Iowa City, Iowa

It can't happen here?

The University of California is without doubt one of the finest educational institutions in the country, and for that reason many people are understandably upset about the changes being affected there under the infuence of Mr. Reagan. But while we are channelling our sympathies toward California's students, it may well be that we are overlooking signs of the same sort thing happening here. We are not denigrating the devotion of our students to the real purpose of ours, to the principles of academic freedom. But we are nevertheless aware that a good many of the legislators in the Iowa House and the people in general know too little about the real problem, and have a good deal of power over the matter. Many of their doubts may be that the freedoms we enjoy are essential to education, and seem to think that the University can remain the great institution it is, with these freedoms curtailed.

It can’t. And there are enough signs apparent to make us feel a real need for concern. - David Polen

The finality of finals

Finished,咫尺ly at a final.
The announcement that the right of relief coming from about 15,000 students can be heard across the campus.

There's still today and tomorrow left to this full semester of final exams.
At the University of Iowa, for but the most part the full of the writing has been completed.
The exams are now passing through the hands of the professors who will read, weigh and finally put judgment on a sea of fashion exams.

By next week, students will be searching the faces, doors, shaking down the names-by-glossy from a face.

It is all part of the necessary pre-card to give a graduate student as indication of his academic ability
- it is nothing more.

It is, for instance, a measure of future success, a gauge of hapsiness, a meaningful polishing of the outside things that go to make up a human personality.

It is simply the epitome of a system that makes up a world of printed words, composed by academic discipline and forwarded to an academic student.

It is, nothing more.

The grades have meaning, it is for this reason only, at this age only and this world only.

Interviews Show White Blacklash Here

As the civil rights movement was making its way across the country, it was inevitable that some backlash would occur. The backlash was not universal or complete, but it was evident in some communities, especially those with a history of racial tension.

How Backlash Manifested

At John Wilson’s store in the town of Toluca, a series of interviews with students about the civil rights movement revealed the extent of the backlash. Students were asked about any changes in their attitudes towards the movement and the reasons behind these changes.

- Confirmed Backlash:
  - Two Negro students said they thought little backlash was present.
  - Two other students agreed that there was no backlash.
  - However, other students indicated that there was some backlash, but it was not intense.

Reasons for Backlash

The reasons for the backlash varied, but they centered around the fear of losing personal freedoms, the social status of the civil rights movement, and the potential for increased violence.

- Loss of Personal Freedom:
  - Students expressed concerns about the loss of personal freedom and privacy.

- Social Status of the Movement:
  - Some students were concerned about the social status of the civil rights movement, feeling that it was too radical or aggressive.

- Increased Violence:
  - There was a fear of increased violence, with some students expressing concern about the potential for backlash to escalate.

Conclusion

The disscussants used this definition of backlash: the reaction to increasing violence in the civil rights movement. The conclusion was that there was any backlash was definitely present here, but not to any great extent. The students interviewed believed that the backlash was more in the form of a change in attitude rather than in the form of overt violence.

Other Observations

- Civil Rights Movement:
  - The civil rights movement was being interpreted as an uneasiness associated with those who supported it.

- Membership Growth:
  - Membership in SNCC and other leftist organizations was increasing, possibly due to memberships rising in other leftist organizations.

- Role of Violence:
  - Violence was considered to be part of the civil rights movement, but it was not seen as the primary means of achieving change.

- Lack of Change Among All Students:
  - Not all students felt that their attitudes had changed. Some students felt that their attitudes had not changed at all.

In summary, while some students did feel that there was some backlash, it was not widespread or intense. The civil rights movement continued to make progress, albeit with some challenges and resistance.

Married Students Find College Expensive

The Daily Iowan, Iowa City, IA, February 1, 1972

By Dr. Logan

You're putting up with a lot of nonsense if you're one of those parents planning to use your last mortgage to send your college-bound children to school. But I know there are some things you can do to ease the burden.

First, get your kids to apply for loans. That's a good way to get them to start taking things seriously...at least if they get the money.

Second, don't let them live too close to campus. They need to learn to balance their social life with their studies, or they may never graduate.

Third, teach them to cook. If they can't feed themselves, they'll have to eat out, which is expensive.

And lastly, get them to find a part-time job. Even if they only make minimum wage, it's better than nothing.

I hope these tips help some of you reduce the financial strain on your family budgets.
wouldn't you know it?

N.Y. Compromise Produces Horsebowl! Lottery System

LAWRENCE, Kans. — For $15 a ticket, New Yorkers will be given an opportunity beginning July 1 to help fund the upkeep of a state historic site known as 'Horsebowl.'

The lottery was authorized by New York state last November, shortly after the bell-tower of the old horsebowl, which is now under reconstruction, was dedicated.

The basic idea of the lottery is to sell state lottery tickets at a price of $15 and then distribute them throughout the state.

The lottery will be drawn on the last Thursday of every month, and the winner will be given the right to purchase the horsebowl for $150,000.

Foreign Students Express Opinions On Vietnam War

By MICHAEL Tu

Almost every one of us has a Japanese heritage. Many of our ancestors fought in the Vietnam War. It is difficult to understand what they went through.

The war ended a long time ago, and America has moved on. But the Vietnamese people still feel the effects of the war today. They have a strong desire to live in peace and harmony. It is important that we understand their perspective.

A student from the Philippines said, "The war was a mistake. We should not have gone to Vietnam. We should have stayed in our own country."

Another student from Vietnam said, "The war was a disaster. We lost many lives and suffered a lot. We should never have gone to war."

A student from China said, "The war was a failure. We did not win. We should have negotiated a peace agreement."

A student from India said, "The war was a tragedy. We should have tried to resolve the conflict peacefully."

The war was a difficult time for everyone involved. It is important that we learn from the past and work towards a better future.
Czechs Convict American

PRAGUE—Czechoslovakia—- Sad a thundersstorm trial, a Prague court Wednesday convicted Vladimir Kusan-Kenmu, a Czech-born American of driving a car early in the mid-war and sentenced him to eight years in prison.

Kusan-Kenmu, 34, is a travel agent from Washington, D.C., who was sentenced late Oct. 12 under uncertain circumstances a proposed emergency stop at Prague airport of a Bristol aircraft on a flight from Moscow to Paris. The Romanians and Czechs said the landing was made for technical reasons.

The U.S. State Department vehemently protested the arrest and has been designing efforts to free him, but without visible results.

Kusan-Kenmu, a naturalized U.S. citizen who is president of a travel agency in Cincinnati, Ohio, was arrested during the occupation and denied the actions of an emissary group as the said aspect of a foreign intelligence service from the fall of 1940 to the six months after the German occupation, through to Dec. 12. Czech sources said the espionage group was a U.S. State Department agent.

The court and Kusan-Kenmu moved to West Germany and to London as well as to Czechoslovakia.

He was convicted of having supplied people out of Czechoslovakia "as was the foreign intelligence service was detached" and of having taken to his account two clandestine radio transmitters and assets and information about the country.

The prosecutor also announced that he would file an appeal.

In Washington, where Kusan-Kenmu's wife and five children resided, his father-in-law, Donald Hart, said: "We were prepared for this. I cannot see how it could have been much different. We are all very unhappy."

WASHINGTON—- Ralph Nader and the government's auto safety experts cut short the Bristol aircraft's trip and made a proposal to ban at least devices which it was believed could be used to increase the number of injuries to occupants.

The experts said the government's proposal would narrow the range of devices which could be used in the same way as the Bristol aircraft's.

"If we can't change the general engineering changes that have been made," said a government spokesman, "then we must cut the risk.

"And the industry itself has failed to achieve the same thing," he said. "The industry has failed to get the products right for the other side of the equation."

"And if we can't do it now, we will have to change the law," he said. "The industry has failed to get the products right for the other side of the equation."

WASHINGTON—- The finding of a possible link between cancer and childhood leukemia has been made by researchers at the National Cancer Institute and the National Institute of Environmental Health Science.

They said the study was being conducted to investigate whether there is a link between childhood leukemia and various types of cancer.

The researchers have found that childhood leukemia is more common in children who have been exposed to certain types of radiation, such as X-rays.

They have also found that the risk of developing leukemia is higher in children who have been exposed to certain types of chemicals, such as benzene.

The researchers hope their findings will help to identify new strategies for preventing childhood leukemia.
