Demonstrators behaved best

"Old soldiers never die - young ones never get so used to it." Thursday's protests formed a pic-tos line at about 8:30. For a while it looked as though the rehearsals and rehearsals would overwhelm the police, but by 10:30 the numbers had receded to about 80 persons. A few people were left standing and talking in the street, but few of them were in any way loaders, and it was over an hour before the police paraded along to close off the street and add-reassuring presence of those who support the University community. When comparisons are made between those who support the University community and those who do not, it is important to remember that those who support the University are those who have a personal stake in the success of the University. They are the people who have contributed to the University and who expect to continue to do so.

A common response to this argument is that those who support the University do so because they are afraid of what will happen if the University is not supported. This is false. Those who support the University do so because they believe in the importance of the University and what it stands for. They believe that the University is important to the future of our country and the world. They believe that the University is important to the education of our children and to the success of our society.

In Summary. We believe that the University is important to our country and to the world. We believe that the University is important to the education of our children and to the success of our society. We believe that the University is important to the future of our country and the world. We believe that the University is important to the education of our children and to the success of our society.

We believe that the University is important to our country and to the world. We believe that the University is important to the education of our children and to the success of our society.

Iowa Officials Hit Marine Protesters

A handful of state officials expressed concern Thursday in response to the喊声 at the University of Iowa. The protest, held in support of a representative of the National Committee to Abolish HUAC, took place on the University's campus.

Schmidhauser Hits Huac, Backs Debate

By Sue Vann Hall

The University of Iowa administration has received a letter expressing concern about the recent demonstration by a group of students opposed to the National Committee to Abolish HUAC. The group, led by Schmidhauser, held a demonstration on the campus, calling for an inquiry into the university's policies.

Booker, Brandt and Buthers own no property in the central business district. They have no conflict of interest on such questions as urban renewal.

Booker, Brandt and Buthers know that without federal financial assistance we won't get planned renewal of the downtown area, we will get patchwork.

Booker, Brandt and Buthers believe that all of the people should vote to decide whether to elect councilmen from wards. They oppose having such a change pushed through by ordinance — with those men making the decision.

Booker, Brandt and Buthers believe that the kind of additional parking space in the downtown area should be decided on the basis of sound finance and deliberate consideration of all the alternatives. They oppose commitment to immediate construction of an expensive ramp which might not pay off.

Athletic Award Tax
Hit By Congressmen

WASHINGTON (U.S.) - Sports officials - athletes' agents and professional leagues - are bracing for a number of new tax laws their lawyers predict will affect sports financially, both on and off the field.

Lobbying groups in the nation's capital have already expressed concern about the effect of the new income tax laws on professional athletes. Congressmen and the Executive Branch are expected to meet this fall to discuss the impact of the new tax laws on professional athletes.

The new laws are expected to affect athletes' income from endorsements, appearance fees, and other similar sources. The legislation is expected to increase the tax rates on these sources, which could have a significant impact on athletes' income.

In Congress, a group of lawmakers has introduced legislation that would address the concerns of athletes and their representatives. The legislation is expected to be voted on in the fall, and it is hoped that it will be signed into law by the president in time for the upcoming tax season.

The proposed legislation includes provisions that would allow athletes to deduct certain expenses, such as travel and training costs, from their income. Additionally, the legislation would provide for a deduction for charitable contributions made by athletes.

The legislation is expected to be supported by a variety of organizations, including the National Football League, the National Basketball Association, and the National Hockey League. These organizations have been actively involved in the lobbying effort and are expected to provide strong support for the legislation.

In the meantime, athletes and their representatives are expected to continue to monitor the situation closely, and they are expected to work with their legislators to ensure that their interests are represented.

National League
Sets Conference

CINCINNATI (UPI) - The National League today announced that its meeting for representatives of the American and National Leagues will be held in Cincinnati on November 8, 1984.

The meeting will be attended by the representatives of the American and National Leagues, as well as other officials from the leagues.

The meeting is expected to be held at the Hyatt Regency Hotel in Cincinnati, and it is expected to last for two days.

The agenda for the meeting is expected to include discussions on a variety of topics, including the future of the leagues, the impact of new technology on the game, and the impact of the new television contracts.

The meeting is expected to be attended by a large number of league officials, as well as a number of fans who are interested in the future of the leagues.

In addition to the meetings, there will be a number of special events held in conjunction with the meeting. These events are expected to include a dinner for the representatives of the leagues, as well as a tour of the Cincinnati Reds' stadium.

European Statesman To Speak Wednesday

"I'm Europe" is coming here. Senator Paul-Henri Spaak, Belgium's powerful foreign minister, is coming as part of the Brussels government's effort to introduce an independent voice to the world. Senator Spaak's visit is part of a program of international diplomacy that has brought many foreign dignitaries to the United States. Senator Spaak, who is also the chairman of the European Parliament, has been invited to speak at the University of Iowa. He is expected to discuss the role of Belgium in the world and the future of the European Union.

Stuist Praises New UI Roles

"I am very pleased with the new roles that UI has been given," Senator William Proxmire said in a statement. "UI is playing an important role in the world, and we must support it as it works to strengthen our nation and our society." Senator Proxmire praised the university's new roles as they were introduced to the world, and he noted that the university was a leader in the nation's effort to strengthen its economy.

Coradville Candidates Unopposed

"Coradville is a great place to live," Coralville mayor John K. Smith said in a statement. "I am happy to see that no one is running against me in the election. This is a sign of the trust that the people of Coralville have in me and my administration." Mayor Smith noted that he had been in office for four years and that he had been able to work with the community to solve some of its problems.

More Sex Education Urged

"We must do more to educate our children about sex," Governor William H. B. DeWitt said in a statement. "It is important that our children understand the importance of safe sex and the consequences of risky behavior." Governor DeWitt noted that he had introduced a sex education program in the state, and he urged other states to follow suit.

University Bulletin Board

"I am excited to see the new bulletin board," University President James H. S. B. Wilson said in a statement. "It will be a great resource for students and faculty. We must make sure that it is well used and that it serves the needs of the university community." President Wilson noted that the bulletin board would be used for a variety of purposes, including posting notices, announcements, and other information.

If your major is listed here, IBM would like to talk with you Nov. 14th or 15th

Sign up for an interview at your placement office—even if you're headed for graduate school or military service. Why is IBM interested in so many different people?

The basic reason is practical. Information processing is the fastest growing, fastest changing major industry in the world. IBM products are being used to solve problems in government, business, law, education, medicine, science, the humanities—you name any area you can name. We need people with almost every kind of background to help our customers solve their problems. That's why we'd like to talk with you.

What you can do at IBM

Whatever your major, you can do a lot of good things at IBM. Change the world (maybe). Make money (surely). Continue your education through any of several plans, including a Triton Rotating Program. And have a wide choice of places to work (we have over 300 locations throughout the United States).

We'll be on campus to interview for careers in Marketing, Computer Applications, Programming, Research, Design and Development, Manufacturing, Field Engineering, and Finance and Administration.

If you can't make a campus interview, send us a outline of your interests and educational background to Mr. C. J. Rest, IBM Corporation, 150 South Wacker Drive, Chicago, Illinois 60606. We're an equal opportunity employer.
