Discrimination suit is filed

A Montezuma woman, who wanted to work at the Montezuma Animal Shelter, is suing the city, its Human Relations Commission, and the city manager for discrimination.

The suit was filed by Pat Davies, who was fired from the shelter last year after she reported that prohibited discrimination was occurring. She was dismissed by the city manager and the Human Relations Commission, who had been investigating the case.

The suit says that the city and the commission had failed to remedy the discrimination.

The suit seeks damages of $25,000.

Favor direct allocation of activity fee funds

To the editor:

We are writing to respond to your article "We are the University of Iowa," which appeared in the April 4th issue of the Daily Iowan. We are not advocating for the "O" proposal, but rather for the "DeLoss proposal" for student organization funding.

The "O" proposal tends to discriminate against those students who belong to the Cooperative who are unable to afford subscriptions to the Daily Iowan or the University of Iowa Magazine. This is because the "O" proposal requires both professional and student organizations to pay for subscriptions to these publications. However, the Cooperative has established a scholarship fund that helps students who cannot afford these subscriptions, so students who are members of the Cooperative do not have to pay for the subscriptions themselves.

The "DeLoss proposal," on the other hand, allocates funds directly to student associations based on their activity fees paid to the University. This means that students who pay activity fees will also receive subscriptions to the Daily Iowan and the University of Iowa Magazine, regardless of their financial status.

We believe that this approach is fairer and more equitable, as it ensures that all students are able to access the publications they pay for, regardless of their ability to pay for subscriptions. We urge the University to consider implementing the "DeLoss proposal," which we believe is a better solution than the "O" proposal.

Sincerely,

Jepsen reaffirms governorship plans

Dr. H. W. Jepsen announced some Republican party officials and supporters of Gov. Robert Ray last week of trying to "distract" the people with their candidate for lieutenant governor while House Speaker William Harbor of Muscatine was running for governor.

"The only people talking about a party split are my opponents, his staff and a few party officials," Jepsen declared.

"I did visit with John the other day," Jepsen continued. "He is campaign chairman for the President and has appeared on the national campaign and in national much of our conversation was politics. But I cannot base any decision on what we talked about. For personal reasons, my details of our talk will have to come from John Mitchell." Jepsen confirmed.

"Not only have more people turned over to work for the Republicans and candidates of their choice, Jepsen said, but Gov. Ray himself has benefited from the split. Not only have more people turned over to work for the Republicans and candidates of their choice, Jepsen said. Jepsen believes, however, that the split in the Republican party will not cause the government to stay.

Some Republicans have expressed concern that a split in the party might split the party. But I'm working with the party's leaders now to develop a plan to make way for Jepsen and probably Ray, Harbor said, by a federal job and probably Ray's appointment to the United States Senate. Harbor would not reveal details of the offer of a job as head of the Federal Credit Union.

"The reports had it that he (Ray) was going to work with the party people who their candidate might have been reassessing his situation in the party. R. W. Jepsen said.

"I cannot base any decision on what we talked about. For personal reasons, my details of our talk will have to come from John Mitchell." Jepsen confirmed.

"Any details of our talk will have to come from John Mitchell," Jepsen said. "I cannot base any decision on what we talked about. For personal reasons, my details of our talk will have to come from John Mitchell."

Jepsen, however, did not say he would be running for governor in order to avoid a full scale clash with Harbor.

"Not only have more people turned over to work for the Republicans and candidates of their choice, Jepsen said, but Gov. Ray himself has benefited from the split. Not only have more people turned over to work for the Republicans and candidates of their choice, Jepsen said. Jepsen said Ray and his staff had "not in a position to build an image that I am trying to undertake the governorship during the 1972 legislature, but the fact that was not known at the time." They said the legislature was going to dictating the and if my candidacy would make it impossible for anything good to come out of the legislature, Jepsen said, "but take a look at what actually happened.

"His (Ray) appointments were all approved and many of the top positions were held by people of which would not make it to Washington, it isn't clear. Everybody agrees the 1972 session was the shortest in modern times and at the same time one of the most productive."
