Demonstration - The Way It Was

EDITOR’S NOTE: This article was written as a participant in the protest movement, and the author’s perspective was that of an onlooker. The author was not a member of the University of Iowa’s administration or any student group during the period of the protests. The purpose of this article is to provide a perspective on the events of that time, as seen through the eyes of a participant who was not a leader or member of any group involved.

By DAVID MAGIDSON

The University of Iowa campus, 1964, was a place of far-reaching significance. It was a time when the world was changing, and the University was at the center of that change. The campus was filled with students who were demanding change, with professors who were challenging the status quo, and with police who were trying to maintain order.

The demonstrations of 1964 were a turning point in the history of the University of Iowa. They were a melting pot of ideas and a test of wills between the protesters and the authorities. The demonstrations were a reflection of the times, and they are a testament to the power of the human spirit.

The demonstrators were a diverse group, including students, faculty, and administrators. They were united in their desire for change, and they were willing to risk their lives to achieve it. The protesters were not afraid to challenge authority, and they were not afraid to fight for what they believed in.

The police were also a diverse group, with some officers who were willing to use force to maintain order and others who were willing to listen and understand. The police were not afraid to use force, and they were not afraid to be open to the protesters’ demands.

The demonstrations of 1964 were a time of great tension, and they were also a time of great hope. The demonstrators were able to bring attention to their causes, and they were able to change the world.

The University of Iowa campus of 1964 was a place of great change, and it is a place that will never be forgotten. The demonstrations of 1964 were a turning point in the history of the University of Iowa, and they are a testament to the power of the human spirit.
Nearly everyone is to blame

Almost everyone who was involved in the horrible scenes on campus Wednesday can be blamed in some way for it. The demonstrators blocking the Union doorway to keep Marines from enrolling on campus were infringing upon the rights of fellow students for whose safety people consider an impossi­ble dream. The anti-professors were there for some reason or other to create a trouble and cause physical violence if they could. Many of the students at the other end were watching what was going on, not paying attention to the source of the trouble, without the police by making it difficult for leaders in conferences with the demonstrators of both colors.

But most of the blame must be placed upon the administration, especially Prov. Howard R. Brown, Phil C. Connell. President in the president, was at the Union Wednesday at 11 a.m. All the trouble was occurring as protestors blocking the door­way were being physically thrown into the street by anti-protestors. Approximately at the same time, Hope D. Augustine, associate dean of students, was watching the demonstra­tion and was informed of the violence. Undoubtedly, there were other high­ranking administration officials who were watching the same. The administra­tion knew that there was violence occurring on the campus.

John Felton, student body presi­dent, was invited by University autori­ties to provide some protection for the demonstrators about 12 a.m. John H. Hanna, chief of Campus Security, reportedly told Felton at that time that he wasn’t able to move his men be­cause the two groups, because they lacked the power of arrest. Hanna told me about 1 p.m. approximately the same thing, adding that he did not have sufficient manpower to move be­cause the state was out of the Union and would be made vulnerable to attack.

Shortly after 1 p.m., Connell, who had been observing it from time to time, turned off the move­ment of the demonstrators to the two groups. Hanna himself at that time entered the mob. But it was at least 20 minutes before a small number of campus policemen moved to occupy the opposing groups in the mob. And this was done only after Felton went to personally give the police­men across the street.

Finally one must look back at an Item of campus police was placed between the two groups at that time. If this had been done at 9 Wed­nesday morning, there probably would have been no violence. And there cer­tainly would have been any need to call in rescuers.

By afternoon however, it was ob­vious that the situation had gotten out of hand. Felton asked for outside as­sistance because he found that even more serious violence would erupt at any time. But the members of the Uni­versity administration in the opera­tion center that had been set up across the street from the Union still would not make a decision. Finally the city officials decided to act after the University’s request to do so.

Basically, then, the University ad­ministration made no-o-war minders it failed to take a relatively easy step that might have prevented or at least shortened the violence. And it is indeed to call for outside assistance when it was obvious virtually everyone nearby that it should be.

One good thing will have to be said about the administration, behavior today. Bowen finally said something about a rumor that de­finitely concerns this University. It is trustworthy, however, that the riot has not over yet all public concern from most administration officials have to go through the Office of Public Information.

The Faculty Senate, the Student Senate, the Board of Regents and po­tentially other groups should investigate the administration’s role in the riots of Wednesday. Most important, some­thing should be done so that when this event again is nothing handled as poorly as the administration handled the incident Wednesday.

Police were a bright spot

If a bright spot was possible in the frightful scene of Wednesday, it was the way outside law officials han­dled the breaking up of the demonstra­tions.

Unlike what happened at Madison, Wis., a couple weeks ago, the police task force, composed of Iowa City po­lice, Iowa Highway Patrol, and sheriffs from Johnson and surrounding counties, established their authority and control of the sit­uation without resorting to physical violence and tear gas. Although they felt it was necessary to carry some sticks, they did not carry their guns. And as far as it appeared that the demonstrators would not violently resist all, all of the Iowa City police as well as some other members of the mob have put away their sticks.

There were at least one arrest made after the demonstrations were over that probably should not have been made. And a few radical complaints about the way the police actuated will probably pop up, but as of these arrested people.

Those were the recent cops for ours to deal with. But it’s hope that the same thing can be said of the outside police even if they had to deal with a similar situation be­fore again.

Injuries hit Iowa again. Iowa's Barkley received more than 250 shots from a passer, including 15 in the first quarter. The passer was described as a "hard worker" by the Iowa staff. Barkley is out for the season, making him the third Iowa player to suffer a serious injury in the first quarter.

Injuries are piling up for the Hawkeyes, who are already missing several key players due to injuries. Barkley's injury is expected to keep him out for the remainder of the season, further straining Iowa's already thin offensive line.

The Hawkeyes are currently 6-2 on the season and are looking to improve their standing in the Big Ten Conference. They face a tough challenge in their next game, as they travel to Evanston to take on the Northwestern Wildcats.

Incurable Cancer Apparently Curable

Dr. William S. Bell, director of the National Cancer Institute, announced yesterday that a new drug appears to cure a previously incurable form of cancer.

The surgery was performed in a hospital in Minneapolis, where the patient had been hospitalized for treatment of the disease. The surgery was successful, and the patient is now recovering.

The drug is a new chemical compound that appears to inhibit the growth of cancer cells. The drug is expected to be available to patients in the near future.

The band will perform free of charge, and admission will be by donation to a charity fund.

British Secretary Sparks Opposition

LONDON — A choice of opportunities awaits William H. Brown, British foreign secretary, who has just returned from a tour of the United States. His British tour has turned out to be a model of diplomatic warfare, with Brown behaving like a king in foreign countries, while his United States counterpart, Henry Kissinger, behaves like a peasant in Britain.

Brown's tour was also marked by his administrative success in dealing with the United States government, which has traditionally been a thorn in the side of Britain's foreign policy. Brown has managed to defuse tensions with the United States by engaging in a series of diplomatic initiatives, including a visit to the White House and a meeting with President Nixon.

The Brown-Kissinger relationship reached its peak during the United States visit, when Brown was able to secure a commitment from Kissinger to support Britain's efforts to resolve the Middle East conflict. This move has been seen as a significant victory for Brown, who has long been a vocal advocate of a more aggressive approach to foreign policy.

Brown's tour has been marked by a series of diplomatic achievements, including the signing of a new trade agreement with the United States, and a series of high-level talks with American officials. Brown has also been able to secure a commitment from the United States to provide additional military aid to Britain, which has been a key priority for British officials.

Overall, Brown's tour has been seen as a significant success for British foreign policy, and has helped to improve relations with the United States. Brown has been praised for his diplomatic skills, and has been seen as a forceful and effective representative of Britain's interests in the world.

Allaire Condemns Bowen's Actions

To the Editor:

Paul Howard A. Bowen acts with the same irresponsibility that marked his days as a director of the Iowa City Community. He followed the pattern of his brother, a dean of the University of Iowa, in the same manner.

In both cases, the decisions were made in private and without the benefit of public review. In both cases, the decisions were made with the same lack of regard for the wishes of the students. In both cases, the decisions were made with the same disregard for the public good. In both cases, the decisions were made with the same disregard for the University. And in both cases, the decisions were made with the same disregard for the law.

It is unfortunate that the University has so many people like Bowen and his brother. It is unfortunate that the University has so many people who are willing to stand by and let these people make their decisions. It is unfortunate that the University has so many people who are willing to let these people make their decisions without question.

I urge the University to take action against Bowen and his brother. I urge the University to take action against all those who are willing to stand by and let these people make their decisions without question.

Sincerely,

Paul Howard A. Bowen

Prof Blasts Trouble-Makers, UI Police

It's a tough job, but someone's got to do it. That someone is Officer John T. Pelton, Jr. He's been doing it for the last 10 years, and he's not about to stop.

Pelton has been a favorite with the student body for years. His easygoing demeanor and down-to-earth approach have made him a fixture on campus. But this year, he's really stepped up his game.

"I've always been a fan of Officer Pelton," said senior Sarah Johnson. "He's always there for us, no matter what."

Pelton himself is quick to point out that his job is no easy task. "It's not always fun," he admits. "But it's a job I love, and I wouldn't trade it for anything."

Pelton's work is not just limited to on-campus incidents. He's also been known to step in when a student is facing challenges off-campus as well.

"I had a student come to me the other day," Pelton said. "She was having trouble with her landlord. I helped her work it out, and she was grateful."

Pelton's dedication to his job is evident in his long tenure. He's been with the University Police Department for 10 years, and he shows no signs of slowing down.

"I'm not ready to retire yet," he said. "I still enjoy my job, and I plan on sticking around for a while."

Pelton's impact on the University community is immeasurable. He's a true advocate for the students, and his efforts do not go unnoticed.

"He's one of the best officers we've ever had," said Assistant Chancellor Mark McDaniel. "We're lucky to have him."
