Dear people:

This is a letter concerning the hassle I recently received at East Zane High, when I tried to bring a few copies of a magazine into the school. My mother had written a note saying that I should be allowed to do this, but I was denied the right to do so. I want to take this issue to the state government. I have been told by my teacher that I should be allowed to do this, but I have been denied the right to do so. I want to know why.

I believe that this is unfair.

Knock at door, burst of bullets: IRA calling'

Party heads not upset by poor turnout

As organizational meeting of the People's Party in the Hall of Washta was just in its early stage, Mr. Bob Dickson, 119th District supervisor, appeared on the scene. His manner was friendly, but his remarks unstated. He pointed to the door, and one of his aides entered the room. "We don't expect any more agitators in the party until July," explained Dickson. "Then our job will be finished." He pointed to the door, and his aide entered again.

"I am sure that we will be able to handle any agitators in the party," said Dickson.

"We are prepared to handle any agitators who may try to enter our meeting," he added.

"I am confident that we will be able to handle any agitators who may try to enter our meeting," he concluded.

Says ammo 'wasted'

PENNIST PEND (AP) -- Premier Leo Santer of New Zealand said Wednesday that a mythical monster he believed des tracted much of the world's military effort was no more than a calculated stunt.

"I have no doubt that the efforts of the world's armed forces were focused on the extent that most of them devoted their efforts to this monster," Santer said. "But the hardest part of the world's military might was not on the international stage, but in the minds of the people they were trying to protect." "They were not fighting to stop them, but to make sure they didn't forget about them," he said.

Military officials have said the "monster" was a myth, created by the Santer government to make the world believe it was fighting a serious threat.

The Santer government said it had no plans to continue the stunt, but would continue to keep a close watch on any developments.

Nixon in pinch on debt ceiling

WASHINGTON AP—Democrats, who see President Nixon's handling of the nation's fiscal crisis as their best chance in years to regain the Senate majority, are preparing to try and force Nixon to concede that the way to trim the federal deficit is to raise the national debt limit.

The issue is a key point of contention between the White House and Congress in the current session, which ends Tuesday. Nixon wants to limit the debt to $300 billion. This is $20 billion below what the Democrats want.
