridge can be passed on to the federal government. The federal government may pick up about $660,000 of the $2.4 million cost of the project.

Total public improvements then, would amount to $3.56 million.

The city must assume payment for certain facilities contributing to the urban renewal project. Among these, Lundberg said, are a $2.7 million parking ramp, parking lots costing $800,000 and the remainder of the cost of the Court-Melrose bridge, $420,000.

However, these amounts may be included in the $4,082,500 total that the city must pay.

Inadvertent Help

The city may get some inadvertent help from the University. The city is allowed by the law to count whatever land purchases the University has made in the last seven years as a credit on that $4,082,500.

Lundberg estimated the amount of credit at about $1.5 million, leaving about $3.5 million to be paid in cash by the city.

The city may bond a major part of the $3.5 million on parking meter revenues, Lundberg said. The rest would have to be raised by special assessment, general obligation bonds or both.

Lundberg said the cost of acquiring property necessary to carry out the recommended program would be about $10 million.

He said administrative costs, including relocation officers and office staff personnel, would add an estimated $100,000 to the public improvements costs.

Lundberg Presents City Renewal Plan To U Of I Officials

By BRUCE MOST
Staff Writer

A two block "transition zone" was the center of discussion as the Iowa City Planning and Urban Renewal Department submitted its urban renewal program to University representatives for suggestions Thursday.

Barry D. Lundberg, director of planning and urban renewal for Iowa City, told representatives from the University Planning Committee, the Academic Board and the Faculty Council that the zone would be developed for joint University and city use. The two block area is bounded by Capitol, Clinton, Washington and Burlington streets.

Fredrick T. Aschman, planning consultant from Barton-Aschman Associates described the transition zone as a compromise between businesses wanting to expand the proposed downtown business core to Capitol Street and the University wanting to expand to Clinton Street.

The meshing of University and commercial facilities should be done as a single scheme Aschman said. He said the University and commercial developers should plan together and not have business on one side and the University on the other side of the zone.

Asked if the University had any guarantees to prevent businesses from acquiring all the land in the transition zone, Aschman said there was no written guarantee.

However, Aschman noted, the resolution for the transition zone stated that all land acquisitions should be in the interest of both the University and business. He said the Iowa City council, which must approve all land acquisitions, would rule accordingly.

Aschman said the University had a better "chance to get a chunk of it (the transition zone) since business would not likely expand much outside the downtown business core.

Lundberg said development of the transition zone would come approximately in the middle of the six-year urban renewal timetable.

In other business Lundberg said property scheduled for University use under the urban renewal program would be bought by the city and sold to the University at a "reasonable market price."

U.S. Approved To Aid Poverty, Schools, Slums

WASHINGTON — Congress approved legislation Thursday representing billion-dollar pillars of President Johnson's "Great Society" — massive aid to education, slum rehabilitation and a fight against poverty.

All went to the White House, not exactly as Johnson had proposed them, but almost.

The bills authorized $6.1 billion in federal aid to elementary and high schools during the next two years; permitted spending $1.26 billion to remake, physically and socially, slum areas in selected cities; and authorized $1.75 billion for antipov-erty programs.

Actual money to carry it all out will come in other bills and could be less. The House has approved only $1.56 billion for the poverty fight.

By the time this Congress adjourns — leaders say it will be by Saturday — it will have appropriated a record of some $264 billion to run the government and its programs. This includes $119 billion last year and an estimated $145 billion this year.

Iowa City Prepares To Burst At Seams

By DAVID POLLEN
Staff Writer

The crowds are something else.

They will begin to come early this afternoon, and by Saturday they will number about 50,000. They will wait in long lines in front of every restaurant in town, from the greasy hamburger joints to the Union State Room.

Every motel in the Iowa City area, including those in Cedar Rapids, will be getting calls from visitors who naively think they might find a vacancy. Very few will.

Pedestrians and cars will clog the streets and the highways leading into Iowa City. Alumni will be out reminiscing, sightseers will be out shopping and getting lost, and drinkers will be out drinking.

In short, when Homecoming weekend comes, Iowa City and its problems become about twice as large.

Homecoming crowds, however, are rarely much of a problem for either Iowa City or the University. They are used to them.

120 To Handle Crowd

University Security Chief Oscar Graham said at least 120 men would be on hand during the Homecoming parade tonight to control the crowds and regulate traffic along the route.

About 20 members of the Pershing Rifles will be added to the campus security force of 22 men tonight. About 20 city policemen and 70 ROTC members will also be on hand to help control the crowds and traffic.

Additional men on both the city and University forces will be used to patrol regular beats.

"No Parking" Preparation

Preparations will begin when city officials post the "No Parking" signs along the parade route. The no parking regulation will be in effect from 5:30 p.m. till after the parade along the parade route. Cars not removed from the route by the time the parade begins will be towed away.

"Getting the streets cleared," Graham said, "is our biggest problem during the weekend."

Early Saturday morning all is usually quiet.

The first to break the stillness are the peddlers of the yellow mums and workers who must feed the slowly waking mob.

The momentum builds slowly. Those who arrived the night before must get ready for the big game, and more keep coming into town as the morning wears on.

More "No Parking"

"No Parking" signs are placed on the main arteries leading toward the stadium, and patrol cars are stationed at major intersections. People living near the stadium tack signs on their elms, offering their lawns for parking — for a fee, of course; others set up their lemonade or popcorn stands.

From 10:30 a.m. till game time, Woolf Avenue is closed to through traffic. After the game, Woolf becomes westbound only up to Highway 6. Melrose Court becomes one-way south to Myrtle, and Myrtle becomes eastbound only to Riverside.

Melrose Avenue becomes one-way westbound from the stadium after the game to the west end of South Finkbine Golf Course, and Grand Avenue becomes eastbound only from the Field House to Riverside Drive.

After the game, it's the restaurants that feel the pressure of the crowds, until evening, when the taverns take over.

Students Appointed

Thursday night's Student Senate meeting started as an open one, but when the discussion of qualifications of specific individuals for appointments to the 11 faculty and student policies committees began, Student Body Pres. Tom Hanson, A4, Jefferson said, "this discussion should not go beyond this room," and moved that an executive council meeting be called. The motion passed and members of the press were asked to leave.

Under a resolution passed at the last Student Senate meeting, the Senate must approve by a two-thirds vote all appointments to committees, which were made by a screening committee and altered at Hanson's discretion.

Appointed to the University Council on Teaching were Larry Jones, G, Iowa City; Judy Lewis, A3, Des Moines; Lory Rice, G, London, England; and Carl Varner, A2, Centerville.

New student members on the Committee on Human Rights were Frederick Julander, L2, Farmington, N.M.; Donald Johnson, A3, Iowa City; Maureen Kirby, A2, Strawberry Point; and Robert Mendelson, G, Los Angeles, Calif.

Approved as new members of the Committee on Student Life were Jane Anton, A3, Waterloo; John Barrett, A4, Iowa City; Richard Davis, G, Iowa City; Carolyn Lukensmeyer, A4, Hampton; and Tom Stone, L2, Iowa City.

Appointed to the Building and Campus Planning Committee were Jane Anderson, A3, Des Moines; John Pelton, A3, Clinton; and Dick Rubin, A1, Chicago, Ill.

Approved as new members of the Housing Committee were Jay Eaton, B3, Waukon; Jay Hamilton, L2, Hampton; Janis Meiches, A3, Omaha, Neb.; and Frank Renner, A4, Bartonville, Ill.

New members of the Student Athletic Board were Robert Burns Mossman, L2, Vinton; Juliana Te Paske, A3, Sioux Center; and William Scott Power, A4, Newton.

Homecoming mid-terms

Homecoming is a real tradition on this campus. Every year there is the game, the dance, the badges — and the mid-terms.

Every year students are faced with mid-terms the week after Homecoming weekend. Most students have at least one or two, many three or four.

According to the University Calendar, the last day for dropping undergraduate courses for upperclassmen is Nov. 2, a week and a half after Homecoming. Presumably, most tests are scheduled the week after Homecoming to give students a chance to decide whether they want to drop courses by the drop date. It would probably be too soon for tests to be scheduled before Homecoming since students are not far enough into their courses yet. Perhaps a later drop date might permit tests during the second week after the Homecoming weekend.

At any rate, the student is torn between two drives — one to study for good grades, the other to have a good time. The trouble is, they usually do a poor job of both.

One of the tests scheduled for next week is Introduction to Psychology. In that course the student learns the concept of conflict: A subject is attracted by two motivating forces, but can choose only one. Until the conflict is resolved by choosing one of the alternatives, the subject is supposed to be emotionally distressed. Or the subject can reject both, described in the psychology text as "leaving the field."

Psychology student or not, many will learn that lesson well next week.

Drinking age

Hooryay for Maynard Schneider. He is the Johnson County sheriff who favors a 19-year-old drinking age for Iowa.

It seems rather paradoxical that a sheriff would come out for such a law, especially Schneider. He has not been known as the students' friend exactly, especially to students under 21.

Schneider thinks that students would not get out of line as much if they were permitted to drink in bars. He believes that most underage drinkers do their partying in out-of-the-way places, thus causing a traffic hazard when they drive back to the city.

There is another argument, although it has been used many times before in suggesting a lower voting age. If a person is considered responsible enough to give his life for his country, he should be allowed to drink. The military already allows those 18 years and older to drink beer in the confines of military posts.

It is quite difficult to set an arbitrary drinking age. Some who are only 18 or 19 can handle alcohol much better than many people over 21. Other states have 18-year-old beer drinking laws, and the most trouble they seem to have is with out-of-state 18-year-olds raising hell in those states.

One question though. If Iowa gets a 19-year-old beer law, who will be the first to ask for a 16-year-old limit?

Music rooms too crowded

To The Editor:

The population explosion is being felt in the arts. For years the ambitious musician has had at his disposal a large number of practice rooms equipped with piano, music stand and other tools-of-the-trade for the achievement of his musical goals.

Today at the University School of Music, mister musician is very lucky indeed to come up with a place for polishing his talent at any time of the day or night. There are just too many vocalists, pianists and instrumentalists all using the same practice facilities.

The music administration has no doubt heard the surface complaints from their perch-on-high, for now the closing of the doors to Eastlawn has been extended to 11:30 P.M. But honestly, gentlemen, would you be ready and eager to play or sing at that hour?

And of course we all know that practicing in our dorm room is taboo.

Why must the instrumentalists use the piano equipped rooms at Eastlawn? Is it possible there is no other place? If we're to believe in the old proverb "practice makes perfect," then from a musician's point of view perfection is in the far too distant future.

Concert is 'splendid'

By H. E. BRICKMAN
Staff Reviewer

The 1966-67 season premiere of the University Symphony Orchestra on Wednesday evening was splendid. The audience that filled the Union Main Lounge was eager to be pleased; the orchestra, under the direction of James Dixon, associate professor of music, fulfilled the highest expectations.

The program opened with Brahms' "Academic Festival Overture." A melange of themes, the overture is also a rich entirety. Although the bassoons wavered once, the orchestra played full and well. The transitional passages were particularly pleasing, revealing a real relationship between song and chant.

Beethoven's "Fantasy for Piano, Chorus, and Orchestra, Op. 80," provided an occasion for some special accomplishments. Under the touch of William Doppmann, associate professor of music, the piano became a temperamental personality, alternately playful and arrogant. The pauses between the orchestral and piano parts were as important and clear as the music itself.

The other instrumental variations were performed with the same elusive simplicity, if not the same mastery, as Doppmann's. The solo flute was seductive, the oboes playful, the clarinet-bassoon duet delightful and the string quartet sincere. The University Chorus, directed by Daniel Moe, associate professor of music, sang with dignity and force.

It has been 53 years since Stravinsky's "The Rite of Spring" was premiered and damned in Paris. The concert notes claimed that "the Rite" has lost its sensational quality (now that it) has become a 'classic.'

They are wrong. Classic that it is, the composition has retained the sensational sensuality that marked its scandalous beginning.

What a highway, thinks the 1941 grad as he noses his car along Interstate 80. It sure beats old Highway 6. But, then, there're a lot of things that get beat in 25 years — even me.

Charles Gosome, a little little guy with a trim little wife and three not so little children, is returning to the campus for the first time in 25 years.

He's not sure why he decided to attend this 1966 Homecoming; maybe it's because he's getting close to 50 years old and memories are important. Then, too, his wife, whom he affectionately calls Herky (her name's really Henrietta) has been pestering him for 20 years to take her to his Alma Mater.

Oh, well, he thinks, it really doesn't make much difference why I'm here. I'm just here. The car veers left and Charlie's on Dodge Street.

"This is it, Herky," he says, shifting his eyes from the road for a moment to smile at his wife. "Iowa City."

"Oh, it's so quaint," she responds, trying to keep the kleenex and maps and other road souvenirs from spilling out of the glove compartment as the car bounces along the picturesque street.

"It's really quaint."

"Yeah, it's marvelous how this city goes to any length to preserve the quaintness of its streets. I guess the city fathers are all for saving historical sites, huh?"

"Yes," responds Herky, "they certainly must be."

"Yeah, but Herky, I read somewhere that Iowa City's planning to get involved with urban renewal — you know, that federal program that gets you something for nothing."

"Yes, I read that too. It's too bad really as it kind of spoils it for the old grads, doesn't it Charlie?"

"Oh, I don't know, Herky. It's been 25 years since I've been in this town and from the looks of things nothing's changed. It reminds me of a poem I read once about an old urn that lasted and lasted and lasted. I guess the poet, Keats was his name, I think, had something like Iowa City in mind when he put a crack across its surface. Funny, how I thought of that, isn't it?"

"Not so funny, Charlie. After all a city's not an urn, and although you might want to keep an old cracked vase, you certainly wouldn't want to hang on to a cracked street."

"Yeah, you know that's true, Herky. We sure were lucky in deciding to come to Homecoming this year. Heck, next year or the year after, I wouldn't have recognized the old place."

Peasants' world is small, simple

This is the third in a series of articles based on the observations of Peter M. Sturtevant Jr., G, Buffalo, N.Y., who spent the summer in Viet Nam.

Sturtevant worked in Viet Nam on a special assignment with the Agency for International Development. Specifically, he advised the Vietnamese government on how to better implement a program called "open arms." It was designed to lure the Viet Cong away from their leaders and reorient them to peaceful civilian life. — Ed.

"East is East and West is West, and never the twain shall meet." So it seems when we compare American values to those of the Vietnamese peasant.

The peasant's world is small, extending little beyond the cluster of hamlets forming his village. If his village has a marketplace, he has little reason to travel far.

Rarely will he visit the district capital (the equivalent of our county seat), still more rarely the provincial capital (state capital). Most peasants in the outlying areas have never been to Saigon.

The peasant has shown little allegiance to the district, the provincial or the national government. He may have a token allegiance toward the area in which he lives, but this is manifested simply as an antagonism toward outsiders.

The peasant trusts few people — his family and perhaps a few friends and neighbors. He is suspicious of strangers, and this includes Americans. From long experience he distrusts government officials.

He has little national consciousness. Nationalism is a force just beginning to manifest itself in Viet Nam. He is, in short, largely apolitical, principally because the national government has seldom shown concern for his welfare.

The peasant's loyalties go first to his family, then to his village and to a lesser extent to his region and his race.

Patriotism as we know it is virtually nonexistent. Yet, it is this allegiance for which both the Viet Cong and the Vietnamese government are now asking.

No Main Religion

There is no accurate religious census, although the bulk of the population, about 80 per cent, is claimed by Buddhism.

A typical peasant may at various times resort to Buddhist, Taoist, Confucian or animist rites and practices. He considers these mutually complementary, not conflicting.

Truth is relative to the peasant.

His answer to a direct question, especially when asked by an official, will satisfy or please the inquirer. The questioner is expected to pose questions accordingly.

Thus, the "truth" must be encircled with a camouflage of irrelevant questions that will avoid loss of face if the truth is distasteful.

Face is important to the Vietnamese, as to all Asians. Where face is lost there can be no harmony, and harmony is more important than abstract principles of justice.

The peasant is not a moralist. Seldom will he take an unyielding stand on principle. He admires flexibility and pragmatism.

Admires Dishonesty

The peasant prefers honest officials, but he is grateful if their graft is not too great. He admires clever dishonesty and views strict honesty as foolish.

Yet, while accepting graft in public office, the peasant is honest in personal relations with persons he knows well. Until recently the peasant's desire to improve his lot in life was neither high nor complex. He desired to be left alone, to till his fields, to live his traditional life and venerate his ancestors.

Now he seems to be less satisfied with the status quo. Government and Viet Cong propaganda have caused him to expect more. He wants land, a better home, more material comforts, education for his children and social and legal justice.

The Viet Cong have devoted much energy to wooing peasants, who provide the bulk of their fighting power and economic support. The peasants have little understanding of Communism, and likewise democracy.

The average peasant rarely sees newspapers or magazines. Most cannot read. The best means of reaching the peasant is radio, but there are few.

Informal News Media

The peasant expects to receive most information through informal mouth-to-mouth channels. Especially important for opinion-making are the teachers, local officials and generally anyone with an educational background.

The peasant is most responsive to communications touching upon his personal needs or to the needs of his family.

He is not susceptible to abstract appeals to democracy, patriotism, Communism, nationalism, about which he knows little or does not feel personally.

Appeals must be immediate, tangible and easily understood. Above all, they must be correct and honest if credibility is to be maintained.

Smoking circle

To The Editor:

A champion is arisen! A hero of the aristoi who doth not fear to impeal in phrases elegant and soul-searing, his righteous indignation at the befuddled condition of Ye University classrooms. Woe unto ye who in majoritarian pride deny those Holy scriptures of breath pure and air rarefied, that which my heart doth jump at, for the joy of righteousness contained therein. Nay weed, nay foul air, merely the wholesome piety and consideration for the Chosen not accursed by the phallic strumpe of cancer.

Holy are those whose righteousness denies the comfort of the evil many! Praised be the few who in selfish piety assert the primacy of their prejudice in the face of mass and crass criticism! Glory to those who fail to suggest as-trays in classrooms, but call for the purgation of evil, the which is embodied in that cancer causing weed I do not extinguish as I post this missive of exhortation.

Continue ye non-smokers in the pride of your wrath. Do you not concede the consideration to others, the which you justly demand for yourself.

Two local Iowa City high school teams will be in action tonight in the Iowa City area, following the Iowa Homecoming Parade.

In one game, Iowa City Regina will play host to Cedar Rapids LaSalle at the Regina athletic field. Game time is 8:20 p.m.

Regina is 3-2-1 going into the game, while LaSalle's record is 3-3.

MIAMI PLAYER HURT

MIAMI, Fla. (AP) — The Miami Dolphins said Thursday that flanker John Roderick will undergo surgery for a back injury and will be out the rest of the season. Roderick reinjured a floating disc in his back in the Denver game.

City High Beats Clinton, 20-6

Iowa City's Little Hawks, held without a first down until the final 28 seconds of the first half, roared back to score three touchdowns in the second half Thursday night and upend Mississippi Valley Conference rival Clinton 20-6.

Steve Piro and Terry Davis led a Little Hawk attack that netted 178 yards in the second half after being held to only 56 yards in the first half. Piro scored twice, on runs of three and one yards, while Davis set up one touchdown with a 16 yard run to the two and scored another from one yard out.

Clinton's lone touchdown came on an eight yard run by Clinton's Steve Eberle in the first half.

VETS RELEASED

BOSTON (AP) — Veterans Eddie Kasko and Lennie Green were released by the Boston Red Sox Thursday.

Faison To Miami Dolphins, Raps Control By Machine

MIAMI, Fla. (AP) — Earl Faison joined the Miami Dolphins Thursday and said he would have departed the San Diego Chargers sooner except for a pro football "machine" that controls player movements.

After playing out his one-year option with the Chargers, the 6-foot-5, 265-pound defensive end said he was approached by other clubs at the end of last season.

"But the machine went to work to keep me from going," Faison said. "The politicians left me just one choice — with San Diego. So I went back."

Faison declined to go into detail on the "machine" or on his troubles with Sid Gillman, the Charger coach, who dropped him last week with a remark that Faison would be "better off with some other ball club."

"It was a matter of him being fed up with me," Faison said. "I had been quarreling with them for a year or so over money. He told me I was being waived and I didn't argue with the man."

"I don't want to carry on a feud with Gillman. I'm not the violent type except on the football field."

After two weeks on the injured roster with muscle spasms in his back, Faison was reactivated for last Sunday's game with Buffalo. He played almost all the way in the 17-17 tie.

Two days after the game, he was placed on waivers and was snapped up immediately by the Dolphins, a talent-hunting new member of the American Football League.

The Houston Oilers approached Faison and Ernie Ladd with a proposition after both played out their San Diego options, but the deal was cancelled by the league when Gillman accused the Oilers of tampering with the two players.

DODGERS IN TOKYO

TOKYO (AP) — The Los Angeles Dodgers, National League pennant winners, arrived here Thursday on their first visit to the Orient in 10 years. They start an 18-game series against Japanese baseball teams Saturday.

McKinnie, Gibbs To Captain Hawks Against Wildcats

Fullback Silas McKinnie and defensive back Dick Gibbs were chosen captains Thursday as the Iowa football team ran through a 40-minute workout in sweat clothes to make final preparations for Saturday's homecoming game with Northwestern.

McKinnie, a 6-1, 198-pound junior from Inkster, Mich., is the Hawks' leading ground gainer this year with 216 yards in 68 carries for a 3.1 average. He ranks sixth among Big 10 runners with 157 yards on 46 carries in three games. McKinnie will captain the offense.

Gibbs, a 6-0, 186-pound senior from Chariton, will be defensive captain. Gibbs, the key man in Iowa's defensive backfield, has made 28 solo tackles and 14 assists this season to rank him third in that department behind linebackers Dave Moreland and Dan Hilsabeck.

In the brief workout, Coach Ray Nagel once again emphasized the pass attack — an area that has been the focus of attention this week in practice.

"The passing has shown improvement this week and the spirit has been high," Nagel said. "We'll be ready for Northwestern."

The only change in the starting lineup this week, according to Nagel, will be at tight end,

DICK GIBBS
Defensive Captain

SILAS MCKINNIE
Offensive Captain

where Paul Usinowicz has taken over for the injured Larry McDowell. Usinowicz, who started at tackle against Minnesota, will be replaced at that position by Bill Smith. Nagel also said safety Bill McCutchen was still hampered by a sprained wrist and might see only limited action in Saturday's game. Sophomore Steve Wilson will replace him if he is unable to play.

Three other Hawkeyes who just recently gained starting positions will start again Saturday, according to Nagel. The coach said he planned to start Mike Lavery a 6-3, 247-pound junior at tackle again in place of Roger Lamon and would go with sophomore A Bream at the split end position even though junior Gary Larsen has recovered from a double dislocated thumb injury that kept him out two weeks. Nagel also said senior Dick Thiele would start ahead of sophomore Barry Crees at wingback.

NFL-AFL Given Go Ahead On Pro League Merger Plan

WASHINGTON (AP) — The House Thursday granted the National and American football leagues the antitrust immunity they wanted to go ahead with their merger into one league.

In approving the merger, the House turned down a final protest by Rep. Emanuel Celler, (D-N.Y.), chairman of the Judiciary Committee, who wanted to probe its possible repercussions in extensive hearings.

Final Senate approval is needed to send the measure to the White House, but that will just be a formality. The Senate has already passed the legislation twice unanimously and overcame Celler's opposition by tacking it on to an anti-inflation bill requested by President Johnson.

As outlined by the leagues last June, the merger plan calls for expansion of the present 24-team operation into a 26-team league by 1968, with possibly two more franchises to be awarded before the merger is actually completed in 1970.

There would be two immediate developments, however. The cut-throat competition for the top college players would be ended, so the combined leagues could operate a common draft of talent this winter. And on Jan. 7, the champions of the two leagues would meet in a playoff game, probably in either Southern California or Florida.

Celler said it was the war between the leagues to sign the outstanding college players that led to the merger. Bonuses as high as $750,000 were paid to a single player, he said.

"They are poor labor negotiators and are asking Congress to rescue them from their own ineptitude and folly," said Celler. Celler also criticized the Senate, first for rushing the bill through without hearings or debate, and then for adding it to an important tax measure in order to get around the House hearings.

"Why the haste?" he asked. "There was no audible answer but it was believed among House members that the bill was hurried along to help Rep. Hale Boggs (D-La.) who is in a tough re-election fight in New Orleans. New Orleans is bidding for one of the franchises to be granted under the expansion of the combined league."

During three appearances before Celler's antitrust subcommittee, Commissioner Pete Rozelle of the National Football League said the antitrust exemption would extend only to the mechanics of putting the two leagues together.

He repeatedly assured Celler that the bill would not extend to the combined league any greater antitrust immunity than the National and American football leagues now have as single leagues.

Evye Knew How To Fire Teams Up

By S.B. ELLIOT
Staff Writer

The train stopped in Toledo, Ohio. Michigan Coach Fritz Crisler stood on the platform with football captain Forest Evashevski. Crisler had a worried look on his face.

Crisler told Evashevski that the Wolverines were too sure of themselves, that "they were going to get killed" in the upcoming game with Ohio State unless they changed their attitudes. Evashevski told his coach not to worry. He had a plan, he said.

Hours later, and moments before the squad marched on to the field, Evashevski spoke to his teammates. He reminded them that this was to be their last game together. The reminder was enough. They beat the Buckeyes 40-0.

Perhaps this is what made Forest Evashevski the successful coach he became, a characteristic flare for the dramatic, and an unerring ability to pick the right psychological moment to spur his teams to victory.

Won Scholarship Medal

In that final year at Michigan, Evashevski won a scholarship medal as the best student-athlete. He lettered in baseball as well as football; he was senior class president and a member of the honor society.

He graduated with a double major in sociology and psychology, and was considering a career in labor law. But Evashevski was a coach.

This was 1940, and Evashevski decided to take a coaching job at Hamilton College while waiting for the draft notice. Then, after four years in the Navy, he began a career that eventually led him to the University of Pittsburgh, to Michigan, to Washington State and then to Iowa in 1952.

He had been successful in those early coaching years. His Washington State team, for example, was "two games from the Rose Bowl" in his last year there.

But it looked as if his decision to come to Iowa might reverse that winning trend, for Iowa had finished the 1951 season with a 3-5 record.

Brought Victory

The trend wasn't reversed. Evashevski brought victory with him. In the next nine years, he skipped two teams to the Rose Bowl and guided another to a championship. He posted 83 victories, 52 losses and 4 ties, and was hailed as "coach of the year" at the end of four different seasons.

How did he do it?
"I don't think I taught blocking or tackling any better than other coaches," he said. "Maybe I gambled more, and I was able to motivate my men. Very seldom did I have a team that was flat going into a ball game."

Something Different
Coming up with something a little different was one way Evashevski kept his team from "going flat." Take that Ohio State game in his first season at Iowa.

On the Wednesday before the game, Evashevski gave the team a new offense. He replaced a multiple offense attack with an unbalanced line version of the split T. Ohio State didn't know what to do against it; they lost 50-0.

"Of all the games I remember, that one stands out," he said. "It was symbolic of what could be done by an undermanned group of guys who were willing to give it everything to win."

Let Writers Coach

No one ever knew what to expect from Evashevski. At one Iowa pre-season game, he traded places with the sportswriters and let them do the coaching while he did the writing.

Early in his first year, he marched on to the football field to protest an official's decision. He wanted to arouse the team spirit, he said. Antics were sometimes the answer.

The first few years were building years, and the teams grew stronger with each season. Before coming to Iowa, Evashevski developed football contacts throughout the country, and so he was able to recruit from coast to coast.

Had Numbers On His Side
"Back then," he said, "if I could recruit 45 men and have jobs waiting for them, I could bring them here. I had numbers on my side, numbers I could build from."

"It's different today. We give only 30 football scholarships a year."

The Hawkeyes heydays began in 1956. During practice that spring, Evashevski introduced another new formation, the wing T balanced — line attack.

He got the idea, he said, from Dave Nelson, a friend who coached at the University of Delaware. Evashevski called the new formation "three dimensional." It was essentially a T-formation with single-wing blocking. It combined power, deception, and the element of surprise. With it he took his '56 Hawkeyes to the Rose Bowl.

Explosive Formation

The new formation was explosive. Indiana, Oregon State, Wisconsin, and the University of Hawaii fell before any team developed an effective defense against it. Then, at mid-season Michigan delivered a 17-14 defeat to the Hawks, the only blot on the season's record.

In the next game with Minnesota, Evashevski found a way to fire up his team. He created an incident at the gates of the Minnesota stadium.

On game day, the team arrived without tickets and the gatekeeper refused to allow them entrance. When Evashevski arrived, he immediately sized up the situation and sided with the team. He had forgotten to issue the tickets, he admitted, but if the gatekeeper refused to let his boys in, there wasn't going to be a game.

The men were finally allowed to enter, but by that time, the team was in a rage. They won 7-0.

Won Rose Bowl

The following week, Iowa slaughtered Notre Dame 40-0, received the Rose Bowl bid and went on to defeat Oregon State 35-19.

That was just one of the victories. The Hawks did it again in 1958, and in 1960 they shared the Big 10 title with Minnesota. The Gophers, however, drew the Rose Bowl assignment.

That was Evashevski's last year as Iowa's head coach. In 1960 he became athletic director.

In the few years just before Evashevski took the athletic directorship, there had been rumors of a feud between him and Paul Brechler, then the Iowa athletic director. It was hinted that Evashevski might look for a coaching job on another campus. There were even rumors that the coach might run for Iowa governor.

FOREST EVASHEVSKI
Iowa Coach 1952-1960

No Political Ambitions

He denied that rumor: "I've never had any political ambitions," he said. "I have always felt that people should take an active interest in government, but being interested is a far cry from running for office."

Brechler left Iowa in 1960 to become commissioner of the Skyline Conference, and the job of director was then offered to Evashevski.

As athletic director, Evashevski administers an operation with expenditures exceeding $1 million a year. He sets all policies governing the conduct of intramural sports and supervises the development of athletic facilities.

"Every dime we can transfer," he said, "goes to enlarge our facilities in the way of student recreation."

Kids Have Become Names
Evashevski must miss football. "As athletic director," he said, "kids have become names and faces rather than people. I hadn't counted on that."

Will he go back to the game? Evye says not. "I have every intention of staying here. What I want to do is bring Iowa athletics to the top of the Big 10."

But if anything, Evashevski is unpredictable. He has proven that much in his years as coach, and if the day should come when he thinks he has carried Iowa to the top, what then? When you meet this man, you have the feeling that the Evashevski story is not yet finished.

N. Dakota State Is Small College Grid Poll Leader

BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

The winner of Saturday's big game between North Dakota State and North Dakota is likely to finish on top in The Associated Press' final small-college football poll. The loser's chance won't be worth a plugged nickel.

The meeting at Grand Forks, N.D., matches the two top teams in the latest poll. The victor also will take possession of the Nickel Trophy, an 86-pound aluminum replica of the 1937 nickel which has a buffalo on one side and an Indian head on the other.

The Bison of North Dakota State, winner of 22 straight, collected eight first-place votes and 141 points in the balloting by a national panel of 15 sports writers and broadcasters based on games through last Saturday.

The North Dakota Sioux held second place, accumulating 114 points on a basis of 10 for a first place vote, 9 for second etc.

North Dakota State beat Augustana, S.D., 28-0 last weekend for its sixth victory of the season. North Dakota walloped South Dakota State 43-0 for a 5-0 mark.

The Top Ten, with first place votes in parentheses, season records through games of Saturday Oct. 15 and total points on a 10-9-8-7-6-5-4-3-2-1 basis:

1. North Dakota St. (8)	6-0	141
2. North Dakota (2)	5-0	114
3. San Diego St. (2)	5-0	101
4. Chattanooga (4)	5-0	97
5. Sul Ross St. (1)	4-0	86
6. Montana St. (3-1)	4-1	46
7. Weber St. (3-1)	4-1	42

MEXICO CITY (AP) — Mrs. Ann Quast Welts, a Mount Vernon, Wash., housewife, playing with a borrowed driver and a museum putter, fired a one-under-par 71 to send the United States into a one-stroke lead over Italy in the first round of Women's World Amateur Golf Championship Thursday.

Mrs. Welts' score bracketed with that of Mrs. Theodore Boddie, the former Barbara Fay White, of Shreveport, La., who shot a 74, gave the Americans a team total of 145.

Italy followed at 146 with defending champion France third at 147, followed by Canada and Belgium, tied at 150.

Teams of three players each from 19 nations are competing over the 6,260-yard, par-72 Mexico City Country Club course. The best two scores of each team are taken daily for the official team tally.

Mrs. Welts, three-time U.S. national amateur champion, had a magical putting touch, using only 28 strokes on the damp, sluggish greens.

She used a putter, which previously she had given to the United States Golf Museum but asked back just before she came to Mexico.

And the engine go slower.

We've added a full 3 m.p.h. to the top speed of the Volkswagen.
If that doesn't sound like a lot to you, it's because it isn't. And wasn't meant to be. We put most of the power increase (from 50 horsepower to 53) into the lower gears. So you could climb hills easier. And accelerate quicker. But we didn't do all this at the expense of the engine. In fact, we made the engine turn even slower. So it would last even longer.

You'll be very happy to know this speedy new Volkswagen has dual brakes as standard equipment. If the front brakes should ever fail, the rear brakes will stop you. And vice versa.
We even put in some engine changes you can see, like retracting seat belts, recessed inside door handles, and backup lights. They're standard, too.

And so are the letters VOLKSWAGEN on the engine lid.
So you'll recognize the new bug when it passes you. With its new, slower engine.

Manager Says Cepeda Was 'Over Baseballed'

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Rosy Ryan, manager of the former Tacoma, Wash., Giants Pacific Coast League baseball club, was quoted Thursday as describing St. Louis first baseman Orlando Cepeda as having been "over baseballed."

Tim Cohane, former sports editor of Look Magazine, testifying in Cepeda's $1 million libel suit against the magazine, said that Ryan explained to him that "physical weariness can affect a batter's form, especially hitting balls outside of the plate."

Cohane quoted Ryan as saying Cepeda had not become the player he should be and that he added, "Of course, you know what Orlando's trouble is."

"We didn't go into that," Cohane said, "because it wasn't necessary. We all knew that Cepeda had a low boiling point."

Cepeda was traded last season by the Giants to the St. Louis Cardinals for left-handed pitcher Ray Sadecki.

THE 1966 HOMECOMING MONUMENT is dedicated to the rebuilding task faced by the Iowa Hawks in order to regain Big 10 power. Titled "Caution: Reconstruction," the monument consists of an 8-foot Herky trying to lift a 30-foot block "I," as Herkette places blocks representing defeated foes under the leaning power symbol. The Associated Students of Engineering, who built the traditional monument, hope to burn it after the Northwestern game Saturday — an act denoting victory on the gridiron. —Photo by Dave Luck

Project AID To Sell Balloons At Iowa-Ohio Football Game

Project AID has been granted permission to sell balloons on the city streets for the Nov. 12 Dad's Day Iowa-Ohio State football game, according to Lee Dicker, A4, Iowa City, Project AID commissioner.

The project, the proceeds of which would go for scholarship aid, had been planned for the Iowa-Wisconsin game Oct. 1, but it was not carried out because of a misunderstanding with the Board of Control of Athletics.

Dicker wrote the Board asking permission to carry out the project at the Iowa-Wisconsin game, but he received no answer and canceled the program.

Dicker talked with Athletic Director Forest Evashevski and learned that Evashevski had written a letter granting Project AID permission to carry out the project, but the letter was lost in the University mails.

Evashevski said the project could be carried out at the Dad's Day game as long as the balloons were sold on public streets. The University Space Assignment Office and Iowa City have given Project AID permission to do this without peddlers' licenses.

The balloons are yellow with a black "I" and will be inflated with helium. According to Dicker, the balloons will be let loose en masse when Iowa scores its first touchdown or at the beginning of the second half.

"The only major problem now faced," Dicker said, "is Iowa's inability to score. Our scholarship project would be greatly enhanced if Iowa can score in the next few games."

Project AID has selected about 100 workers for its organization. The balloon project, to be directed by Vice Commissioner Lawrence Lazarus, Projects Chairman Lawrence Fabian, and Dicker, will be Project AID's first major fund-raising event.

53-Year Tradition Has Colorful Past, Corny Beginning

By GAIL LONGANECKER Staff Writer

At one time it was considered corny. And it was, full of corn, that is. But the Iowa Corn Monument has evolved into a tradition nearly as old as Iowa Homecoming.

Today, 53 years since the idea originated, building a Homecoming monument has become an integral part of the annual fall festivities.

The first monument was built on Clinton Street adjacent to the Pentacrest in 1913 by members of the hydraulic engineering class. It was a 20-foot-tall obelisk (a four-sided pillar), and it was constructed of about 3,000 ears of red, yellow and white corn.

The idea for starting the Iowa Corn Monument was originated by Floyd Nagler, a former professor in the Hydraulics Department, as the engineers' share in Homecoming activities. Corn was used as a tribute to Iowa, the Corn State.

Engineering Project

After 1919 the entire engineering student body participated in building the monument, and it became an annual engineering project.

Before 1934, three engineering groups built separate monuments. Civil engineers built arched, sand bridges; electrical engineers built huge electrical signs; and chemical engineers erected lighted water fountains.

The members of Associated Students of Engineering made the monument a group project after 1934.

Through the years, a wide variety of materials and monument shapes have been used to carry out the Homecoming theme.

A few times the monument was put on a wheel base and drawn in the Homecoming parade.

Though the monument has not been built every year, due to a shortage of materials and funds in a few years, the tradition was too strong to die.

This year the monument is located on the Pentacrest west lawn. The theme is "Caution: Reconstruction."

"This is a rebuilding year for Iowa," Robert Parizek, E4, Iowa City, said in explaining this year's theme.

"Even though our football team has been down for the past two years, we've got a new coach and we're rebuilding our team and our spirit for the future," Parizek said.

The 1966 monument is a 30-foot, block "I," tilted at an angle and supported by two large wood blocks. One block, painted red and blue, stands for the game won against Arizona. The other, painted lavender, stands for Northwestern.

An 8-foot Herky is trying to lift one corner of the "I" so that it once again stands straight.

"The monument symbolizes that Iowa is climbing into action again and the other Big 10 teams had better watch out for us," Parizek said.

Engineering students are guarding the monument until Saturday morning. A student tried to set the 1962 monument on fire with a flaming arrow before the game.

If Iowa wins the Homecoming football game, it is tradition that the monument be burned. If not, workmen dismantle the monument.

Burned Anyway

Parizek said that in past years the monument had been burned regardless of how the game turned out. He said it was too hard to tear it down.

The tallest monument the engineers built was a 48-foot-high structure in 1952. The most corn, about 60 bushels, was used in the 1922 monument.

Probably the most colorful monument ever erected was built in 1926. A huge electrical sign showed a skyrocket exploding in mid-air. At each explosion lights blazed "Homecoming, Iowa, 1926" and illuminated a silhouetted football player. A horn blew as the skyrocket ascended, and when it burst, a gong rang.

In 1945 the Homecoming monument lacked the magnificence of some of its predecessors. Because of the war there was a shortage of materials, and the monument stood only about 15-feet tall. A large three dimensional "I" rested atop a stalk of corn.

The war ended, the men returned, and the Homecoming monument once again was erected in a manner sufficient to rival the extravagant monuments of the past.

High School's Phase 2 Plan Receives OK

Iowa City School Board Thursday voted to accept proposed plans and specifications of Phase 2 of the new west side high school.

Phase 2 of the new structure will include music and physical education facilities in addition to a connecting corridor to the main building.

Plans and specifications for the second phase will be available to prospective construction bidders by the middle of next week, according to James Bentley, project architect.

The board set 3 p.m. Nov. 15 for a public hearing to open the contract bids. The hearing will be held in the City High School Auditorium.

Construction of the new school is proceeding slightly ahead of schedule, Bentley told the board. A tentative completion date is June 1, 1968.

In other business, board secretary-business manager Robert Davis requested authority to confer with owners of a prospective site for the proposed southeast elementary attendance center. Permission was granted by the board.

Anatomy Of A Parade Float; Builders Relate Fun, Woes

By JAN ROBERTS
Staff Writer

There you are, standing on Clinton Street tonight, waiting for the Homecoming parade to start.

Finally it starts, and you watch the procession of queens, bands and floats as they pass.

The floats, sponsored by housing units, and other organizations around campus, glide by leaving multi-colored impressions of Herky, football players and other symbols of University life.

Suddenly a gust of wind lifts a loose section of the paper covering the float, revealing a chicken wire foundation. As you look at this foundation, you begin to wonder, "Just how was this float built?"

The floats, of course, are built by many persons with varying talents. This year the Sigma Pi fraternity and the Gamma Phi Beta sorority teamed up to build a float entitled, "Wild Dreams Grow Wise as Sweet Childhood Flies."

The float was started in the spring, Sherrie Linton, A3, Deerfield, Ill., chairman of the Gamma Phi Beta float committee, said.

She said the theme for the float was picked soon after the University announced the Homecoming theme, "Dreams to be Daring For." The float was also designed at this time.

Sherrie said the Gamma Phi Beta's and the Sigma Pi's went over several sketches of proposed floats before they found one they liked. And even that had to be modified, she said.

Float builders have to have a place to build their float in, so the two organizations lined up the Iowa City Lumber Co. before school let out for the summer.

Two weeks before the Homecoming parade the Sigma Pi's and the Gamma Phi Beta's started to build the float. Since the lumber yard was not available until Homecoming week, they built the smaller forms at the Sigma Pi house.

These forms, Sherrie said, had a wooden foundation and were covered with chicken wire. Some of the forms were stuffed with napkins and others were covered with papier-mache. The forms were then colored with spray paint.

On Monday the main part of the float was built at the lumber yard. The boys did most of the heavy work, Sherrie said. She said that for the Sigma Pi - Gamma Phi Beta float two hayracks were used.

The Sigma Pi's built a wooden frame on the racks and then covered the frame with chicken wire. The rest of the builders filled in the chicken wire with paper napkins and paper grass. And after about 60 hours of work by the two organizations, the float was finished.

The float will be pulled by a convertible in the parade tonight.

And what happens to the float after the parade is over? "We burn it," Sherrie said, "in a victory bonfire."

Russia Launches Display Satellites For Red Nations

MOSCOW (U) — The Soviet Union launched two earth satellites Thursday in a show for leaders of eight Communist countries linked to the Kremlin in a space research agreement.

The first to blast off from Baikonur, the secret Soviet space center on the edge of the central Asian steppes, was Cosmos 130. It was announced as part of a space research series, the first of which was orbited March 16, 1962.

Several hours later the orbiting of a Molniya satellite was announced. It was the fourth in a series of satellites that soared to almost 25,000 miles above the Northern Hemisphere to relay television and radio signals.

Nagel Family Walks Softly When Coach Is Working

By MARGARET FONES
Staff Writer

"On those mornings we don't get upset. We always hang very tightly to the radio. We don't burden him with questions — that would be trite."

A perky, attractive housewife tells a reporter how she deals with the trying aspects of her husband's work. She might be the wife of an astronaut or a sky diver, but a look around the house gives you a clue to who she really is.

In the wood-paneled den there are law books and several newspapers all folded so that the sports page is visible. The basement recreation room is newly decorated and trimmed with displays of gleaming trophies for tennis and other sports. The house is very large, big enough to hold a family of seven or eight.

The charming hostess of the house proudly shows you what she and her family have accomplished since they moved here in August. A few rooms have been redecorated, but mostly the house now seems to be the home of the family that lives there, except for the living room, where the furniture is sparse.

The upholsterer promised to have it back by Homecoming," laughs Mrs. Ray Nagel, wife of the head football coach. "But I told him that wasn't necessary; people like to be informal."

Mother Of 5

As she shows you around the tastefully decorated house, you find it hard to believe that she is the mother of five children, Nancy, 15; Bruce, 14; Tom, 11; Ray, 9; and Scott, 6.

Mrs. Nagel is exuberant it self. She seems to take an interest in everything, and her hobbies prove this to be so.

A lover of antiques, Mrs. Nagel has a modest, but interesting collection. In the dining room are antiques — a silver service and cups. There is also a quaint chandelier, which she brought from California.

She is very proud of the trophies that her sport-participating family has earned. Bruce and Nancy won several of the trophies in tennis competition around Iowa last summer.

"Bruce felt bad about not going out for football in the ninth grade this year. We'd be tickled if he did, but Ray stresses that it is much wiser to do one or two things well than to go out for many sports," she says.

Coach Nagel says that although he is "sold on football" because it involves body contact and team play, he likes tennis for his children because they can get in to competition at an early age and it is a good carryover to other sports.

Likes Her Kitchen

Mrs. Nagel likes her kitchen. It's big, and "lovely to work in." And work she does. She has her own recipe file, which she uses often. As she reads through some unfamiliar recipes in a cookbook, she shows one mark of an expert cook, being able to tell exactly what a recipe would taste like from reading the ingredients and directions.

She is delighted to give you a favorite recipe, which in this case is "Turkey Breast Casserole," an easy-to-make dish that feeds about 10 people:

"Put frozen broccoli spears in the bottom of a casserole dish and top with sliced, cooked turkey breasts (which you can buy frozen). Do this a day ahead of time and refrigerate it. After a day cover this with a mixture of 1½ cups of mayonnaise, 1½ teaspoons of curry powder, 1 teaspoon of lemon juice and 3 cans of undiluted cream of mushroom soup. Bake this for one hour in a moderately hot oven. People will ask you the ingredients — it's hard to tell what's in it," she concludes, beaming with pride.

Another of Mrs. Nagel's interests is music. She "likes all kinds," but is a soprano and sings mostly sacred music. She was trained in private instruction, and not in college, where she was a liberal arts major. She plans to take courses while she's here and finish work on her degree.

Interest Is Family

Her main interest is her family. Although she finds social activities an easy way to make friends, they do not keep her too busy. Her husband admits that he cannot spend as much time with the children as he would like to, so that it's really up to her to discipline and train the children during football season.

"The children like the schools here," Mrs. Nagel says. (They attend City High, Central Junior High and Lincoln Elementary schools). "Nancy is a cheerleader, and all of the children are pleased with their own activities."

The Nagels agree that they like it here. A college town has many advantages over other types of cities, they say. Mrs. Nagel says that she was surprised to see how "plush and beautiful" everything is here. She expected to find low, flat corn fields.

Status Of 7 Southerners In Ky's Cabinet Rests In Limbo

SAIGON (AP)—Deputy Premier Nguyen Luu Vien submitted his resignation to the Cabinet early this week. But Thursday he sat smiling beside Premier Nguyen Cao Ky and heard Ky announce that Vien will act as head of government while Vietnamese leaders attend next week's conference in Manila.

His resignation was not officially withdrawn. It was not rejected. One official in Ky's office said, "It was not formally received."

Six other resignations announced Wednesday and accompanied by bitter attacks on the government are in the same strange limbo.

No reports on the political turmoil appeared in the censored press or were broadcast. No officials would talk. The people directly involved did not seem certain of the status of anything.

But a piecing together of often contradictory reports gives this picture:

Regime Secure
Ky's regime is not imperiled, only embarrassed, by the dissension. The 35-man Cabinet has no vital powers and Southern civilian members are low on the official totem pole.

By timing their revolt just before the seven-nation summit called to study Viet Nam's future, the discontented ministers seemingly hoped to win important concessions.

Regionalism Involved
Two of those who quit seem determined to stay out. At least two have returned to the fold.

Two of those who quit seem determined to stay out. At least two have returned to the fold.

Northerners Mistrusted
Even though Ky and other Northerners came to the South 12 or more years ago, they are still mistrusted by Southerners, the foreign affairs and information portfolios and the important Rural Reconstruction Ministry positions.

Northerners in the Cabinet hold post.

Little Action On Field House Addition

By NIC GOERES
Editor

If students are asking what happened to plans for remodeling the Field House, the answer is not much — yet.

Last June 17 the State Board of Regents approved the University's concept and proposed method of financing $6.5 and $7.5 million worth of improvements to the Field House.

At the June meeting, the Regents viewed sketches of a remodeling plan and instructed the architect to draw up preliminary plans for the Field House project.

No plans have been presented since then.

The sketches showed an air-conditioned arena seating 15,000 for basketball games and audiences of 3,800 to 10,000 for stage productions.

The sketches also showed a large addition to the west end of the Field House. In it was space for six full-sized basketball courts.

The addition to the Field House would more than double its present size.

Students Now Paying
Students are already paying for the improvements.

The project cost is to be paid by a $10-a-year activity fee formerly used by the Department of Intercollegiate Athletics and by some of the student building fee being collected to help finance a new 2,500-seat auditorium.

The Board in Control of Athletics now gets its operating funds from student fees for football and basketball games.

Students must pay $10 for season football tickets, $5 for single football tickets and $1 for single basketball tickets.

Students Criticize Plan
The student charge for attending sports events and the seating plan used in the student section of the stadium have drawn heavy criticism from students.

The Board in Control of Athletics late in the summer changed the seating policy for strictly reserved seats so that both reserved seats and alternate seats could be chosen by students. Students could now pick up their tickets before each game as was done before and sit with whom ever they wanted.

The new plan was criticized this fall when students who chose the alternate plan of pre-game ticket pickups had to sit in the end zone. Another criticism was that students now had to take their dates along to pick up their tickets.

After the Student Senate presented the grievances to members of the board at a senate meeting, the board decided to return to the old system of allowing one person to pick up tickets for both he and his date.

Income Falls Short
Another difficulty of the new plan is that income from student tickets is falling short of desired goals.

The student athletic fees would have brought in about $180,000 this year, according to Athletic Director Forest Evashevski. But only about $105,000 can be expected this year because only 10,500 student season tickets were purchased.

The $1 basketball tickets bought by students will not make up the difference, Evashevski said.

Although the $180,000 in student fees will go to the Field House, the athletic board now will get only $105,000.

—Have Never Missed Homecoming— Two See All Homecomings

LEO LEEPER, A 1911 UNIVERSITY grad, will be watching his 55th Homecoming game Saturday when the Hawks meet Northwestern. He remembers when there were only 1,800 students enrolled and football attendance was estimated in the hundreds rather than the thousands.

Former Football Captain Recalls Exciting Games

Saturday will be the University's 55th Homecoming game, and I. J. (Stub) Barron, who has attended every one of them, is looking forward to attending number 55.

As a freshman in 1912 he watched Iowa lose its first Homecoming game 28-10 to Wisconsin.

Barron played the next three years at tackle for the Hawks and was captain of the team during his senior year.

When asked which Homecomings in the last 20 years were the most memorable, he singled out three games he considered outstanding.

1958 Most Exciting

The win over Northwestern in 1958 was the most exciting, according to Barron.

"That game was exciting from whistle to whistle," he said.

The previous Saturday Northwestern crushed Michigan 55-24, and the Wildcats came into Iowa City with the hope of upsetting the Hawkeyes, he said.

Both teams had been undefeated up to that time, and the winner would remain in first place.

The game was closely fought and going into the fourth quarter Iowa led 20-14. Northwestern scored in that quarter but failed to make the extra point. Then in the last seconds of the game Iowa completed a touchdown pass to win 26-20, he said.

Most Points In 1961

The Homecoming game in which Iowa scored its greatest number of points was against Wisconsin in 1961.

"Wisconsin was never in the ball game," Barron said. "The week before, an Iowa scout noticed that every time the Wisconsin quarterback was going to call a running play he would touch his mouth." Iowa capitalized on this information and led at halftime 33-0. The final score was 47-15.

Barron recalled the Ohio State game in 1952 as being the most humorous because the joke was on coach Woody Hayes. Iowa won the game and Hayes was really upset, Barron said.

"It seems the grass was a little high and Hayes attributed the loss to this. Hayes said his boys could not get their feet out of the deep grass," Barron chuckled.

Here Since College

Barron, who came to Iowa City from Correctionville to attend the University, has lived here since.

He has remained connected with the University over the last 25 years as secretary of the Monday Morning Quarterback Club.

The Hawks have a chance to win Saturday, Barron said, because "Northwestern is more in our class."

"Besides," he added, "it's Homecoming, and if the Hawks get a few breaks, you never know."

Iowa Attorney Relates Now Red Grange Made Big Play

"The most spectacular game I remember," said Leo Leeper, retired Waterloo attorney, "was the Homecoming game between Iowa and Illinois in 1925 when Red Grange was at his peak."

Leeper is probably one of the best authorities on University football in the country though he didn't play the game himself. Since 1912 he has not missed one Homecoming game and has bought season tickets ever since they were inaugurated. He plans to be on hand again for next Saturday's Homecoming game when the Hawks meet Northwestern.

Leeper recalled vividly the Iowa-Illinois game:

"Grange took the opening kickoff and, protected by a tight wedge, ran for a touchdown. The two teams fought valiantly for the rest of the game with Illinois leading 10-0. Toward the end of the last quarter, Iowa's 'Cowboy' Kutch scored a touchdown. Then, with a minute to play, Kutch took the ball again on a crash through the line to win the game."

Leeper, who received his B.A. in 1911 and his LL.B. in 1912 recalled Homecoming in general: "There is a vast difference between the way we observed Homecoming activities in 1912 and the way they are observed today. In the earlier games the team dressed in the Old Army, going through the gates under the Interurban and out to the gridiron (now a parking lot) near the river."

"The spectators, students and faculty members, numbering only a few thousand, sat on the old wooden bleachers. The student body was smaller in those days. I remember in 1906, when I entered the University, there were only 1800 students."

Freshman-Sophomore Fight

One of the long-standing traditions at that time was the annual freshman - sophomore fight. In 1906 the sophomores, taking to the trees, hurled buckets of white-wash on freshmen that passed beneath. In revenge the freshmen pursued the enemy, ducked them in horse troughs, and threw them in the river. The administration protested. In place of the fight the annual freshman - sophomore pushball game was inaugurated, using a ball six feet in diameter.

An honor student, Leeper was also active in sports. He was the first member of the gymnastics team, established in 1907 by "Dad" Schroeder, new head of the athletics department.

He also played basketball and was awarded his "L." Leeper's position as guard in basketball is comparable to the modern football tackle. His job was to stop his opponent at all costs: tackling, pushing, blocking — all were acceptable. If the ball went out of bounds the first person to get it kept possession.

ROTC also formed a large part of Leeper's life at the University. Staying on after his required two years of training, he became captain, regimental adjutant, and finally major of the First Battalion.

Following his graduation Leeper kept in close contact with the University coming down to games whenever he could.

Few Alumni Attend

"Prior to the inauguration of Homecoming, very few alumni and practically no one of the general public attended the football games. Concurrent with plans for observing Homecoming came plans of the faculty to open the rooms of their Triangles Club and hold a reception for alumni and friends of the University the night before the Homecoming game. This found immediate favor and for years the club had full attendance.

In those days coming down to a football game from Waterloo was a three-day event. The Leeper family would leave on Friday, camp overnight, and reach Iowa City on Saturday morning. After the game they would start back, camping out again on Saturday night. In 1920 there were only 25 miles of paved and 624 miles of graveled road in Iowa. A hard rain could mean the end of the trip.

Nurses Write PRN News For Students

PRN News, a newsletter for students in the University College of Nursing, made its debut recently.

The newsletter, sponsored by the Student Nurses Organization (SNO), will appear whenever necessary. PRN is a medical term meaning "whenever necessary."

The PRN News will contain articles written by students and faculty in the College of Nursing, class news, SNO news, a calendar of events and a humor page.

The purpose of the newsletter, according to Sara Love, N3, Rock Island, Ill., is to provide better communications between faculty and students, and among classes in the College of Nursing.

"Mainly the newsletter is to help freshmen and sophomores see what's ahead of them in nursing," Miss Love said.
