Kleindienst denies antitrust suit deal

WASHINGTON (AP) — actor Alvy, Dick, Richard G. Kleindienst, a former U.S. attorney general, has denied reports that he sometime negotiated to sell the Metropolitan Opera to Israel or Syria with the help of two foreign newspapers. Kleindienst also said he did not know of any news organization that he knew of or got close to the Kleindienst-Brian, Ellen. "I haven't had any knowledge of antitrust law or of any law that would violate the antitrust laws," Kleindienst said on the matter.

"I would like to say that specifically and generally, I don't have any knowledge of any such law or of any violation of any law. I don't have any knowledge of any direct or indirect relationship between any foreign newspaper and any person or organization within the United States with respect to the purchase of any property of the Kleindienst Corporation," Kleindienst said.

"If you have any information on this matter, I would like to know it, and I would like to know about any relationship between the Kleindienst Corporation and any foreign newspaper," he added.

Intruding Israeli warplanes forced to flee, Syria claims

Israelis warplanes attempted to enter Syrian air space over the Mediterranean part of the Golan Heights on Wednesday and were forced to flee, Syria's foreign ministry said.

Syria said the planes intercepted the warplanes over the Mediterranean and were driven off by Syrian batteries.

Military sources in Lebanon reported earlier in the day that Israeli aircraft had flown over the southern Lebanon zone of an Israeli search.

The opening of the new Auditorium equipment will be finished, however, by May and August, he said.

New UI urges savings on lights, but library lights burn

Despite the presence of students around campus urging people to save money by turning off all lights, the $6.7 million structure will be finished, he said.

And if the University library was completed by the end of the year, people would use it and cut construction workers and only pay the $5,000 to save.

They are all good, the lights are on, and they are finished by Iowa State and Electric, and we constructor materials that were not finished.

Closed, and the lights are not finished, which are more efficient materials, which were still holding.

The lights are the power from the university's one store, and $450,000 of the materials cost for the audita-ure.

Juni H. Eysman, professor of electrical engineering, said that almost all of the current costs could be saved by leaving the lights on as the furniture helped keep the lights on. But he also said, "I don't think it's a good idea."

_Woyzeck: a look at the play and the man_

_Probably not a few people have ever heard the name, yet, of George Buchner, a German playwright and a tragic poet who lived and died between 1813 and 1837._

Buchner was born in Strasbourg, several years before the French Revolution and a few years after the Napoleonic wars. The city of Strasbourg was bilingual, speaking German and French. Buchner was raised in this city and was influenced by the events of his time.

Woyzeck

_Buchner was primarily interested in medicine. He graduated from the University of Strasbourg in 1835. He then went to the University of Heidelberg to study medicine._

After graduation, Buchner moved to Berlin to continue his studies. He became involved in the political and social issues of the time, and his views were influenced by the French Revolution and the rise of Romanticism.

_Buchner's play, "Woyzeck," was first performed in 1838._

In 1843, Buchner moved to Paris to work as a medical student. He was ill and died in 1837 of tuberculosis.

Body movement workshop opens

_The theater in which we drive our bodies only understands what it can get ahold of, so how do we train our bodies in the language of communication through body movement and space? The answer, but perhaps it is more important to ask, is how we train our bodies through our relationships. At least this is the concern of Claire Parker, who is conducting a series of workshops in Los Angeles._

Singapore

_Buchner's letters and plays were published after his death, and his work has become a major influence on modern drama._

"Woyzeck"

_It is a play that explores the Fall of Man, and the fall of a man, Woyzeck. It is a play that explores the human condition, and the human experience._

_Buchner's play, "Woyzeck," has been translated and performed in many languages and countries. It is a play that has had a profound impact on the development of modern drama._
Ul ensemble destroys myth of 'college jazz' in Pub gig

BY MORTY SELAR
For The Daily hows

This article is in two parts. Please move to second page to continue.

Paul Smoker. 30-year-old director of jazz studies and assistant professor of music, is no longer attempting to separate the school of music from the rest of the University. "It is time to let the university know that jazz is a major part of our program," he said.

The story of jazz is filled with myths and legends. According to Smoker, "the myth of the college jazz player is alive and well. It is a myth that jazz is not a part of the curriculum, that it is only played in the bars and clubs, and that it is not taken seriously by the university. This myth is being shattered by the Ul ensemble, which has been performing at the university every week for the past year.

The Ul ensemble has been a revelation to many students and faculty members. "I never thought jazz would be so popular on campus," said one student. "It is a great way to get people involved in music." And the ensemble's success has been due in large part to Smoker's leadership.

Smoker has been a driving force behind the ensemble, and his passion for jazz is evident in his teaching. "I want to give my students a chance to experience the richness and diversity of jazz," he said. "It is a powerful form of expression, and I want them to understand that.

The ensemble has played a number of important gigs, including a recent performance at the university's annual jazz festival. "It was a great experience," said one of the student performers. "We were able to share our love of jazz with the whole campus.

Smoker believes that jazz is a vital part of the university's culture. "It is a way to bring people together and to foster a sense of community," he said. "And it is a way to celebrate the diversity of our students and faculty.

The Ul ensemble is one of the many jazz groups on campus. Others include the University Jazz Orchestra, the University Jazz Big Band, and the University Jazz Ensemble. Each group has its own style and sound, but they all share a common love for the music.

The Ul ensemble's success has been a source of pride for Smoker and the university. "I am proud of what we have accomplished," he said. "And I am excited to see what the future holds for jazz at the University of Ul.

But Smoker is not content to rest on his laurels. "There are still many things we can do to improve the Ul ensemble," he said. "But I am confident that we will continue to grow and to achieve great things.

The Ul ensemble is a testament to the power of music, and it is a reminder that jazz is a vital part of our culture. "I am confident that jazz will continue to thrive at the University of Ul," Smoker said. "And I am grateful to be a part of this important tradition.

For information about the Ul ensemble, please contact Paul Smoker at 555-5555. And don't miss their next performance, coming soon to a campus near you.

When Gophers last won

The last time Minnesota had a chance to talk in a Big Ten basketball championship was 1937. Martin Rolek, a starter on the 1937 Gophers and now a Minnesota governor's administrative assistant, described the thrill of the victory over Michigan in the Big Ten championship game.

"It was a hard-fought game, but we managed to pull it out," Rolek said. "We were tenacious on defense and scored some key baskets in the final minutes. It was a great feeling to see our hard work pay off in such a big game."

When you're the second best team in the country and you're losing to the first-best team in the country, you can be confident that you're going to improve over the course of the season. And that's exactly what the Hawkeyes are doing. They're not just improving, they're making significant strides towards becoming a true national title contender.

"It's only been a month since we played Michigan," said Head Coach Fred Hoiberg. "But we've learned a lot from that game. We understand what it takes to beat a team like the Wolverines, and we're working hard to make sure we're ready for the challenge."
