Cooperative promises ‘special leadership’

BY NANCY STEVENS

Daily Iowan Staff Writer

This is an excerpt from the second article of a series that The Daily Iowan ran in 1988 about the Iowa Southwest Medical College and its partners. The article discusses the prospects of the college and its potential benefits, as well as the challenges it faces. The college, located in the southwest corner of Iowa, is a joint venture between the state of Iowa, the University of Iowa, and several medical schools.

In this excerpt, the author mentions the financial contributions of different parties, the importance of the location, and the potential for economic development. The article also touches on the partnerships and the role they play in supporting the college's mission.

The $33,000—the amount which the Iowa Southwest Medical College will be taking a second look at the marketing of its upper - 365 room hotel. It is not known if the hotel will be made available to the public or if it will be sold to a private investor.

Riedesel said that the city is also looking at Madison Avenue, which has been a concern in the past. He said that the city will also consider the possibility of taking over the hotel.

Riedesel also mentioned the potential for economic development in the area, citing the hotel as a possible attraction for visitors.

St. Patrick’s day means MECCA’s here again

It all started 42 years ago on St. Patrick’s Day when four engineers from a University of Iowa tradition started a bar.

“Now it’s remembered into a four-week activity for everyone in the area,” Riedesel said. “It’s been a tradition for us.”

The event is held every year on St. Patrick’s Day, and it continues to be a popular event in the area, drawing people from all over the country.

On the foreign language requirement

BY JAMES R. BARTLETT

It used to be that only two persons ever succeeded in having their language studies approved by the Faculty Senate of the Liberal Arts. Our one and only fellow lived in another country. Our other fellow had a sense of the structure of the English language.

There is little evidence of a foreign country.

Why require students to study language, one wonders? It is optimally or even adequately achieved thermore. There is little evidence of a foreign culture.

The study of a foreign language requires us with a sense of the structure of the English language, leading among other things to a better appreciation of our own language. But this goal has been achieved if our own language is studied by foreign speakers. Still, the study of a foreign language is a very small percentage of the work to be done.

CMM displays modern variety

Last Sunday night the performance by the Chicago Modern Music Festival was held at the Harris theater. The program included the chamber music of various composers. The contrasts between some of the works were striking, both in style and in the manner in which the pieces were played. The results were quite pleasing, and it is safe to say that the festival was a success.

David Knauf talks about ‘Woyzeck’

Interview by Dale Larson

E. NODER’S: Singing is 508.1, Klass: How was it? Did you enjoy the performance?

KLASS: Yes, I enjoyed it very much. The piece was very well presented and the performers did an excellent job.

E. NODER’S: What do you think about the performance?

KLASS: I thought it was very good. The performers were very well rehearsed and the timing was excellent.

E. NODER’S: How did you prepare for the performance?

KLASS: I prepared by going over the music in detail, and by practicing the various sections of the piece.

E. NODER’S: How do you think the performance compared to the original score?

KLASS: I think the performance was very true to the original score. The performers were able to capture the mood and atmosphere of the piece very well.

E. NODER’S: What do you think about the modernization of the piece?

KLASS: I think it was very well done. The modernization added an interesting twist to the piece and made it more accessible to modern audiences.

E. NODER’S: Overall, how would you rate the performance?

KLASS: I would rate it as excellent. The performers did a wonderful job of bringing the piece to life.

E. NODER’S: Thank you for your time and for sharing your thoughts on the performance. We appreciate it.
Words are softer now—

The ‘new’ Panthers?

OAKLAND, Calif. — It’s not quite the same as beating swords into plowshares, but there are signs the Black Panthers killed and sent hundreds of us to jail over a year ago.

It’s been replaced by sentimental detente. The Panthers’ community service programs are aimed at winning a local base of support within the ghetto.

In a recent magazine interview, David Hilliard, former head of the Harlem group that calls itself the Black Panthers, said, "We’re not quite the same as beating swords into plowshares..."

...but there are signs the Black Panthers are not quite the same as beating swords into plowshares. They have made changes in their tactics, but the core of their philosophy remains intact. They are still committed to the idea that violence is the only way to bring about social justice.

The Panthers’ goal now is to establish themselves as a political party, and to build a new community that is politically independent of the existing establishment.

The Panthers have been working to build a new base of support within the ghetto, and to establish themselves as a political force. They have made changes in their tactics, but the core of their philosophy remains intact. They are still committed to the idea that violence is the only way to bring about social justice.

SURVIVAL LINE answers your questions, that is, the questions that are asked of us by the readers of the Daily Iowan. If you need information, it's available right here, right now. Just ask the questions, and we'll do our best to answer them.

One of the most common questions that we receive is, "What is the weather going to be like tomorrow?" Unfortunately, we cannot predict the weather with any accuracy. However, we can tell you that the temperature in Iowa City is currently 68 degrees Fahrenheit, with a high of 73 degrees and a low of 65 degrees.

The Department of Weather at the University of Iowa has reported that there is a 20% chance of scattered showers and thunderstorms this afternoon. The winds will be from the south at 10 to 20 mph.

If you have any other questions about the weather, or anything else for that matter, feel free to ask. We'll do our best to provide you with the information that you need.
