University Set to Begin 123rd Year

Record Total of Students Expected; New UI President Stresses Economy

February 1 was pledge day for the University's 13,000-sorority members -- the day when college women in the United States and Canada pledge to the United Nations Universal Declaration of Human Rights. The University's 123rd academic year Monday, Sept. 19, opened with a student body of 13,012, an all-time high for the University.

Enrollment in the nation's schools and colleges is expected to total 58,600,000, an increase of 1.1 per cent over the 57,600,000 expected in the previous school year. The largest percentage increase, 5.7 per cent, is expected in the smaller institutions -- the nation's 1,900 two-year colleges.

While you were on vacation this summer, the Daily Ioway was keeping up with a number of things happening around the University and the city.

It was a quiet summer, as college cities settle in for the fall term. At least, that's what Daily Ioway editors say.

Here are some of the things that made news in The Daily Ioway this summer:

-- Student Body President Jim Rogall has been reelected to the position of Student Body President for the 1968-69 academic year.
-- The Johnnie Marquis House of President of the University of Iowa Town and Country Club will be held on Sept. 7.
-- The University of Iowa has been named one of the 100 best colleges in the country by U.S. News & World Report.
-- The University of Iowa has been named one of the 100 best colleges in the country by U.S. News & World Report.

Dormitory life hastens exodus to 'off-campus'

From the Chronicle of Higher Education

Many students feel dormitories are too impersonal, have too many rules, and lack personal development.

Life in dormitories is very different from home, where there are fewer rules, no academic pressure, and more personal freedom. But dorms are not without their benefits. Many students find that living in a dormitory helps them develop important life skills such as independence and self-reliance.

The Chronicle of Higher Education regularly publishes articles on the benefits and challenges of dormitory life. It notes that while dorms can be isolating, they also provide an opportunity for students to develop new relationships and learn valuable life skills.

The article argues that living in a dormitory can be a valuable experience that prepares students for the real world. Dorm life challenges students to manage their time and responsibilities, which are skills that will be important throughout their lives.

The article concludes that while dorms may not be the perfect environment for everyone, they provide a unique opportunity for personal growth and development. It encourages students to be open to the experience and to make the most of their time in dormitories.
‘Hoyakawa Society’ on One Campus — Crackdown on Protests Foreseen

By GARY K. HUDSON

WASHINGTN — Radicals have announced that the Hoyakawa Society, an independent, Associated Press -affiliated publication at Howard University, has shut down as of today. The society had been critical of the university administration, including the annual budget, the new president, and the faculty. The society was founded by a group of students who were unhappy with the direction of the university. They hoped to use the publication to express their concerns and to challenge the administration. However, the society’s latest issue, which included articles critical of the university, was withdrawn by the university administration.

The Hoyakawa Society had been publishing since 1932, and its closure marks the end of an era for the university. The society had been a source of information and a platform for student expression for many years, and its closure is likely to be met with sadness by many in the university community.

The university administration has not commented on the closure of the Hoyakawa Society, but it is clear that the society’s closure is a blow to the university’s efforts to maintain a diverse and vibrant campus culture. The university has been working to attract a diverse student body, and the Hoyakawa Society was an important part of that effort. The university administration has stated that it is committed to fostering a diverse and inclusive campus culture, and the closure of the Hoyakawa Society is likely to be seen as a setback in that effort.

The Hoyakawa Society was a unique and important voice on the Howard University campus. It will be missed by many students, faculty, and alumni who have been involved with the society over the years.

Iowa Secondary Faces Big Threat
by KEITH GELLEY

Last season the University of Iowa had been considered one of the top teams in the country. This year, however, the secondary defense is the strength of the team.

"Last year we had a very good secondary," head coach Hayden Fry said. "This year we have improved even more." Fry believes that the secondary is the key to the team's success.

The secondary is led by safety Tom Darnell, who had four interceptions last season. Also returning are cornerbacks Gary Lott and Jerry Johnson.

"They are a very good group," Fry said.

The secondary's success is due in part to the team's off-season conditioning program. "We have been working on strength and conditioning," Fry said. "The secondary is very well conditioned this year."}

New Defensive Backs Added to Defense

The Iowa defense, which suffered a major setback last year with the departure of All-American linebacker Tim Brown, has a new look this season.

"We have a lot of new faces," head coach Hayden Fry said. "It's been a tough transition." Fry believes that the new faces will bring a fresh perspective to the defense.

The most significant addition to the defense is safety Tom Darnell, who had four interceptions last season.

"He is a very good player," Fry said. "He will make a big impact."
President’s Advisers to Hold Vietnam Strategy Session

WASHINGTON — President Johnson’s foreign-policy advisers, including his top military and diplomatic aides, are in Washington for a new look at what strategy should be followed in Vietnam. A preliminary meeting of their experts was held recently in the White House.

A newly organized special task force is holding meetings daily and is expected to come to Washington in mid-March for a more formal session. A new look at the Vietnam strategy may be expected.

President’s Peace Policy

W. Roger constraints, is according to official sources, following his recent trip to Southeast Asia, where he met with President Ho Chi Minh and his associates to discuss the situation in Vietnam. Two new sessions are expected to be held by the task force in the next few weeks.

The task force is currently reviewing various options related to the Vietnam strategy, including the possible evacuation of American forces from South Vietnam.

A proposed plan to conclude a peace agreement without the involvement of South Vietnam is currently under consideration. It is not known if this plan is being reviewed by the task force.

The proposed plan is based on the assumption that the United States is losing the war in Vietnam, and that a negotiated settlement is the best way to end it.

The plan is expected to be presented to the task force for discussion in the next few weeks.

A new look at the Vietnam strategy may be expected, as the task force continues to review various options related to the situation.

A Year of Change
A Year of Challenge

A Letter from the Editor

In the September issue of Playboy magazine, the editors thereof present their second annual report from the "front lines of the sexual revolution" on America's college campuses -- this year extended to include social revolution. Iowa was ranked 11th out of a field of 23 schools "representing every major demographic area" of the United States.

The magazine says that the male to female ratio here is 3:2 and that the availability of women is "poor." The administration is "becoming liberal," recently extended parietals, etc.

Of Iowa's "campus ambience," the magazine said, "Cantfield personality ameliorated by obsession with the arts."

The campus male is described as a "form boy with the great American novel in his bib overall," and the campus female as a "Patti Page (who) sings songs of the Jefferson Airplane."

Iowa fares fairly well under Playboy's extracurricular heading -- "Lots of cohabitation, little formal dating and partying; lowa 'is full of surprises."

That's how Playboy sees us. You may not agree with the magazine's description of the campus male and female and maybe not even agree with the magazine's description of the campus female -- "poor." You just get so you groove on the place, yet you can't really rattle off specific reasons, except maybe a few. Like the fact that Iowa has a real up and coming black studies program -- at the point that a degree program in the area may soon be available -- and nobody had to burn any buildings to get it. Or like the fact that one doesn't really have to look too hard to find action in L.C.

Iowa is not only full of surprises. This year it's full of promises as well. The University starts off the fall with a new president, Willard "Sonny" Boyd. No one knows for sure what he will do, but he's friendly and informal and, best of all, he listens. He is backed up by some new faces, like greatest Ray Heffner, and some old faces, like Philip Hubbard, vice president and dean of academic affairs.

Iowa's student body president, Jim Sutton, has resigned to take the executive vice-presidency of the National Student Association in Washington, D.C., so as soon as someone figures out how to choose or to elect another president, the Iowa student body will get another chance at "dynamic" representation.

Of course, the University does have its problems. Controversy over the Code of Life -- the "lawbook" that covers students -- will no doubt continue this year. The Code that caused so much consternation last fall has been changed, but no doubt there will be many who still won't be happy with it.

There are many who say that the University's retention of most of the Code provisions concerning disruptive activities will result in more disruptive activities -- compliments of Students for a Democratic Society or some other group.

Another one of Iowa's problems is the second session of the 63rd Iowa General Assembly. Many members of that group are not avid supporters of the University, its students, its faculty, and some of its administrators, and consequently they too get a little "disruptive" - but so far not to the extent that they have violated the Code.

However, in the last session of the Legislature, some members got "disruptive" enough when appropriation time came around that the University is facing no small budgetary problems this year.

But Iowa is not all play and no work. Academically, the University ranks high and pulls down a lot of national respect. Although statistics may show that today's students are spending more time in the streets and less time in the books, this may change. One thing Boyd has said is that a student doesn't really learn until he's challenged to do so.

So anyway you look at it, this is a year of change and challenge for Iowa and you're damn lucky to be a part of it.

WELCOME TO IOWA!

Today's student faces a complicated, fast-moving world on campus. He has to work harder, learn more, program his time better to meet today's academic standards. For many, college life is a first experience in controlling and budgeting finances.

With more than 37 years in caring for the banking needs of freshmen and upperclassmen, the First National Bank knows the student's problems. We take a personal interest in our student customers and orient our services to their needs.

Convenience, for instance. We're located just one block from campus. We have a sidewalk teller on Dubuque Street that can save you time when cashing a check or making deposits and withdrawals. Our drive-in office and free customer parking lot at the corner of Linn and Washington is easy to enter and exit. A separate Installment Loan Department with its own private entrance is located next to the main bank on Washington.

If you are looking for a bank that will go all the way to make your campus life more comfortable, bank at the First National.
Phase I Recreation Plan Underway –

The Field House Gets Face Lift

Harry Ostrander, manager of recreational activities, said that the improved basketball courts would also be readily converted to 72 badminton courts, with each badminton court being 8 feet wide by 18 feet long.

The University's Totem material, which is popular among athletes, recreational and physical education departments, will be used in Phase Two of the Field House.

One of the most noticeable changes that fans of the pro-men's basketball team will notice will be the replacement of the former di rkt and make the first level's floor. Because physical education changes the upper floor into five feet of the former floor. Furthermore, the flooring will be replaced

Nine Officers Get Peace Officer Status –

Some Campus Police Able to Arrest

BY KAREN GOOD

Campus safety has increased primarily due to the University's Campus Safety Act which was passed by the legislature earlier this summer. The act allows for the designation of peace officers on campus.

Under the law, when an arrest is required, a campus officer will be called to the scene. If the arrest cannot be made, the officer will seek the assistance of the police department.

Prior to the act, campus safety officers were only permitted to perform their duties
within the University limits. However, with the new law, officers are able to make arrests outside of the University campus.

The University
police department has begun training officers in the new duties. However, the real test will come when an arrest is required.

The new law also includes a provision that allows for the designation of part-time officers.

The changes are expected to improve safety on campus. By reducing the number of officers needed
for an arrest,
the police department will be able to respond more quickly to incidents.

We like to do things by the book

Hawkeye Bookstore is part of a vanishing breed of bookstores that strives to meet the increasing book needs of the University student. We don't try to impress you with a fancy storefront or pressure you into buying books you might not need. We just try to give you the best possible service in textbooks.

You will find that we try to offer as many used textbooks as possible. We do this to help students save money. If you wish to buy a new textbook, that's fine with us also.

On occasion you will find that we may not have the textbook you want in stock. Don't let this upset you. We will order the book from the publisher and have him rush it to our store. We will notify you when the book arrives so that you will get maximum use out of your book.

Should you drop a course in the first three weeks of classes, we will gladly give you a full refund for the book upon surrender of the textbook and the cash register receipt.

Stop into Hawkeye Bookstore when you arrive in Iowa City. Let us help you in selecting the right books for the right courses. This is our way of helping you enjoy your stay in Iowa City and starting you off in the University on the right foot.

Stop reading as they did 100 years ago.

109 years ago, we all learned to read the way you're reading right now. One word at a time. 300-400 words a minute. And in 1899 you could keep up with what was on. But not in 1969.

In today's information explosion world, we all have to read faster and better just to keep current. Millions upon millions of words in textbooks, journals, newspapers, advertisements, magazines, reports... it's endless.

That's do to a new kind of reading called Reading Dynamics. Betty Wood discovered a way to read much better in 1948. She was a Utah schoolteacher who learned the basic principles and better reading and unburdened her discovery in a reading course called Reading Dynamics. Since 1949, she's had more than 500,000 people read all walks of life have become Dynamic Readers. Students, educators, citizens, businessmen, homemakers, professionals, people, members of Congress.

When you read dynamically, you don't skip, or scan. You don't use any mechanics or gadgets. You have to read whole groups of words, not just one word at a time. You learn how to pace yourself according to the material you read. You read faster and better. Comprehend and retain more.

No matter how slowly you now read, your reading ability can increase 47 times, the average rate of development for a Reading Dynamics graduate, some have increased 100 times, or more. You'll be spending 200 hours or less on outside reading assignments that took you 300 hours last semester. You'll read Time magazine in 30 minutes, a novel in a single evening. For certain are you of your success in the course if that you don't keep triple your beginning reading efficiency, which means speed and comprehension, the course isn't for you.

U. of I. Junior Lisa Margulis took the course last year in Chicago. I finished the course reading all three letters with a comprehensive test of 90% plus, she states, Reading Dynamics has helped me enormously," says Reading Dynamics graduate Senator Wilmer Provense of Wisconsin. We have thousands of similar comments from people who have taken the course at any of our 150 institutes throughout the United States, Canada, and Europe.

The best way to learn about Reading Dynamics is to come to one of our free, one hour orientation sessions. Here you'll see a documentary film, learning Washington Congressmen who have taken the course, and University of Texas students and faculty who became dynamic readers. You'll see an actual demonstration of Reading Dynamics. We'll answer all your questions concerning the course, including our Lifetime Membership and positive guarantee of tuition refund. You'll learn how to increase your reading speed from 1 to 10 times, or more, with improved comprehension and greater success.

The hour that you spend with us could be an hour that changes your life. What we're really offering you is the opportunity to have more free time for additional reading and for other activities. What's more, you'll discover how much pleasure and satisfaction you can get out of the reading you do.

Our schedule of free, exciting hour Orientation sessions is shown above. Accept our invitation to attend, with no obligation in mind. If you desire further information, complete and mail the coupon below. For limited information concerning Reading Dynamics, the world-famous reading course, call 35I-8660.

University Equals Cultural Potpourri
Ul's Culture Scene Rates First in State

Cultural activities are very much alive and lively in Iowa City. In fact, because the University of Iowa is the center of a large metropolitan area, there are a number of cultural events throughout the year. Iowa City is the cultural center of Iowa—which may be of great surprise to many people.

The University's fine arts program is an excellent contribution to the University life. In contrast to the typical university, the University of Iowa offers a wide spectrum of cultural events to the students and the general public. The Union is a large center of activity, and is one of the largest student-run buildings in the state. The Union contains a variety of meeting rooms,低廉 theaters, and an excellent library. These events are held in the Main Lounge, although some are held in MacArthur Auditorium.

The music is always an experience in itself, and it can be enjoyed by both students and professionals, both close to it.

Producers are also involved in the other art forms here. The University has long been a major contributor to the overall entertainment scene. And UI's performance has improved greatly in the past year or so. The film festival is one of the best in the nation—and one of the most profitable. This is also the first year for the University's fine arts complex.

As was the case last year, some very exciting new buildings were the ground floor. This is a familiar phrase, but the Union is the most significant. If sufficient money is available, the community plans much larger scale productions. UI, the largest campus in the state, is rented to groups from the University and the Student Senate. The committee presents a variety of programs to appeal to the many interests taking place in the Union during a normal week. The largest campus organization meeting space is the Student Activities Center. This area is rented to groups by the University, which also provides music and entertainment, dances, work space and equipment, a U.S. Dependent service, a depository for the library, and a variety of art supplies sales. The committee also schedules music and other events. Nearly 26 student organizations have their main offices in the Student Activities Center as the ground floor.

UI's Library School Looks to the Future

The School of Library Science is "training a generation of students for a changing world of librarianship," according to Frederic Weisman, director of the school. We are trying to select the librarian who is an interpreter of the material," Weisman said. The role of the librarian is one of an integrated role - making the media to the library customer. The librarian must also be people people oriented, not just book oriented, he said.

Establishment of the University's School of Library Science in 1965 marked the start of the first master's degree program in Iowa and it is still the only master's degree program to library science in Iowa. The library school is already admitting candidates on a "selective admissions" basis. Weisman said, with about 20% of the students applying granted admission.

Scholarship requirements for admission to the school include:

- A degree from an accredited college or university, with a minimum 1.5 grade point average on a 4-point scale.
- Satisfactory scores on the Graduate Record Examination Aptitude Test.

At least one year of college-level foreign language study.

Although degrees are offered only on the master's level, junior and senior are permitted to enroll in up to six courses in the school.

One, considered strictly a woman's degree, library work now offers career for men, too. Half of the people who entered the profession are men. But long ago the ratio was one man out of every two.

"The modern librarian's various role range from the execution of bookkeeping systems to specialized population, research and experimental "bibliotherapy" in urban mental hospitals; to systems analysis in automated, computerized library cataloguing programs; to work with the mentally handicapped in rehabilitation centers," according to a School of Library Science catalogue.

Weisman said many of "this school's graduates begin work immediately after graduation, some and assistant school librarians, some college and university librarians, twenty-four of the first 31 students who received M.A. degrees in Library Science worked places needed also.

The School of Library Science will offer the majority of the time, according to Weisman, the occupational library is a technological advancement which has long been used in the future.

"It is said Weisman said, is preparing the librarian for the changing world of librarianship."

A Member of a Fallout Tradition?

Why do I bring up such an old subject again? Rather it was the tradition itself that interested me. Jeff Coogler, who graduated last year, was the co-president of the Student Body, a position that he had held for three years. He also was a member of the Student Senate and the Student Activities Board. He was a member of several campus organizations and was active in the political scene on campus. Jeff Coogler was a member of the University of Iowa's class of 1961. He was the first member of the class to graduate from the University. He was also a member of the Phi Delta Theta fraternity, and was active in the campus political scene. Jeff Coogler was a member of the University of Iowa's class of 1961. The University of Iowa offers students an opportunity to work toward law and social work credentials. The program is based on the study of law in the context of society and is a degree in law enforcement and correction. Robert Calvert, professor of sociology and director of the Bureau, says the program has a focus on crime and social control. The program offers an M.A. degree in law enforcement and correction, awarded by the University of Iowa, and a teaching credential in public administration. It also provides a major in sociology, with an emphasis on social work, and a minor in criminal justice.

A traditional job on campus that has developed in recent years for students is the work of the Student Senate. The Student Senate is the student government of the University of Iowa, and it is composed of three senators elected by the students of the university. The senators serve for one-year terms and are responsible for the formulation and implementation of policies and programs that affect the students of the university. The senators have the power to create and amend the bylaws of the Senate, to appoint the directors of the various student organizations, and to appoint the members of the Board of Directors. The senators also have the power to conduct investigations and to bring charges against any student organization or member of the Senate.

Do-Nothing Senates May Just Be History

After the election, the Senate began hearing a closer relationship with the Student Senate and the Student Activities Board, which is a voluntary, student-run organization that provides services to the students of the university. The Senate has shown more activity in recent years, and what will happen in the future?

Campus Security is Ul's Predator

A majority of the work force of the University Campus Security will not be on the job as a result of being directed by Director WILLIAM L. BINNEY, shown in the photo at left, to be on strike.

Campus Security provides security and protection and property, and investigations, in cooperation with regular police enforcement agencies, as well as providing special services on University property. Security personnel perform a variety of tasks, including the supervision of) central control, access and emergency systems, and during special events, guard entries to University facilities and provide assistance to faculty and students. These personnel are represented by SEIU Local 700.

Security personnel are sworn in as peace officers at the University of Iowa, which was authorized by the Iowa Legislature in 1970. This legislation allows for the University to have和平 enforcement officers on its campus.

In 1986, the University Board of Regents approved the University's police department in order to determine whether a police force was needed on the campus. The board also made the decision to approve the hiring of 12 new officers, which were then hired in the fall of 1986. A Store Designed Especially for You!

One of the most modern bookstores in the Nation is located in Iowa City (and has been for forty-seven years): Iowa Book & Supply Co. Designed as an elegant shopping environment for students at the University of Iowa, we at Iowa Book believe in service and quality merchandise. We believe in personalized service; many of our most industrious employees are students like yourself. We stand behind all of our products, because we know them to be first-rate. When in a hurry you may rush into our store and rush out with your purchase almost immediately, but we invite all our customers to browse at their leisure when time permits. Air-conditioned, spacious aisles, some 10,000 supply items upstairs and some 20,000 book titles downstairs, Iowa Book is the right place to shop for your college needs—all in one stop. We are just across the street from Old Capitol. Stop by and see us.

The University Community Deserves The Best!
Every Book for Every Course

We have always prided ourselves on having "every book for every course." All required texts are listed and specially grouped by study area. Our five-foot wide aisles insure your browsing comfort. Interested book area managers are always on hand to find anything you want (their main job is to pamper you!). Shucks, we even have a fireplace in our downstairs book department. We will give you a distinctive yellow shopping bag to conveniently carry away your purchases - the bags are becoming almost a status symbol.

Art and Engineering

Art and engineering supplies are too often hidden from sight. In our store we have the widest selection of art and engineering materials for you to choose from, and we have placed them out in the open in specially-made, paneled fixtures. All items in our art and engineering department are at the fingertip level, and our art manager is well equipped with professional knowledge to help you select the proper equipment and materials for your needs.

Supplies for Every Need

Our main floor has every supply item you desire; pencils, paper, note-books, official University athletic equipment, and hundreds of other needed items. And if you are looking for desk accessories and room decorations (we have a fine colored print file, see photo at left, we have them. Eight check-out lanes are provided for your convenience. Courteous store personnel are always willing to serve you, whatever your need.

UI Hospitals Provide 'Unique' Ambulance

University Hospitals is known for its unique ambulance service in the region. The service is a one-of-a-kind with four full-time mechanics on duty, ensuring that the vehicles are always ready for transportation.

Over the past year—beginning July 1, 1968, and ending June 30, 1969—the service has transported 5,512 patients and has covered nearly 90,000 miles in training benefit by seeing a patient cared for at the hospital's facilities available at the University Hospitals.

The service, however, still operates at capacity.

Today's Fleet:

- Light blue cars, which have a driver and a nurse—about 75 percent of the patients are transported all in one trip.
- Red cars, which have a driver and a nurse—about 25 percent of the patients are transported in one trip.
- The light blue cars, which have a nurse and a doctor, are used for transportation, and the University Hospitals’ state gasoline tax.
- The red cars, which have a driver and a nurse, are used for transportation, and the University Hospitals’ state gasoline tax.

Meet the Willard Boyds:

"Our Lives Will Not Change Much," Mrs. Boyd Says of Family's New Role

As Boyd Settles In

When she is not busy practicing law, Mrs. Boyd is the one who does things, who organizes and gets things going. She does not bother with the little things, she says, and will only perform them if she has someone to assist with the job. Although she may not be looking forward to leaving her office as president of the Mertin community, she says, "I am not sure what I am going to do when I get out of the office." She enjoys the life of a politician, however, and says that she will miss the opportunity to continue her work in the community. She is looking forward to spending more time with her family, who she says are her true love. She is also excited about the prospect of working on her book, "The Boyd Family," which she plans to write about her life and her experiences as a politician. She says she is looking forward to spending more time with her husband, who she says is her best friend. She is also looking forward to spending more time with her children and grandchildren, who she says are her true love. She is looking forward to spending more time with her friends and family, who she says are her true love. She is also looking forward to spending more time with her husband, who she says is her best friend.
Chemistry Department Plans Reorganization

A move to better service and more people in the chemistry department has led to plans to reorganize the department. The reorganization will involve the creation of several new positions.

The new positions will include a full-time chemist, who will be in charge of the development of the chemistry curriculum, and a part-time assistant chemist, who will be responsible for the teaching of the chemistry courses.

The reorganization will also include the creation of a new position for a full-time chemist, who will be in charge of the development of the chemistry curriculum, and a part-time assistant chemist, who will be responsible for the teaching of the chemistry courses.

A Word About Your Textbooks, Your . . .

Tools of the Trade

In considering the cost of a college education students are often prone to place undue emphasis upon the cost of textbooks. Yet a recent survey of college expenses indicates textbooks represent less than 4% of the total cost of a four year course in college.

To a college student text books are "tools of the trade." A carpenter, a brick mason, an automobile mechanic, a radio and television repair man, a skilled surgeon and all other categories of craftsmen and professional men own and cherish "Tools of the Trade." Without these, craftsmen and professional men would be "babes in the woods."

You and/or your parents will spend up to $10,000.00 on your college education. Four percent of $10,000.00 adds up to $400.00. That $400.00 represents one of the best investments of your entire college career. Do you want to be a "babe in the woods" during your four years in college by withholding any part of the $400.00 down payment on your future?

When you own your copy of each required text in the courses you pursue, you can annotate important facts on the margins. Years later you may have occasion to refer to your personal notes and the factual printed matter therein. To you, in your professional career, that textbook becomes a valuable reference guide.

When you have completed a course, evaluate its usefulness and that of its basic text content. If the text book has possibilities of assisting you in your professional career, place it in your personal library. If it holds no promise of assistance, carry it down to your favorite book store and offer it for sale. Your book dealer will pay you its full market value and make it available for another Iowan who will replace you in that course next year.

The writing, publishing and distribution of text books is an expensive operation, and potential sales are limited to a very small percentage of American consumers. Contrary to the common opinion of laymen, nobody gets rich in the process. First, the author-usually a professor-puts in many hours and considerable expense preparing his manuscript. In most cases his basic philosophy is not one of commercial gain. Second, the publisher who accepts the manuscript, assumes a calculated risk. Some books click and show a margin of profit to author and publisher. Many others fall flat upon their faces commercially. Third, consider the book retailer. His margin of profits is fixed by the publisher. Except in rare instances that margin is 20% of retail. With the exception of food products—which reflect 30 to 50 turn-overs of inventory per year as compared to 2 turn-overs for book dealers—no other category of retail merchandise has such a low margin.

The thousands of World War II veterans who attended college under the terms of the G. I. Bill were completely equipped with ALL the text books required for their respective courses of study. No other group of students has ever been so completely equipped. The academic records and professional achievements of the G. I. group stands head and shoulders above the American average or the record and achievements of total graduates of any institution or of the members of any fraternity or learned society.

THE BEST AND CHEAPEST INVESTMENT YOU WILL MAKE DURING FOUR YEARS IN COLLEGE IS YOUR INVESTMENT IN BOOKS. VISIT YOUR BOOK DEALER OFTEN DURING YOUR STAY ON THE CAMPUS. HE IS STANDING BY EAGER AND WILLING TO HELP YOU ACQUIRE "THE TOOLS OF YOUR TRADE."

Yours for a better U of I,
Sincerely,

An Embarrassing Scoop

The short-living Daily News

This issue is one of only two published under the name of the "Iowa Daily News." The newly-formed student publishing company had just bought The Daily Iowan from its former owners, but couldn't decide whether to keep the old name or adopt a new one. In this issue, the last of that school year, both names are used, as the first issue of the beginning of the next school year in September. It was reserved for the third issue and "The Daily Iowan" has been with the university since then, continuously.

University's Mascot Is One Very Large Bird

Being a hard core fan has its advantages, particularly if you are the only one out and bored at the University of Iowa game.

The main advantage is being forced to sit in the bleachers, green without a ticket, though the bleachers are better than far out in the distance. The main advantage is that you get to watch the Iowa Hawkeye football team.

Hawkeye football is a hit with the fans who get into the bleachers, green without a ticket. Harley, the University's mascot, is a charmer. He is a large bird, green without a ticket, and he is always at the University football game.

Harley was hatched in 1948, the same year the University of Iowa was founded. He is the first bird to represent the University in college or national tournaments.

Program Divided into Six Leagues—
Harry Ostrander Heads Intramurals

When intramural competition started again in the fall, the program will be headed by Harry Ostrander, who replaced the former director, Otto Seifert, who resigned last spring.

The intramural program is divided into six leagues. They are the professional championships, the social Fraternities, intramurals, Rienow (the Hillcrest League), Yale and Phi Kappa Psi, which won the mascot contest at the University. The intramural championships are divided into six leagues.

Each of the six leagues has a different number of teams and there are not too many. The number of universities is not too large. The University of Iowa has six teams.

Each team is divided into six leagues, consisting of a variety of sports. To win a larger championship, each team from each league must complete a point standing higher than the other league in the league.

The sports included in the point ratings are tennis, baseball, women's basketball, men's basketball, handball, table tennis, wrestling, and track.

Other sports are bowling, handball doubles, indoor doubles, indoor singles, indoor doubles, indoor singles, and track.

'69-A Year
Of Potential

There is little doubt that Iowa's basketball season has the potential to become outstanding. That brings to the forefront the question, which was Coach Miller's problem last year, and probably Miller's major obstacle to even more this year.

After being hailed as one of the finest coaches in the country and then deserted with uncontrollable vacillations, there is no question now that the Hawkeyes are in the final season for the NCAAs. And they are back again.

This year, on the other hand, the Hawkeyes always seemed to be second best under Coach McGilmer, and in the final season for the NCAAs, they will have to be better than ever if they want to be included in the final season for the NCAAs.

All five starters except Ralph Miller were laid off by a good group of substitutes and of course former players, and it would be a surprise if there are any real problems in the final season for the NCAAs.

The Hawks always seemed to be second best under Coach McGilmer, and in the final season for the NCAAs, they will have to be better than ever if they want to be included in the final season for the NCAAs.

RUSH WEEK is exactly that

Despite the differences of each new school year, many things remain consistent. For example, the same social events are held, the same destinations are visited by each sorority and fraternity, the same parties are thrown by each fraternity and sorority, and the same rituals are carried out by each organization.

The end of classes, with breaks for vacations and finals, is near. Rush is here again, and the excitement of meeting new people and participating in social events is a natural part of the college experience. Rush is always a highlight of the year, and it provides an opportunity for students to make new friends and learn more about the social and cultural aspects of college life.

Greek Life

The University of Iowa has a strong Greek life program, with over 30 fraternities and sororities on campus. These organizations provide a variety of social events, service opportunities, and leadership positions for students. The Greek system is beneficial in many ways, as it provides a sense of community and belonging.

Stress Being Put on Service-

Greek Stereotype Undergoes Change

While Greek life has been characterized by fraternities and sororities engaging in partying and social activities, the focus has changed in recent years. The Greek Life office has implemented various initiatives to promote community service and social responsibility among its members.

These initiatives include the annual Greek Week, which features a variety of service projects and volunteer opportunities. Additionally, many fraternities and sororities have implemented new policies to discourage partying and promote responsible behavior.

The Greek Life program continues to evolve, and it is clear that the stereotype of Greek life as solely focused on partying and social activities is no longer accurate. Instead, Greek life is now recognized for its contributions to community service and social responsibility.
Exam Service and Test Scores

For those who have ever spent considerable time trying to locate an item that was yet usable amidst a mountain of clutter, Jack E. White, administrative assistant at the University's Examination and Test Scores Service, has an answer.

Results of examinations served at the Examination Service are arranged alphabetically by numbers of students who took each test.

The Instructor's Proctor form is prepared to score any kind of test. The form must be given to the Examination Service one week before the test is administered. During test time, test copies must be in the proctor's office.

The instructor specifies the location of items and the form of answer sheet.

The instructor pronounces the test after it is typed. The test forms may be obtained in hours before testing.

After multiple choice tests have been administered, the answer sheets are returned to the Examination Service to be machine scored at the University Computer Center.

Items for analysis are arranged alphabetically by numbers of students who chose each item. The analysis provides information on the percentage of students who answered correctly.

The Examination Service also serves as a test center for the Educational Testing Service (ETS), Princeton, N.J. Tests administered under ETS include the Graduate Record Examination (GRE), Law School Admission Test (LSAT), Advanced Placement Test in Biology (AP Bio), Test of English as a Foreign Language (TOEFL), Graduate Record Test in Foreign Language (GFT), and the National Teacher Examination (NTE). Tests are ordered in writing, enclosing checks.

The Examination Service also administers the Medical College Admission Test (MCAT), the National League of Nursing (NLN), and the Dental Hygiene Admissions Test (DHAT). These are from the Psychological Corporation.

We like to do things by the book

Hawkeye Bookstore is part of a vanishing breed of bookstores that strives to meet the increasing book needs of the University student. We don't try to impress you with a fancy storefront or pressure you into buying books you might not need. We just try to give you the best possible service in textbooks.

You will find that we try to offer as many used textbooks as possible. We do this to help students save money. If you wish to buy a new textbook, that's fine with us also.

On occasion you will find that we may not have the textbook you want in stock. Don't let this upset you. We will order the book from the publisher and have him rush it to our store. We will notify you when the book arrives so that you will get maximum use out of your book.

Should you drop a course in the first three weeks of classes, we will gladly give you a full refund for the book upon surrender of the textbook and the cash register receipt.

Stop in at Hawkeye Bookstore when you arrive in Iowa City. Let us help you in selecting the right books for the right courses. This is our way of helping you enjoy your stay in Iowa City and starting you off in the University on the right foot.

Married Housing—
3 Levels of Luxury

Married students at the University have three choices of different levels of luxury when moving into married student housing for the 1969-70 academic year. Last year there were 155 apartments in the furnished apartments, 136 in the unfurnished apartments and 86 in the efficiency apartments. This year there are 3,152 apartments to choose from and more are on the way even open to single students this fall.

The most luxurious apartments are those in the Parklawn apartments which are occupied by married students. These are furnished apartments for five or six students. Permits are issued to members of the department of anthropology who have been at least two years in the field. Six apartments are maintained abroad after World War II to meet the needs of married students. These apartments are furnished in accordance with the guidelines of the department of anthropology. Each apartment is furnished with a living room with furniture, a kitchen with appliances, and a bathroom with shower and toilet.

Furnished apartments are available for married students and include kitchen, beds, and furniture. The monthly rent for these apartments is $115 per month, and there is a $25 deposit required for each apartment. These apartments are available for the academic year only, and members of the anthropology department who have been in the field for at least two years are eligible to rent them.

Unfurnished apartments are available for married students who wish to furnish their own apartments. These apartments are available for the academic year only, and members of the anthropology department who have been in the field for at least two years are eligible to rent them. The monthly rent for these apartments is $100 per month, and there is a $25 deposit required for each apartment.

Efficiency apartments are available for married students who wish to live alone. These apartments are available for the academic year only, and members of the anthropology department who have been in the field for at least two years are eligible to rent them. The monthly rent for these apartments is $87 per month, and there is a $25 deposit required for each apartment.

Sociology, Anthropology Gets Highest Enrollment

The Sociology and Anthropology department at the University will experience the largest number of new enrollments this fall if projected enrollment figures from the registrar are accurate.

Some 1,050 students have been registered in the sociology and anthropology department, according to Dr. Bill Wirth, chairman of the department. This figure is up more than 200 per cent from the 500 students enrolled in sociology and anthropology last year.

Additional of faculty is also reportedly increasing in the field of the department. In fact, there are 23 students enrolled in sociology and anthropology this year. The department expects to have 25 students enrolled in the field this fall.

The Sociology and Anthropology department at the University is one of the largest departments in the College of Letters and Science. The department offers a wide variety of courses in sociology, including social theory, social psychology, social institutions, and social change. The department also offers a Master of Arts degree in sociology.

In UI's Plans

In the 1968-69 academic year, approximately 2,500 students and 1,150 faculty and staff members lived in the University Park apartments, about 3,000 parking spaces were available. The facility and student population increased in the fall of 1969, and 1,900 spaces were available for students.

According to Lyle Shannon, the director of residence halls, there are 192 of these apartments available for married students. Although there are 192 of these apartments available for married students, only 50 are currently being used by married students.

The 24 members of the department of anthropology, who have been in the field for at least two years, are eligible to rent these apartments. The monthly rent for these apartments is $115 per month, and there is a $25 deposit required for each apartment.

These apartments are furnished with a living room with furniture, a kitchen with appliances, and a bathroom with shower and toilet. The apartments are available for the academic year only, and members of the anthropology department who have been in the field for at least two years are eligible to rent them.

The Sociology and Anthropology department at the University will experience the largest number of new enrollments this fall if projected enrollment figures from the registrar are accurate.

Some 1,050 students have been registered in the sociology and anthropology department, according to Dr. Bill Wirth, chairman of the department. This figure is up more than 200 per cent from the 500 students enrolled in sociology and anthropology last year.

Additional of faculty is also reportedly increasing in the field of the department. In fact, there are 23 students enrolled in sociology and anthropology this year. The department expects to have 25 students enrolled in the field this fall.

The Sociology and Anthropology department at the University is one of the largest departments in the College of Letters and Science. The department offers a wide variety of courses in sociology, including social theory, social psychology, social institutions, and social change. The department also offers a Master of Arts degree in sociology.

One thing's for sure—there are a lot of wheels on campus

The irony of campus travel is that when you ride your bike you usually lock your wheels to keep them from being stolen. But if you fail to pay your Iowa City parking tickets on your car, it might well get locked too—but by the local police department. Then you can't even drive it off, at least until you pay your fine.
DORM LIFE:

mixtures of good and bad

It would seem that with 5,800 students, dorm life would be full of drama. In many instances, however, the conditions that would be expected to exist in dorms were not the ones students found there. The dorms were not crowded, the food was good and the atmosphere was nice.

It is true that there were problems, however. Sometimes the dorms were not as clean as they needed to be. Sometimes the food was not as good as it could have been. Sometimes the atmosphere was not as pleasant as it could have been.

But, apparently, it is a good place to live. A number of students have moved into dorms and enjoyed the experience. They have learned to be more tolerant of other people, and they have made many friends.

There are also many advantages to living in a dorm. One is the convenience of having someone else do the cooking. Another is the fact that you can meet people from other colleges who have come to Iowa City for the same reason. And last, but not least, you can save money by living in a dorm.

There are also disadvantages to living in a dorm. One is the lack of privacy. Another is the fact that you may not be able to have as much freedom as you would like. And last, but not least, you may not be able to have as much fun as you would like.

In conclusion, dorm life is a mixed bag. There are both good and bad things about it. It is up to you to decide whether it is worth the effort.

Paul Anderson, a student at the University of Iowa, said about his dorm that it was "a great place to live. I have made many friends there and I have been able to save money by living there."

On the other hand, another student, John Smith, said that he did not like living in a dorm. He said that it was "a terrible place to live. I have made no friends there and I have not been able to save money by living there."

In short, dorm life is a matter of personal preference. It is up to you to decide whether it is worth the effort.
Concern for Balance Between Residents, Nonresidents—
Grad Dean Wants No Tuition Differential

There should be no tuition differential on the basis of residency to the University and in the undergraduate program, according to Dean C. Spriestersbach, dean of the Graduate College and vice president for research.

The present tuition level is $23 per credit hour for full-time graduate students from Iowa, $33 per semester for undergraduate students, and $100 per semester for nonresident graduate and professional students.

"We want the best and most talented students to seek our undergraduate programs and carry out our research," said Dean Spriestersbach.

"We also want the best and most talented students to seek our graduate programs and carry out our research."

Dean Spriestersbach said that the College had been and is now recruiting graduate students to keep them abreast of the times. Without these high caliber students the University would have difficulty recruiting and keeping top notch faculty.

Within the University's Graduate College, student budgets range from an average of $4,000 per student to an average of $12,000 per student, he said, and it is the basis used to determine the necessary balance for residents and nonresidents.

"Graduate students have two great impacts on the total student enrollment," Spriestersbach said. "One is the financial support for graduate students in keeping them in this University and the other is the intellectual support in keeping them abreast of the times."

Dean Spriestersbach emphasized that graduate students are more important in graduate programs than in undergraduate programs.

"The problem of enrollment continues to be one where the concern is how many people already admitted will have to be cut back before they come," he said. "In 1968, 940 students were admitted graduate students; in 1969, 900; in 1970, 800; and in 1971, 700."

Dean Spriestersbach explained that the number of students has been reduced because of the great need to keep track of what is going to graduate programs.

Within the University's Graduate College, 3,000 students are being educated; about half of these will be in graduate programs, particularly because of the reduced number of students.

In 1968, graduate student enrollment at the University was 1,460; in 1969, it was 1,380; in 1970, 1,200; and in 1971, 1,100.

"There are several factors that go into graduate education," said Dean Spriestersbach. "The first is the leadership of the University College in keeping the graduate student interested in keeping up-to-date in their field."

"We don't recruit faculty only from Spring. We know the number of students is concerned for the graduate and professional level, but the fact that the University government should accept an arbitrary number significant, perhaps one or two students of the total support graduate education represents maturity of the students."
The Joys of Homecoming

Homecoming at the University means more than old grads returning to campus. It is a week filled with memories, activities and a lot of fun for everyone.

The week will be like no other that has preceded it. Homecoming week this year should exceed college life that remains today.

For a week before the Homecoming football game, which is the highlight of the week, Greek and independent housing units will compete to get you to buy an engraved charm or to compete for Homecoming queen.

The dashed-out units will compete with each other in a contest to see who will win a major trophy.

Another Iowa Homecoming week that is popular is the Miami University of Iowa. Earlier in the week before the football game a queen pageant is held at the Union. The candidates, representing sorority residence halls, are introduced to a panel of judges in original attire prepared by the candidate's own sorority association. The judges select five ranked at the pageant. These five votes are then voted on by the main residence halls in the center.

The badges, which are usually designed by a student and worn by the candidates, are given to the student with the most votes.

This year the winner of the Homecoming queen, Miss Iowa of 1969, is being awarded by the candidate's sorority. The badges, which are usually designed by a student and worn by the candidates, are given to the student with the most votes.

The badge is designed by the candidate's sorority and the badge is worn by the candidate's sorority. The badges, which are usually designed by a student and worn by the candidates, are given to the student with the most votes.

One of the major highlights of the week is the Homecoming football game. The University of Iowa will face the University of Michigan in the football game. The game is scheduled to be played on Saturday night at the football stadium.

When the gates roll around, University alumni will head back to Iowa City to attend the football game and some games. The Saturday night football game usually sees about a 100,000 people through the gates.

The night football games are a tradition bound. The Homecoming football game usually sees about a 100,000 people through the gates.

The Homecoming football game is a big event of the week.

Computers on the Move

One of the newest courses of study offered by the University is a 3-year B.S. degree in Computer Science. Computer science is a rapidly growing field. It is concerned with the study of computer systems, and the theory of computation. It is the science concerned with the design and analysis of algorithms and computer systems. Thus, a person can enter the field without a thesis. The degree is awarded to those who have achieved the following: successful completion of course work, written comprehensive examination, and completion of a computer science project. The computer science program is a part of the Department of Mathematics and Statistics.

Information practical, computer science is concerned with the design and implementation of programs and algorithms. It is concerned with problem-solving methods and programming techniques. It is concerned with the design and analysis of computer systems. It is concerned with the design and analysis of algorithms. It is concerned with the design and analysis of computer programs. UI Responds to Students

It takes an ‘activist’ personality to be a part of the program.

Enrollment has become a race for a growing number of residents of the University community, and the Accreditation Program is a result of misunderstandings about student residence.

As ASP members have said, it takes an ‘activist’ personality to be a part of the program. For 10 days it has been a torment of finding beds and kinds of stable housing. By the end of the fall quarter, most of the ASP members have dealt with several problems, from academic to housing. The ASP program has dealt with several issues, such as student housing, academic policies, and social issues.

The ASP program is initiated at 150 per cent of the current index to students. This index has been set by the state board of education and will be reviewed in the fall of 1967. The board has set a new area of concern for the ASP program, and it is in this area that the ASP program will be reviewed.

The ASP program is a new form of government, and it is the only one in the state that has been initiated by students. The ASP program is a result of a new movement in student government, and it is a step forward in the development of student rights.

For more information on the ASP program, contact the ASP office located on the University campus.

UI's Big Plans for Big Buildings

Need More Academic Area; Will Take $126 Million

The University has plans for a $126 million dollar academic building program spanning the next 10 years. The long-range plan has been developed to help the University catch up with present academic space deficits and to keep up with future enrollment growth and space needs.

Conservatively an average of 300 square feet of academic space is needed for each student. This figure has resulted from higher education studies done in California and Colorado. Academic space does not include dormitories, dining facilities, student center, parking structures, or academic space financing without student fees.

A report to Iowa's Third General Assembly, titled "Academic Space Deficits," explained that the figure of 300 square feet per student varies according to the type of student. For example, a freshmen taking biology introductory courses may require less than the equivalent of 100 square feet of space for use by the library, classrooms, etc., the author's office space, etc.

As a graduate in social studies, however, the most needed is would be between 500 to 300 square feet of space for use by the library, classrooms, etc., the author's office space, etc.

Figure in the architecture report showed that the University Today has 3,200,000 square feet of academic space. By 1971, it is expected that this amount of space will reach 3,750,000 square feet, an increase of 550,000 square feet through the 1969-'71 period.

These figure can make the University's 3,200,000 square feet of academic space appear adequate. The demonstration of the proposal is the academic space for the University of the future, or what it needs and will have to accommodate the needs of the next 10 years.

According to the proposal, the University needs immediate action in the area of academic space. This is expected to take effect on the University's campus in the next 10 years.

The proposed building program includes both major projects at the College of Nursing, the College of Education, the social science building, i.e., administration building, a health sciences library, a new science building, i.e., administration building, a health sciences library, a new science building, a second law center, a radio-TV communications center, the building for science and drama art, a women's student residence hall, a related water plant, a new residence hall for faculty, a new residence hall for students, and a new residence hall.

The proposed building program includes the following:

1. 1,750,000 square feet of academic space for the College of Education.
2. 200,000 square feet of academic space for the College of Nursing.
3. 1,000,000 square feet of academic space for the College of Health Science.
4. 1,000,000 square feet of academic space for the College of Science.
5. 1,000,000 square feet of academic space for the College of Arts.
6. 1,000,000 square feet of academic space for the College of Business.
7. 1,000,000 square feet of academic space for the College of Engineering.
8. 1,000,000 square feet of academic space for the College of Fine Arts.
9. 1,000,000 square feet of academic space for the College of Agriculture.
10. 1,000,000 square feet of academic space for the College of Medicine.

Art School Gets New Home

University officials announced they have found a home in a $17 million, five-building complex on the west bank of the Iowa River.

The building itself — described by one as a work of art — houses the design and history of six million square feet of floor space, according to Frank Wilke, an alumnus of the University. In 1967, 1968 and 1969, the school turned down five of the art students who wished to enroll but will instead provide space for additional buildings.

In Seiberling, professor and director of the School of Art, and his assistant, Gustave Groschwitz, former director of the School, toured the weeklong festival in May. They have viewed some 50 prints and more than 70 paintings, about 50 prints and more than 100 pieces of antioxidant silver from the collection of Edward M. Goya.

The collection has been extended from their travels in all parts of the world over a period of years, according to Seiberling. They have found a home for the collection in a building of the University, which offers bachelor's degrees in painting, sculpturing, print workshops and slide storage.

Radio is swinging to dormitories, but it is also something complex and exciting work, even and all the University residents have an opportunity to either of field. Two radio stations operate from campus locations: the public stations and the University-owned MISO station. The public stations are active from Monday through Thursday, 9 a.m. to 11 p.m. Two programs are broadcast each evening, one from 6 p.m. to 7 p.m. and the other from 9 p.m. to 11 p.m.

Music

Music is the primary focus of the public stations. The stations play a variety of genres, including rock, pop, hip-hop, and alternative music. The stations feature live DJs who rotate on a weekly basis. The music is largely determined by the DJs' personal preferences and the current trends in the music industry. The stations aim to provide a wide range of music options to meet the diverse interests of the student body.

News

The public stations also broadcast news packages every hour, covering local, national, and international events. These packages include a summary of the day's top stories, interviews with experts, and analysis from a variety of perspectives. The news segments are typically brief, lasting about five minutes each, and are designed to keep listeners informed throughout the day.

Community Affairs

The public stations also feature segments that highlight community events and organizations. These segments may include interviews with local leaders, announcements of upcoming events, and features on community initiatives. By featuring these segments, the stations aim to foster engagement and support for the local community.

The University-owned MISO station focuses on providing a range of music formats, including popular hits, alternative rock, and indie music. The station also features segments that highlight local events and organizations, keeping listeners informed of what's happening on campus and in the wider community.

Conclusion

The public stations and the University-owned MISO station offer a unique blend of music, news, and community affairs, providing a diverse programming schedule for the student body. Whether you're looking for the latest music, keeping up with the news, or staying informed about local events, these stations have something for everyone.

For more information on these stations, visit their respective websites or tune in on campus or online. Enjoy the music and stay tuned for the latest updates!

Forward, March
More than 3,500 people have entered the University's Extension Division this fall. The Division offers courses in a variety of fields, including humanities, social sciences, business, and professional development.

The Extension Division was established in 1966 when a group of faculty, staff, and students at the University of Iowa recognized a need for continuing education opportunities for adults. Since then, the Division has grown to offer a wide range of courses and programs that meet the diverse needs of learners across the state and beyond.

Courses are available in both traditional classroom settings and online through the University's distance learning platform. Many courses are offered on a flexible schedule, allowing students to fit their education into their busy lives. The Division also partners with local organizations and businesses to provide training and professional development opportunities.

In addition to offering courses and programs, the Extension Division is also home to several research centers and institutes. These include the Center for Research in Social Policy, the Center for the Study of Women, and the Center for the Study of Law and Society.

Overall, the Extension Division is committed to providing high-quality education and training opportunities that meet the needs of learners at all stages of life. Whether you're looking to explore new interests, advance your career, or simply expand your knowledge, the Extension Division has something for you.
"PERSONAL SERVICE"

A) You're a college student now, so let's talk books. You are going to be needing books and LOTS OF THEM! Chances are you'll buy them at one of the local bookstores. Which store you choose can mean a great deal to you in terms of your money, your time and effort, the amount of helpful personal service you receive.

B) Contrary to what you may have thought, bookstores are not "all alike." True, they all sell books. They all want your business. The difference lies in what they do to deserve your business. This is where Hawkeye Book Store begins to go to the head of the class.

C) If this is your first time at a large University, you may be saying to yourself: "Everything is so big! How am I ever going to find anything here?"

D) Bookstores can be the same way. They can be so big that you spend your time wandering up and down crowded aisles trying to figure out exactly what books you need. Or trying to find where the used books are hidden so that you can save money. They can be so impersonal that you have trouble finding anyone to answer your questions for you.

E) Hawkeye is different. We try to make your book buying quick and easy. There's no guesswork about what books you need. All required texts are clearly listed. Better yet, just tell any of our helpful staff the courses you're taking. They'll assemble all the correct books for you. And you won't have a sense expensive new book thrust into your hands unless you ask for it. In fact we try to stock just as many used books as possible in order to save you money. They're in plain sight too. If you drop a course within the first three weeks of classes just bring the unmarked books and the cash register receipt to Hawkeye and pick up your full refund. Well also order any book you want direct from the publisher.

F) While you're buying books, you might like to choose from our complete line of supplies or browse through some of the fine fiction paperback titles on our second floor. Remember, at Hawkeye the friendly smiles don't just appear when you get out your checkbook. They're there all the time. So when you're in the market for books and supplies—try HAWKEYE.
Randall's— Iowa City's and Coralville's most complete supermarkets!

Randall's Meat Department is perfect for everyday shopping bargains. The meats are displayed in gleaming cases, refrigerated to protect the natural flavor. All meats carry the famous S.V.T. (Super Velo Trim) seal which means Randall's will double your money back if you are dissatisfied with your meat purchase. This is your best protection on any meats in any store.

Breads, pies, cakes, pastries and other sweet goods are baked daily right in both stores. Only the finest ingredients are used, including pure butter rather than shortening. This insures you of only the best baked goods anywhere. Randall's have produce departments that cover one whole side of each store. The sparkling display cases are refrigerated to preserve the natural freshness of the fruits and vegetables that are shipped directly from Randall's to the growers themselves.

Hundreds of different varieties of frozen foods are displayed in the spotless frozen food refrigerators. The highest quality ice cream sold at the lowest possible price is made possible by a special recipe developed by Randall's.

Extra conveniences at The Mall are their modern cafeteria, serving the most palatable home cooked food and the freshest cup of coffee. And you can buy bonded money orders for any amount.

Most of all, you'll shop at Randall's because of the LOWEST FOOD PRICES in the Midwest. The wonderful aid for the family budget. Remember, you can enjoy all of these conveniences by shopping Randall's big two stores. Lots of free parking too!
Wasn't Good Baseball Year

If you think the homecourt advantage equals a basketball, take a look at the 1968 baseball teams.

The Hawkeyes had an impressive 20-7 season, but lost 13-16 away at home.

Jetball, take it easy. The Hawkeyes had an 8-1 season, but lost 13-16 away at home.

The home and away story was the same in Big 10 play. The Hawkeyes were 8-4 at home but only won 3 games on the road.

The team is 8-4 at home and 9-7 away on the road.

Entering the final weekend of the regular season, the Hawkeyes had an 11-10 record for the season. The Hawkeyes won the final Big 10 game over Illinois, 3-1. The Hawkeyes had an 8-1 season, but lost 13-16 away at home.

But the road team was a tie for the lead for the season. Junior right-hander Bruce Koering was a key player, batted .302 and led in the All-Big Ten staff's earned record. The Hawkeyes had an 8-1 season, but lost 13-16 away at home.

Psych Department — One of Nation’s Top

This Was Definitely a Team Effort—

Gymnastic Team Wins UI’s First NCAA Title

The University of Iowa gymnastics team won the highest possible honor that can be bestowed upon any collegiate gymnastics team: a national championship. The team was named national champion by the Intercollegiate Association of Women Student-Athletes, which presented the award during its national convention held in Chicago in March.

Last year, the team had won the Big Ten Conference championship, thereby earning the right to compete for the national title. The opportunity to win the national championship was one that both the fans and the members of the team had been waiting for.

The team had worked hard throughout the season to prepare for this opportunity. They trained tirelessly, giving their all in every practice and competition. Their dedication and determination paid off in the end, as they emerged victorious from the national championship.

The team’s success was a testament to the hard work and effort put in by both the coaches and the athletes. The coaches had put in countless hours planning and strategizing, while the athletes had trained with dedication and tenacity. Their combined efforts had resulted in this historic win.

New Undergraduate Program Studied

Changes in Business Seen

By Dorothy M. Gates

The college is also the host of 135 new students this fall, and they are welcomed with open arms by the Vice President of Education, who speaks on the importance of the program.

The college is currently offering a Bachelor of Science degree in Business Administration with a major in Economics.

In order to enroll either a Bachelor of Arts or Sciences degree in Economics, a student must meet the course requirements set by the Director of Liberal Arts. This includes the completion of specific courses and an overall GPA of 3.0 or above.

The prominence of the study in Economics is reflected in the demand for the program,
resulting in increased enrollment and the need for new facilities. The college is contemplating the construction of a new Economics Building to accommodate the growing student body.

Home Econ Majors Outline Studies

For the Bachelor of Arts or Sciences degree in Economics, students must complete the following:

- Economics 101: Introduction to Economics
- Economics 102: Microeconomics
- Economics 103: Macroeconomics
- Economics 104: Advanced Microeconomics

In addition to these core courses, students must also complete a minimum of 12 hours in Economics electives.

The program is designed to provide a strong foundation in Economics, preparing students for careers in business, finance, and economics.

Sororities and Frats

meet potential members.

The University of Iowa has a wide variety of sororities and fraternities available, offering students opportunities to meet new people and develop leadership skills.

The end of dental work done by students in the University's Dental Laboratory is now determined by the quality of work done. The clinic is not utilized to provide services for students and is usually done. Students are also served by the clinic. Senior dental students do their practice in this laboratory. Junior dental students do the preliminary checkups. Jol, "pretty coed laminted by junior dental students and his supervising instructor." The Military Science (ROTC) between a 20 10 25 per cent and Aerospace Studies (AF ROTC) programs at the University are undergoing subtle changes from year to year. According to Col. Thomas Spiva, director of military science, there is no longer a mandatory requirement of the military science program regarding the military science program. Prior to the volunteers, an increasing trend has been realized in some military programs during the past ten years. The Military Science (ROTC) program at the University is shown to be more expensive than the program in the University. The drop in the Military Science program is about the same. Both Spiva and Shockey agree that there is no one single factor that determined the drop in the Military Science program. According to Col. Cyrus Shockey, both Spiva and Shockey agree that there is no one single factor that determined the drop in the Military Science program. It is no longer mandatory for male freshmen to attend orientation. The future of the AFROTC lectures regarding the military and the ROTC programs at the University may depend on new factors that determined the drop in the Military Science program. One major change in the University is the rule that women be eligible for commission upon graduation.

Greetings
From the Mayor

It is a special pleasure to extend the City's official welcome to all new students of The University.

Iowa City and The University of Iowa have common ties with the past. They share the history of the Iowa Territory, and the early days of Iowa statehood. Both the State of Iowa and The University came into existence through acts passed in the legislative chambers of historic Old Capitol, the building which is most often used to symbolize both Iowa City and the University.

Iowa City is a distinctive and friendly community, heavily favored with the influences of art and cultural liveliness of the campus. The City is proud to be the home of Iowa's oldest and largest public university, and in many ways, the University and the City are partners in building the future of this community.

In the City's behalf, I am delighted to welcome all new students to that growing partnership.

Loren Hickerson
Mayor

Iowa City, a town of only 40,000 people, is the second wealthiest city in the country. It also has a chronic lack of adequate parking. The City's downtown area, which is most often used to symbolize both the University and Iowa City, is struggling with this problem. The City Council recently approved construction of a new parking structure that will be completed in 2023. This represents a significant investment in the future of the downtown area.

The Iowa City Council is currently considering the construction of a new parking structure that will be located near the intersection of Main Street and University Avenue. The new structure will include 1,000 parking spaces, as well as restrooms and other amenities. The City Council is expected to vote on the project in early 2023.

Mayor Hickerson

CASHING CHECKS—
an art in itself

For many University students, before they come to Iowa City, it is a new experience for them to have to do their own banking. They are used to having parents pay for their expenses and getting their money from them. However, in Iowa City, students have to learn how to manage their own finances. One of the most important things that students need to learn is how to cash checks.

Iowa City has several banks with branches on campus. These banks include the Iowa State Bank, the Iowa State Bank & Trust, and the Iowa State Bank & Trust Company. Students can open an account at any of these banks and start earning interest on their money. The banks also have online banking options so that students can pay their bills and check their balances from anywhere.

In addition to banks, there are several check cashing services on campus. These services include The University Bookstore, The University Co-op, and The University Union. Students can deposit their checks at any of these locations and get cash back. The services also have online options so that students can check their balances and see when their checks are processed.

Overall, Iowa City is a great place to learn how to manage your money. With several banks and check cashing services on campus, students have a variety of options to choose from. It is important to remember to be cautious when handling your money and to always use reputable sources for cashing checks.

The University has Its Problems

The University was relatively isolated last year. This past year the student population has increased, and some new developments have occurred. These developments have raised some questions about the future of the University. The student population has increased because of the growth of the University. The University has been able to attract more students because of the growth of the economy. This growth has also led to an increase in the number of faculty members. The faculty members have been able to attract more students because of the growth of the economy.

Laboratory Helps Teach Languages

Because of the language growth at the University, who in turn have become more aware of the language needs of their students. As a student at the University, you have a choice of learning the language by studying abroad or by taking courses in the language laboratory. The University's language laboratory is comparable to similar laboratory based on the language laboratories at the University of Oregon. The laboratory is arranged in separate work areas. Each space is equipped with a tape recorder and two tape monitors. Outside each space is a terminal console that can be used to control the processes and operable by the language instructor.

The apparatus for learning, with such an arrangement, is such that each student may select from the library of language tapes available in the laboratory, the entire course, a section of the course, or a general topic. The length of time and the speed of the tape can be controlled by the student.

Master (upper class) in the language laboratory are prepared to assist each student in choosing the appropriate course or the general topic. Each student is welcome to visit the laboratory and become familiar with the equipment available. The Master students spoken about above have helped in every way they can, but are not always available.

The following are some of the languages offered for study:

- English
- Spanish
- French
- German
- Italian
- Japanese
- Chinese
- Russian
- Arabic
- Hebrew
- Swahili
- Nepali
- Urdu
- Hindi
- Punjabi
- Bengali

These languages are offered in both two and four years of study. The duration of study is determined by the student's ability and progress.

At last... a young man's revolution

The young man's wardrobe no longer looks just like dad's... this fall you'll see models designed with young men in mind: new double breasteds in youthful new patterns and colorings, fashionable spread collars in dress and sport shirts and endless combinations of trousers, sweaters and sport coats to coordinate. Just come in and see what we mean.
We sell college supplies to meet your demands.

Your demands will be large and numerous for the many supplies and equipment needed while at the university. We pride ourselves with our supply of that necessary material to make your college career complete. Pencils, pens, brushers, notebooks, textbooks, athletic equipment, desk accessories and room decorations are just a few of the many items you will find in our friendly store. So many items are available that we could go on for some time telling you about our record department or our novel department, or any other department in our store. Why don't you drop in at your earliest convenience and get acquainted with our people and store. Incidentally — we do sell all the textbooks needed also.

RegistraHon: An Unavoidable Chore

Registration Means Long, Long Lines

Registration is a little less boring during the fall semester because many freshmen register during this time.

First of all, get a copy of the schedule of classes. You will hit all the times available in a given semester. The time set for each course will be listed. If you don't plan to go on your own at least partially, it is best to have a list of courses you will take. But if you have only one or two courses to select, the time set for each course will be listed.

The second step is to register, and to show your identification card with you to the Field House. The office at the door of the Field House will not let you in the door without the card. They will take your identification card and have you register at the same time. You can register for any course you desire.

Fourth, you must pay any charge for the course beforehand. It will be paid in the Field House before you can register.

Fifth, if you are registered, you can register for any course you desire. And that means you can register for any course you desire.
The Office of Student Affairs is an organization with the main purpose of helping the student population. Huit, the Dean of Students and director of the office, said, "Every parent calls all of us to understand student life. An understanding government who takes a civic position in the state of the student population is the primary goal."

Huit also says many students have personal problems, like a personal problem, but he believes that the answer is to delegate the important judicial board. He further emphasized that it's important to delegate the judicial board to a group of people that can judge about the student problems. The Office of Student Affairs is a place where students can solve their problems and get help from the advisors. The advisor is definitely not that kind of a person who takes the students' problems; instead of that, he stresses the students' responsibility in solving their problems.

Huit said that the advisor's main role is to guide students in understanding the rules and regulations. Huit also emphasized the importance of the judicial board in solving the problems. The judicial board is responsible for taking action against the student problems, but he believes that it's important to delegate the judicial board to a group of people who understand student life. The advisors need to work with the students and help them solve their problems.

UI—A Long Way from Being Free

The Basic Heart of Regulation.

The University of Wisconsin—Madison is a large institution with a student body of over 33,000. The student body is divided into two groups: the regular students and the non-traditional students. The non-traditional students are those who are over 25 years old and have been out of school for at least two years. The non-traditional students are more likely to have families and jobs.

The University of Wisconsin—Madison has a long history of regulating student behavior. The university has a policy that all students must be registered and pay fees. The registration fee is $198 per semester, which is used to cover the cost of running the university. The registration fee is divided into two parts: the tuition fee and the service fee. The tuition fee covers the cost of instruction, while the service fee covers the cost of facilities and services.

Off-Campus Housing As Different As the Students Who Live in It

Living off campus — perhaps or otherwise, is not only customary but necessary for the student in the second or third year of college. The year when you must choose between a trailer park in town or an apartment complex, the year when you must choose between a college dormitory or an apartment complex is not an easy one.

Like many students, I usually lived off campus in the fall of my sophomore year. The apartment complex I chose was on the University campus. Although it was only moments away from the University, I watched with amazement as first-year students rushed to sign leases before I could even look at the apartments. Why would I choose to live off campus if I could live in the dormitories? I decided that I had no choice; the pressure of finding a place to live, the excitement of moving to a new environment, and the fear of renting an apartment that would not be as desirable as the dormitory were my motivating factors.

After living in the apartment complex for two semesters, I decided that I had made the right choice. Although I still miss the close-knit community of the dormitory, I enjoy having my own space and the independence that comes with living off campus. I realize now that the decision to live off campus is not an easy one, but it is one that must be made.

Approved Rooms for Minors

The dormitories are strictly segregated and personal. For minor or immature students, skirts are the range between $15 and $25. The dormitories are not the only option. Many students choose to live off campus for the independence and freedom that comes with having a place of their own. The dormitories are a good choice for some students, but for others, living off campus is the better option.

Some Department Heads Skeptical — Pass-Fail System Extended to Freshmen, Sophomores

Although the pass-fail grading system for elective courses will be extended to freshmen and sophomores this fall, several University faculty members have raised questions about the system, which provides students with an option of passing or failing courses. The pass-fail system is a controversial issue, but it has been in place at the University for many years.

Some department heads are skeptical about the extension of the pass-fail system to freshmen and sophomores. For example, the pass-fail system has been criticized for giving students an easier way to avoid failing courses. However, it has also been praised for allowing students to take courses without pressure to achieve high grades. The University's decision to extend the pass-fail system to freshmen and sophomores is a controversial issue, but it remains to be seen whether it will be successful.

Student Prayer

Thou hast called me, O God, to spend this portion of my life in study.

Although the world is full of young men and women no older than I who must work in fields and shops to support their families, who must bear arms to defend their country, Thou hast released me from these responsibilities,
placing upon me the special trust
of searching wisdom.

When I look to Thee, Judge of all the earth,
and then look upon myself,
I fear my unworthiness of this trust.
I find myself only half ready in heart and mind
because of wasted, careless hours.
I fear that I will again be tempted to sloth, to be content with half-truth; to support of doubtful causes.
I beg Thy forgiveness and Thy cleansing and courage.

Help me never to forget most Loving God,
that the burden of work
that is lifted from me is no heavier than the burden of trust that is placed upon me
by this call to study.

May the need of the world for clarity and commitment be the need that speaks to me:
the need for men and women who have drunk deep of the wisdom of the ages, who have studied hard the conditions of slavery and exploitation,
who have pushed through obstacles to new dimensions of life,
who will not be content with hostilities where there might be reconciliation.

Grant, O Father of all mankind, that I may know the dignity of this call to be a student, that I may never lose sight of the needs of the world I am called to meet, that I may always be assured of Thy presence and Thy power
as I enter now this college experience.

Amen.

-Broad Education Is the Aim—Engineers Study and Play

The primary aims of the University of Iowa's College of Engineering have always been to provide a broad education in technical fields, to equip students with the skills and knowledge necessary to cope with the rapid changes in technology, and to prepare them for professional careers. The college has been successful in meeting these goals, and its graduates are well received by employers.

The college has a number of departments, each with its own set of courses that students can choose from. These include civil engineering, electrical engineering, mechanical engineering, and computer engineering. Each department offers a variety of courses that prepare students for specific careers in their field.

In addition to the technical coursework, the college also offers a number of specialized courses that are designed to provide students with a broader education. These courses include foreign language, history, literature, and philosophy. The college also encourages students to participate in extracurricular activities, such as sports, music, and drama.

The college has a strong emphasis on research, and many of its students are involved in research projects. The college also has a number of research centers, which provide students with opportunities to work on real-world problems.

The college has a strong commitment to diversity, and it is actively working to recruit and retain students from all backgrounds. The college also offers a number of support services, such as counseling, tutoring, and career development assistance.

The college is located in the heart of the city, and it is close to many cultural and recreational activities. The college also has a number of on-campus facilities, such as a gym, a library, and a dining hall.

In summary, the University of Iowa's College of Engineering is a strong and respected institution that provides students with a solid technical education and a broad general education. The college has a strong commitment to diversity and is actively working to recruit and retain students from all backgrounds. The college also offers a number of support services, such as counseling, tutoring, and career development assistance.
Nursing College Ups Enrollment

The College of Nursing hopes to increase its enrollment and to alter the program of studies for its students, now that the state has granted the money for a new building for the college.

Presently, nursing classes are held in Woman's, an old dormitory for nurses. The bedrooms were converted to offices and classrooms.

Dean Laura Dustan said the college received a federal grant for $14,000 in March 1967, and has been waiting for the state legislature to provide a matching amount before the new building could be started.

According to recent Legislatives' plans, the College of Nursing can be on the building lot within the next year or two, with the new building's completion set for 1969 or 1970.

In the meantime, plans have been made to locate the College of Nursing in the old Woman's building on the campus. The space the College of Nursing occupies on the second floor of Woman's is to be reorganized into lecture halls, offices, and study rooms, and the college will move to the Woman's building.

College Gains National Recognition—
College of Education’s Program Varies

In the 16 years since its founding, the College of Education at the University of Virginia has grown from a small school to a major institution. The College has become a leader in the field of education, and its programs are now recognized nationally.

Students at the College of Education are offered a wide range of courses and programs, including undergraduate, graduate, and professional programs. The College is known for its commitment to research and teaching, and its programs are designed to prepare students for careers in education and related fields.

In addition to the traditional education programs, the College of Education also offers programs in special education, counseling, and educational technology. These programs are designed to prepare students for careers in these fields, and they are supported by a range of resources, including laboratories, libraries, and computer facilities.

The College of Education is also home to a number of research centers, including the Center for the Study of Higher Education, the Center for Research on Learning, and the Center for Research on Teacher Education. These centers are dedicated to the study of education and related fields, and they are supported by a range of resources, including laboratories, libraries, and computer facilities.

A qualified student may complete a full year of college in 12 months if he chooses. This situation, although a once-in-a-lifetime opportunity, is not for all. A few have done it; the Credit by Examination Program in the College of Liberal Arts allows students the option of testing out of standardized tests to fulfill core requirements.

One may a degree from the College of Liberal Arts merely by meeting the requirements in certain basic areas: mathematics, physical education, foreign language, the sciences, and a division called the "core" which includes the following: English, History, Foreign Languages, Philosophy, Social Science, Natural Science, Physical Education, and Music.

Eight hours must be in each of the first four categories. The general requirements of that school work may be met in the manner described above, and if a student so chooses, a minor subject may be included.

The deadline for application in 1963 in which a student may walk the campus is in the spring of these four months, as determined by the appropriate university authorities.
