Jury Out 12 Hours In Retrial Of Accused Wife Slayer

COLUMBUS, Ohio — Samuel J. Sheppard, convicted of murdering his wife, was freed again Thursday after 12 hours of jury deliberation.

Kept under guard in a hotel room, the 33-year-old former University of Michigan medical student said he was overjoyed as he was led from the courtroom.

Sheppard, who was granted a new trial in February, had walked out on a 19-year-old actress and was accused of killing his wife, Marilyn, in the mid-1960s.

He was convicted in the first trial, which ended in 1966, but the Ohio Supreme Court overturned his conviction last year.

In the retrial, the jury deliberated for 12 hours before reaching a verdict.

University employee will have to wait until the fall

University employee S. J. Kottner, who has worked for the university for 20 years, said she was disappointed with the decision.

She was among the 2,000 faculty and staff members who were unionized in a vote last year.

The decision came after a two-day hearing last week in which union representatives and university officials presented their cases.

The university has requested an inquest into the death of a student who fell to his death in an elevator.

The student, 21-year-old John Smith, was killed when an elevator at the university’s main building collapsed.

The university said it was working with the state’s attorney general to determine whether criminal charges should be brought.

WASHINGTON — Secretary of Labor Wilbur J. Wirtz, calling the military draft "unfair" and "anachronistic," said today that the only fair way to draft workers into the armed forces was to make it a lottery system.

He said the current system of volunteering for the draft was not only unfair, but also inefficient.

Renewal maneuvers

Some downtown improvement projects appear to be gaining momentum about the proposed urban renewal plans for Iowa City. By making publicized changes along Polish and market streets by the city, urban renewal has become a buzzword in the eyes of the public.

One of the more successful attempts to put these plans into effect was a letter to the City Council signed by citizens last week. If published, it might have avoided some of the heated arguments that have been occurring in the last few months.

The letter stated: "The Iowa City Improvement plan is a valuable tool in solving some of our city's problems. We believe that the city should take steps to move forward with this plan as soon as possible." The letter was signed by many citizens and was sent to the City Council in May.

Debates often have been sparked by the presence of the Councilman. The councilmen often make decisions that affect the whole council, but the city, not the councilmen, is responsible for these decisions.

The Councilmen are elected by the citizens and are responsible for the decisions they make. They are not responsible for the actions of the mayor or the city manager.

The letter stated: "We feel that the city should take steps to move forward with the Iowa City Improvement plan as soon as possible. The plan has been in the works for a long time and it is time to move forward with it."

The letter was signed by many citizens and was sent to the City Council in May.

No-Trespass Rule Is Subject At Soundoff

Stephen Baldwin was full of fury Wednesday, when parents debated the recent Supreme Court decision regarding the freedom to assemble.

The Baldwin, the student, said that he felt that the right to assemble was a basic freedom that should not be taken away.

"We are going to fight for this right," he said. "We are not going to give up on this right."

The decision of the court was also questioned by many other students.

"I think it's a bad decision," said one student. "I think it's a mistake to take away the right to assemble.

"I think we should fight against this decision," he said. "I think we should go to the court and demand that this decision be overturned."

Hawks Hold Final Drill

Iowa Coach Ray Nagel hit the football again, according to one Iowa fan’s preparation for Friday night’s season finale at 50.

"The ball should be touch-the game’s not that easy," he said.

Nagel said his team was worse than in past years, and it will end up as second place in the Big Ten.

"If we can’t be the best, we can’t be worse," he said. "The players will work in the weight room and get ready for next year’s game.

IOWA CITY, Iowa - Bill Griff Ih believes the Michigan State football team will defeat the Iowa Hawkeyes on Saturday in the Little Ice Bowl.

"I'm not saying it's a sure thing," Griff Ih said, "but I think the Spartans will come out on top. They have a good defense and a strong offensive line. I also think their quarterback, John Smith, will have a big game."

Have Voice, Will Travel

By KATHY FERRY

"I didn't know I had a voice until someone told me," said Katherine Harvey, a former opera singer and opera teacher, who now lives in Cedar Rapids as a neighbor. "One day, while walking downtown, I heard a woman singing in the park. I approached her and she sang for me. That's when I realized I had a voice." Harvey has been teaching opera at the University of Iowa for over 30 years.

In her early years, Harvey was a professional opera singer. She appeared in many operas and concerts throughout Europe and the United States. Her voice was known for its beauty and versatility.

Harvey's passion for opera began when she was a child. "I was always drawn to the stage," she said. "I used to watch my mother perform and dream of doing the same." Harvey's mother was a famous opera singer and conducted operas in Europe.

Harvey's love for opera led her to the University of Iowa, where she now teaches. "I love teaching opera," she said. "It's a way to pass on my love for the art to others." Harvey has taught opera at the University of Iowa for over 30 years and has had many successful students.

Harvey's dedication to opera has earned her many awards and recognitions. She has been named a "Master Teacher" by the American Opera Society and has been inducted into the Opera Hall of Fame. She has also received the prestigious "Golden Voice" award.

Harvey is available for private lessons, opera workshops, and guest lectures. Contact her at the University of Iowa for more information.

The Faculty Must Decide Form

The disagreement between University President John Bollman and the Faculty Council at the University of Iowa over the future of the university is still unresolved.

Student Group Seeks More Say In Decisions

A group of students is seeking more say in the university’s decisions regarding important matters, according to a recent statement.

Dr. Henry A. Jordan, President of the University, said that the faculty and administration would be more likely to consider the students’ suggestions if they were presented in a more organized manner.

Jordan also said that he believed that the students, as well as the faculty and administration, should be more open to discussing and cooperating with each other.
