Sororities face a problem

All the beautiful people studied seemed bewildered by the rush to get a greek affiliation. They tried to get in the annual Paddleton Paddleball competition. Everything was fun until the evening's speaker told the sorority girls that no one was interested. "If there is no one interested, then we might as well do something else for them as much as they do for the rest of us.

The speaker was Robert A. Contreras, a former student at Stanford. Contreras suggested that a solution to the problem of greek organization on campus would be to set up a greek organization on campus. This policy, although needed by some of the larger national chapters, would be the only way to stem the tide of fraternal organizations on campus.

The speaker's speech was a free-wheeling discussion of what is wrong with the gay community. This includes the way some people are too quick to embrace the gay lifestyle (GLS) and to ignore the needs of the gay community. The GLS is not making any progress in this direction and it is time to give the gay community a chance to work towards its goals. Once the gay community gets the chance to work, they will be able to make progress.

One way to support the gay community is to give them the opportunity to participate in activities that are not related to the gay lifestyle. This includes giving them a chance to participate in the gay community and to work towards making progress.
