Children Flowers wilted by 'Summer of Love'

SAN FRANCISCO — Ten toes was seen in Russian literature as the sign of a person's death. Hence, when the tragic news reached the University of Iowa, the Daily Iowan attests: 'A KID FOR THE WINNER — Better Red Sox after Joe Lemon received a kiss on the cheek from Margaret King of Berkeley, Calif., as he honored Boston's Fenway Park Thursday after defeating the St. Louis Cardinals in 3 to 2 in the second game of the World Series. Lemon received a $250 gift for his victory. — AP Wirephoto'

The open skies will continue to be marred by the fear of death, medical experts believe, as the children of the 'Summer of Love' continue to suffer from the aftermath of the recent tragedies.

Trudeau believes the tragic news proves that the children of the 'Summer of Love' are not immune to the same fate as their parents.

'Sunny Afternoon' was an unsuccessful council meeting at the Theological quadrangle. The meeting was called by the student body to discuss the recent tragedies.

In his speech, Trudeau expressed his concern for the future of the community and urged for the continuation of the council's efforts to address the issue.

Rival Group to Battle HSP

BY PATRICK

A new campus political organization, termed previously Thursday night, an aounced plans to form a rival organization to the HSP. The group, calling itself the 'Shawano League,' seeks to promote the formation of a 'coalition of women's groups' and to present 'alternative viewpoints' on campus.

The organization's formation is in response to the recent tragedies, according to the group's leaders. The organization plans to hold a meeting on the issue on Tuesday night, at which time the group will introduce a resolution at the organization meeting to be held in the Union Michigan on Thursday.

The meeting will be held at 2:30 p.m., and it is expected that several members of the organization will attend.

Defense Spending Frozen As Budget Battle Goes On

WASHINGTON — The Johnson administration, which has been fighting to prevent a budget crisis, said Saturday that the budget will be frozen at $5 billion. The move is expected to save the federal government $2 billion in budgetary cuts.

The move comes as the Senate debates whether to approve the budget. The Senate has already approved a budget of $1.5 billion.

Advisors should advise—only

There is an element of University control over students in the area of scholarships that should be ended. It involves the selfish practice of requiring an academic advisor's approval on registration or early changes in registration.

The role of the academic advisor should be just as the words imply. He should advise. He should not bill. The final decision on what courses a student takes should be the student's.

It can be argued, of course, that the requirement is in the student's interest. This is so, because it expertly forces the student to visit his advisor before registering in changing registration. The student supposedly gets the correct advice about graduation requirements in that he can receive his degree in the shortest time possible.

But things don't always work that way. Some of the academic advisors don't have a great deal about details such as requirements. They don't really care and simply sign anything put in front of them.

Or the student may forge the signature of the advisor in changing his registration in burning an old course and double-majoring. The advisor has no way to know.

It can be argued that scholarships or loans are available for those who have advisor's advice at the organized games. If so much scholarship money is available, then the advisor should advise.

We may also argue that a simpler and more direct solution to the same problem can be found. The advisor (with the advisor's or the advisor's permission) can simply sign the advisor's name on the advisor's enrollment form. The advisor is supposed to be an expert in advising students.

The question is: How many advisors are needed? The question of tuition and fees amount to $30,000 for a student. A full-time advisor is needed to advise every student in the area of scholarships and loans.

The reason is: every student is supposed to get a degree. The advisor should be available to do that.

— Bill Newsheueh

Elimination of tuition needed

The first University bill is met and most students probably are not reaping the benefits of all their advisor's advice. Most students are in the College of Liberal Arts and they do not need advisor's advice and they don't need advisor's fees.

The second reason to end advisor's advice is that advisor's fees are needed. It is about time the trend toward higher tuition costs were turned around. Advisors are terrible students from private or public universities are discriminated against more and more.
